

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

In sending out this book, I feel that many apologies are due the prospective readers for the incompleteness of the record and for any errors in names and dates that may be found, it being impossible to make a complete and connected history from the material available.

I have bound together as best I could, the semblance of a genealogical record trusting that some enterprising scion of the family will fill out and complete what I consider as only the ground work of a History of the Kinnear, Simpson and other families here recorded.

In order to understand the conditions surrounding the early progenitors of the family, and appreciate the motives which prompted their removal from the land of their fathers, a short review of the events leading up to the time of their emigration, seems necessary as an introduction to the work.

This sketch follows in the preface. Brief mention is made in these pages of several persons whose relation to the Kinnears is not known, but the fact of their coming from the same locality and having similar given names leads us to believe they were related and should be included in this work.

In concluding I wish to express my thanks and appreciation to all who have assisted in the collection and preparation of these annals.

A SHORT HISTORY OF THE SCOTCH-IRISH PREVIOUS TO THEIR EMIGRATION TO AMERICA.

“At the end of the fourth Century, Ireland was still a pagan land ruled by ruthless chiefs whose people had reached a point where a strong human influence was needed. Without this influence the very perfection of the time would have been a danger like the ripeness which comes before decay. The renovating power came in the lesson of loving kindness and tender mercy that had been taught by the shores of Galilee. The messenger was Succat, son of Calpurn, surnamed the Patrician, or Patricius, a title given to Roman Citizens of noble birth. This messenger is known to us as Saint Patrick. In all probability his birth place was Scotland, near the Clyde, in the north of the Roman province of Britain. The territory north of the Clyde was held in part by the Caledonian Picts, and part by Scoti, colonists from Ireland who brought with them their civilization and language. In one of the feuds among the rival tribes, a raid was made into the territory of the Roman provinces south of the Clyde, and the boy Succat was taken prisoner and carried away captive into Ireland, where after a time he proceeded to baptize and to bless Irish men and women, sons and daughters, except a few who would not receive faith or baptism.

Saint Patrick was born in North Britain of noble parentage; while a boy he was brought a captive to Ireland, where he remained as a herdsman for six years. When he returned to his native land he learned in a vision that he was destined to convert Ireland. He began his missionary work about 435 A. D., and built churches and established schools in many parts of Ireland. A learned writer has said: “If Saint Patrick was the father, Saint Bridget was the mother of all the saints of Erin—both monks and nuns.” Bridget was born 453; she was the daughter of a famous Leinster chief. Her whole life was surrounded with stories of marvels. When asked to choose one of the virtues declared in the Beatitudes she chose "Blessed are the merciful, for they shall obtain mercy." Far more important than any single side of her work was the way in which the whole life of this woman of genius and inspiration raised the ideal of womanhood in Ireland. Her influence in this respect lasts to this day, for in no other country is the ideal of womanly purity held so high—she died in 525.

The third patron saint of Ireland, Saint Columba, was born at Gartan in Donegal about 521. His father was one of the Chiefs of Irish Dalradia, while his mother belonged to the royal family of Leinster. Columba was, in fact, a great great grandson of Niall of the Nine Hostages. The cause of his exile was as follows: A dispute arose over a copy of the Book of Psalms which Columba made from a manuscript belonging to Saint Finnian, his teacher at Clonard and Molville. Finnian claimed the copy. Columba refused to give it up. The dispute was referred to Diarmaid. The king followed the principles laid down in Brehon Laws: "To every cow belongs its calf," decided that to every book belongs its copy, the earliest decision on copy-right recorded in our history. He therefore awarded the copy to Finnian. Columba refused to accept the decision and appealed for aid to his tribe. A fierce dispute arose culminating in a great battle at Cooldrevin, near Drumcliff a few miles north of Sligo. This battle was fought in 561, and the partisans of Columba were completely victorious."

SCOTCH-IRISH.

“During the Irish rebellions in the reign of Elizabeth, the Province of Ulster, embracing the northern counties of Ireland, was greatly depopulated, and it became a favorite project with her successor, James I, to repeople those counties with a protestant population, the better to preserve order, and introduce a higher state of cultivation in that portion of his dominions. To promote this object, liberal offers of land were made, and other inducements held out in England and Scotland, for persons to occupy this wide and vacant territory. The project was eagerly embraced; companies and colonies were formed, and the individuals without organization were tempted to partake of the advantageous offers of the government. A London company, among the first to enter upon this new acquisition, established itself at Derry, and gave such a character to the place as to cause it to be afterwards and forever known as the renowned city of Londonderry.

The first emigration from Scotland was chiefly from the Highlands where agricultural resources were scanty and often wholly cut off, and where the fruits of labor were gathered from a sterner soil. Sir Hugh Montgomery, the sixth Laird of Braidstone, a friend and follower of King James, was among the earliest to obtain possession of forfeited land in the county of Down, and laid his rough hand upon many a broad acre. The coast of Scotland is within twenty miles of the county of Antrim in Ireland, and across this frith or strait flowed from the northeast a population distinguished for thrift, industry and endurance, which has given a peculiar and elevated character to that portion of the emerald isle. It is said that clan McDonald contributed largely to this emigration, and was among the first of the Scottish nation to plant upon its shores. They were scattered chiefly in the counties of Down, Bangor, Derry and Belfast, and the principal cities of those counties.

This was the first protestant population that was introduced into Ireland, the Presbyterians of Scotland furnishing the largest element; and they have maintained their ascendancy to the present day, against the persevering efforts of the Episcopalians on the one hand, and of the Romanists, bigoted and numerous, by whom they were surrounded on the other. The first Presbyterian church established in Ireland was in Ballycarry, in the county of Antrim, in 1613.

Although the rebellions of 1715 and 1745, against the House of Hanover, made large additions to the Scotch population in the north of Ireland, yet by far the largest accession to this colonization were occasioned by religious persecutions in the time of the latter Stuarts. That fated race, blind to the dictates of justice and humanity, devoted with sullen bigotry to their peculiar notions in religion and politics, pursued a system of measures best calculated to wean from their support subjects the most devoted to their cause. The Scottish race was bound to the Stuarts by a national prejudice and sincere affection. But they were imbued with a religious enthusiasm, inspired by Knox, their great apostle, which ruled their consciences, and rendered the sanctions of a higher law superior to their patriotism, or their attachment to their native sovereigns. Rather they believed that true patriotism consisted in maintaining the religion transmitted by their fathers.

When, therefore, the Charleses and James II endeavored to introduce prelacy among them, and to force it upon their consciences by arbitrary laws and the iron hoofs of the dragons of Claverhouse, very many of these hardy, persistent and enduring Presbyterians having suffered to the bitter end of cruelty and oppression, abandoned the land of their birth, the home of their fondest affections, and sought an asylum among their countrymen in the secure retreats of Ulster or fled across the ocean. They carried their household goods with them; and their religious peculiarities became more dear in the land of exile, for the dangers and sorrows through which they had borne them. Presbyterianism was transported from Geneva to Scotland by John Knox, who composed his first Book of Discipline, containing the substance of his intended policy, in 1561. In 1566 a general assembly approved the Discipline; and all church affairs after that time were managed by the Presbyteries and General Assemblies. They did not at first formally deprive the bishops, who had ecclesiastical jurisdiction, of their power, but they went on gradually and steadily doing it as they acquired confidence and strength. In 1574 they voted bishops to be only pastors of one parish; in 1577 they decreed that bishops should be called by their own names without title; and next year they declared the name of bishop to be a nuisance. In 1580 they pronounced with one voice in the General Assembly that diocesan episcopacy was unscriptural and unlawful. The same year King James and his family, with the whole Scotch nation, subscribed a confession of faith, embracing the "solemn league and covenant," obliging them to maintain the protestant doctrine and Presbyterian government. Thus, in the space of twenty years grew up this formal, extensive and powerful institution, twining itself over the Scottish mind with stern and inflexible bands, which death only could sunder; and for which home, country, life—all things beside—were freely given up. James had hardly become secure and easy on his English throne when he began his attack upon the religious system of his early life, and of his native country, and his successors followed it up with a pertinacity worthy of a better cause. The attempts to establish the church of England over Scotland, and destroy the religious system so universally established and so dearly cherished by that devoted people, was pursued by Charles and James the 2d, by persecutions as mean, as cruel, and as savage as any that have disgraced the annals of religious bigotry and crime. And they did not cease until they had greatly depopulated Scotland, and were stripped of their power by the happy revolution under William and Mary, which restored repose to a distracted and long suffering people. Scotland, a country no larger than Maine, with a population at the close of the seventeenth century of a million, and in 1800 not so much as the present population of Massachusetts and Maine; with agricultural and other resources by no means equal to ours—of which a writer in a recent number of the Edinburg Review, on the Highlands, says: “At the end of the 17th century the chief social feature of the Highlands was famine and another was emigration.” Yet this country has contributed largely, by emigration, to furnish numerous and prominent settlers for many other lands; to the nation with which she is connected, profound statesmen, brilliant writers, and men the most renowned in every department of scientific and philosophical research.

This is the race, composed of various tribes flowing from different parts of Scotland, which furnished the materials of the SCOTCH-IRISH immigration to this country. By their industry, frugality and skill they had made the deserted region into which they had moved a comparatively rich and flourishing country. They had improved agriculture and introduced manufactures, and by the excellence and high reputation of their productions had attracted trade and commerce to their markets, so as to excite the jealousy of government in the reigns of Anne and the first George, notwithstanding that by their efforts and example the prosperity of the whole island had been promoted. The patronizing government began to recognize them in the shape of taxes and embarrassing regulations upon their industry and trade. The same jealousy controlled that government afterwards, in regard to the American Colonies, by which the commerce and enterprise of their subjects on this side of the ocean were, in like manner, hampered and restricted, so that they were hardly permitted to manufacture articles of the most common necessity, but were driven to import them from the mother country as glass, nails, hats, cloth, etc.

These restrictions occasioned great distress, not only in the north of Ireland but throughout the whole island. To this, Duglass (p. 368) says, “was added an extravagant advance in rents by landlords, whose long leases were now expired.” The energetic and self-willed population of the north of Ireland, animated by the same spirit which subsequently moved the American mind, determined no longer to endure these oppressive measures; and they sought by another change to find a freer verge for the exercise of their industry and skill, and for the enjoyment of their religion. One of their spiritual leaders, the Rev. Mr. McGregor, in a sermon which he preached on the eve of departure from Ireland, assigns the following reasons for their removal to America: First. To avoid oppressive and cruel bondage. Second. To shun persecution. Third. To withdraw from the communion of idolaters. Fourth. To have an opportunity of worshiping God according to the dictates of conscience and His inspired word. He looked at it chiefly from a religious point of view; others from a material and commercial standpoint. It was undoubtedly suggested and promoted by a variety of motives gradually operating upon the mass of the population which brought them to the determination, solemn and painful, to sunder the ties which had bound them firmly to their adopted country, and impelled them to seek new and doubtful homes in a wild, unexplored and far-distant land. The first immigration of these people to this country was to the middle and southern Colonies. As early as 1684 a settlement was formed in New Jersey, and in 1690 small groups were found in the Carolinas, Maryland and Pennsylvania. But it was not until the reigns of Anne and George I that large numbers, driven by oppressive measures of government and disastrous seasons, were induced to seek, even in the wilderness, a better home than their old settled region could give them. Gordon says: "Scarcity of corn, generally prevalent from discouragement of industry, amounted in 1728 and the following year almost to a famine, especially in Ulster. Emigrations to America, which have since increased, drew above 3000 people annually from Ulster alone." Dr. Boulter, afterwards Archbishop of Armagh, who labored strenuously in 1728 to divert the horrors of famine in Ireland, wrote to the English ministry March 7, 1728, that there were seven ships then lying at Belfast that "are carrying off 1000 passengers; most of them can neither get victuals nor work at home." He also says:

“3100 men, women and children went from Ireland to America in 1727, and 4200 in three years, all protestants.” The principal seats of these emigrations were Pennsylvania and the middle states.” The above is taken from an article in the New England Hist. and Gen. Register for July, 1858, by the Hon. William Willis of Portland, Me.

GENEALOGYThe Kinnear Family and their Kin.KINNEAR.

“The ancestors of the Kinnear’s, in Ohio, Pennsylvania and other parts of the United States, it seems, emigrated from Scotland to Ireland.

This it is said, took place about the time the latter was conquered by King William III, subsequent to the revolution of 1688, in England.

The victory gained by the army of William III, over the army of James, on the Boyne, July 1, 1690, and by his General Ginkel, at Aghram, July 13, 1691, assisted by the clemency with which he treated the vanquished party, made him master of Ireland, and restored the Protestant ascendancy.

It will throw light on some of what follows to notice here, that Ireland has been divided into four great Provinces, viz.: Ulster, Leinster, Connaught and Munster, which are again divided into thirty-two counties containing two thousand four hundred parishes.

Ulster, which occupies the northern part of the Kingdom, contains nine counties, viz.:—Antrim, Cavan, Donegal, Down, Fermanagh, Londonderry, Monaghan and Tyrone.

Leinster, situated to the east contains twelve counties, viz.:—Carlow, Dublin, Kildare, Kilkenny, King’s, Longford, Louth, Meath, Queen’s, Westmeath, Mexford and Wicklen.

Connaught, towards the west contains five counties, viz.: Calway, Leitrim, Mayo, Roscommon and Sligo.

Munster, which occupies the south part of the Kingdom, containing six counties, viz.:—Clare, Cork, Kerry, Limerick, Tipperary and Waterford.

The Kinnear's, according to tradition, received donations of lands from the Crown of England, over and above their wages, for their bravery and fidelity in military achievements.

We are informed that Dr. Alexander Wishan, who attended lectures in Edinburg, Scotland, and took the degree of physics and surgery, and afterward came to America, was well acquainted with some of the Kinnear's, in Scotland, and that the Scotch dialect had not the sound of "e," and that the orthography was probably "Kinnar." Why or how the name was changed in Ireland he could not tell.

About the year 1682, James Kinnear, his wife and family emigrated from Scotland, and settled in Londonderry, Ireland, at the time of the Revolution, 1688, he and his wife escaped from the city, but not at the same time nor place, and did not meet or hear of each other for seven years, then they happened to meet and were overwhelmed with joy and ever after lived together."

In the first pages of this book will be found the early history of the Kinnear Family in Scotland and Ireland.

Rev. David Kinnear (No. 135), in his history of the Kinnear Family in Pennsylvania and Ohio, traced their ancestry to one James Kinnear, who emigrated from Scotland to Londonderry, Ireland; he is said to have had but one child, William Kinnear (No. 2), who had by his first marriage, one son, James Kinnear (No. 3), who married Nancy Atchison and came to America; as none of his children lived to maturity his line became extinct.

Next is given William Kinnear (No. 4), who married Eleanor Carney, and their descendants (Nos. 9 to 10j).

Next Andrew Kinnear (No. 5), who married Mary Delmar, and their descendants, numbered 11 to 243.

Next Alexander Kinnear (No. 6), who married Jane Ganley, and their descendants, numbered 250 to 382.

Next Margaret Kinnear (No. 7), who married Thomas Kinnear, and their descendants, numbered 383 to 629, including their Siggins descendants.

Next Robert Kinnear (No. 8), who married Nancy Kinnear, and their descendants, numbered 630 to 671.

Next an account of Robert Kinnear (No. 9), who married Elizabeth Verow, and were the parents of Henry Kinnear, Sr., who married Margaret Kinnear (No. 387).

Next accounts of other Kinnear and Kinnier Families, who came to America from Ireland, Scotland and France, the ones from Ireland were no doubt related to each other, but we are unable to trace the exact relationship.

The counties in Ireland from which they all came adjoin each other; Londonderry, being the most northern, the others being to the south and southwest, in the order named: Tyrone, Armagh, Monaghan, Cavan, Leitrim and Sligo.

KINNEAR.

In the year 1165, King William granted to one William De Kyner, a tract of land in St. Andrews Parish, County of Fife, Scotland, known as Kyner, or "Kyner Place," the first transfer of this land was to Symon De Kyner, in 1213; and the next to his son of the same name; in 1234; it was next transferred to John Kenner, in 1286, and next to his son of the same name, he held it until 1390.

One David Kenneir, was the owner in 1534, he appears to have been a man of considerable prominence in Scotland, and was elected to Parliament in 1560; he died June 21, 1584, aged 63 years.

The next in line comes John Kenneir, and then David who died in 1632, then John again becomes heir to the estate, and his son David was next; he was living and registered arms in 1672; his motto was: "I live in hope." His son David succeeded him, and after his death, the date of which is not given, his son, James Kenneir, (this appears to be the first time the name was spelled as it is now, Kinnear) succeeded to the estate.

About the year 1680, the family had trouble with the Catholic Church, and James Kinnear, was excommunicated, in 1682, he removed with his family to Londonderry, Ireland, where he died in 1700; his son James was the father of two sons, James and Charles Kinnear; Charles married in 1772, and had a son Charles who married in 1792, of this branch of the family we have no further record.

The other son James Kinnear, married and had a son William who was his only heir, and from him are descended the Kinnears of this history.

William Kinnear' was married twice, by his first wife, whose name is unknown, he had one son:

James Kinnear', who married in Ireland, Nancy Atchison, and came to America before the Revolutionary War.

William Kinnear', married second, Jane Simpson, they lived near Carrick, on the Shannon River, in Connaught Parish, Leitrim County, Ireland, the eldest son William Kinnear', married Eleanor Carney, they both died in Ireland, they had two children Ann and William, who emigrated in 1791, with their uncle Alexander Kinnear and his family to America.

From 1791 to 1795 all of the children of William and Jane (Simpson) Kinnear, with their families emigrated to America, and settled first, in Pennsylvania, from there they and their descendants have scattered to all parts of the United States.

Jane (Simpson) Kinnear, had three brothers; James, William and Alexander. This William Simpson, is probably the William Simpson, who settled in Bucks County, Pa., both he and his son William Simpson, Jr., were in the Revolutionary War.

- i. William Kinnear, m. Jane Simpson, their daughter.
- ii. Margaret Kinnear, m. Thomas Kinnear, their daughter.
- iii. Margaret Kinnear, m. Henry Kinnear, their daughter.
- iv. Margaret Kinnear, m. Alexander Siggins, their son.
- v. Benjamin Baird Siggins, m. Elizabeth Erma Walker, their daughter.
- vi. Emma Siggins, m. John Barber White.

Henry Kinnear was son of Robert and Elizabeth (Verow) Kinnear.

It is evident that Emma Siggins (Mrs. J. B. White) who has for many years been securing records for this History and Genealogy of the Kinnear family in America, is a descendant of the Kinnears through three lines; First, that of William Kinnear of Ireland and Jane Simpson his wife. Second that of Thomas Kinnear, who married Margaret Kinnear the daughter of William and Jane (Simpson) Kinnear. Third, Robert and Elizabeth (Verow) Kinnear. Just how and where these lines unite, if they do, we are unable to determine.

(673) Nancy Kinnear, dau. of Robert and Elizabeth Kinnear; d. 1839, in Venango County, Pa. They had six children.

All of the children of William and Jane (Simpson) Kinnear, except William<sup>s</sup>, who married Eleanor Carney, both of whom died in Ireland, emigrated between 1791 and 1795 to America, and settled in Pennsylvania, the two children of William and Eleanor (Carney) Kinnear coming with their Uncle Alexander Kinnear.

(2) William Kinnear<sup>s</sup>, James<sup>1</sup>; born in Leitrim County, Ireland; he was married twice; the name of his first wife is unknown, but they had one son;

James Kinnear<sup>s</sup>. This son became in his youth a zealous and faithful member of the Wesleyan Methodist Church, in consequence of which he suffered much persecution; even his father was sorry to see him pursue this course and expostulated with him from time to time, but all in vain, and finally told him to leave the Methodist Church or his house.

In order to redeem time to go to meeting he worked by moonlight on the farm; on leaving his father's house he went to the north of Ireland, and was married there to Nancy Atchison, soon afterward, to escape persecution; they came to America and settled in Philadelphia before the Revolutionary War.

He became a merchant and did well financially; he was in business about forty years; they had several children but only a son, William Kinnear<sup>1</sup>, lived to a mature age; this son was very proficient at school; his penmanship was scarcely inferior to copper plate; the officers of the Bank of North America, in Philadelphia, were so much pleased with him that they persuaded his father to take him from school and they employed him as a clerk in the bank where he continued for eight or ten years; this sedentary avocation brought on consumption, of which he died in Philadelphia; after his death Mr. and Mrs. Kinnear moved to Centre County, Pa.; they had long been faithful members of the Methodist Church; he died in peace at his home in Centre County, and about fifteen years later his widow departed this life in peace (at the home of Thomas McClelland), following him no doubt, to Heaven. Thus this branch of the family became extinct. "The Lord gave and he hath taken away."

He had no correspondence with his relatives in Ireland until after the Revolutionary War; he then wrote to them and presented motives for them to come to America, and many of them as we will see did come.

From manuscript of Rev. David Kinnear.

The father of this James Kinnear married second Jane Simpson; they lived and died in Leitrim County, Ireland, but all of their children except William Kinnear, Jr.<sup>2</sup>, came to America and from them are descended the larger part of the Kinnears of this genealogy.

10. ii. Rev. WILLIAM Kinnear<sup>t</sup>; b. in Leitrim County, Ireland.

(135) Rev. David Kinnear, in his history of the Kinnear Family, says: "Ann, their daughter, was born in Leitrim County, Ireland; she came to America with her Uncle Alexander Kinnear and others in the year 1791. She was married to Mr. Thomas McClelland in Philadelphia soon afterwards. They moved to Centre County, Pa., remained there and were wealthy. They had long been faithful and useful members of the Methodist Church. William, the son of William and Eleanor Kinnear, was born in Leitrim County, Ireland; his father died seven months and two weeks before he was born; he was a local preacher in the Methodist Church, and departed this life, no doubt in peace, in the year 1835."

Taken about 1861.

Thomas McClelland was born in Monaghan County, Ireland, March 17, 1767. His parents were members of what is called the "Second Church" and Thomas was educated in the principles of that faith. He was brought to the knowledge of the truth as it is in Jesus, under Methodist preaching at the age of seventeen and united with the Wesleyan Methodist Church. He was licensed to preach in 1790, and soon appointed to a station. He traveled as an itinerant four years when ill health compelled him to desist. In 1797 he came to America and with his family settled in New Castle, Delaware. He then removed to Maryland, where he joined the Methodist Episcopal Church and officiated one year as preacher. Hearing of some of his relatives residing in Mercer County, Pennsylvania, he removed to that neighborhood. In June, 1812, he attended a camp meeting on Beaver Circuit, where his weakened condition showed his end was near. He started to Pittsburg and reached its vicinity on Wednesday, the next morning he did not waken—God had taken him.

—Not the Thomas McClelland, who married Ann Kinnear<sup>o</sup>.

Isaiah C. T. McClelland was born in Wayne Township, Crawford Co., Pa., March 15, 1810. He was converted in Franklin, Pa., in 1834, and there united with the Methodist Episcopal Church. He was licensed to preach in the same place in 1836, and in 1839 was received on trial in the Erie Conference. He located here in 1841 in order to care for his aged mother who was a devoted Christian. He was re-admitted in 1824. After serving the Church nineteen years he located in Cranberry in 1859 where he joined the Cumberland Presbyterian Church and was pastor of the same until 1864.

Mary Delmar was married in Ireland, May 1, 1777, to Andrew Kinnear<sup>s</sup>, her father was a wealthy merchant of good reputation who died about the meridian of life, and soon after her mother departed this life.

(5) Andrew and Mary (Delmar) Kinnear emigrated to America about 1791, with their other children. Francis Margaret, Mary and James were born in Berks County, Pennsylvania. The family in 1806, removed to Pickaway County, Ohio. Where in 1824 Andrew Kinnear died, he and his wife are buried in a beautiful elevated part of the graveyard at Salem meeting-house, they lie side by side, he on the north and she on the south, weeping willows are engraved on their tomb stones, his is ornamented in circular form, and hers square. Their epitaphs are as follows; which I (Rev. David Kinnear, accompanied by my dear consort) copied May 24, 1847:

(5) Andrew Kinnear was brought up under religious influence and in early life became a member of the English Church, and scrupulously observed its ritual, usages and external religion of that Church until his life was terminated at his home in 1824.

The parents of Mary Delmar were also members of the English Church, and she was also a member for forty years, but later joined and lived the last thirty years of her life a member of the Methodist Church, when she died she had eight children, fifty grand-children, and about forty great-grandchildren. One of her sons and three of her grandsons were ministers of the Methodist Church.

(11)* William Kinnear<sup>t</sup>, Andrew<sup>s</sup>, William<sup>s</sup>, James<sup>t</sup>; William Kinnear<sup>t</sup> was from the Emerald Isle, born in 1778, and came to this country in 1785. He first came to "Pit-hole Settlement" about 1800, and moved to Franklin in 1811. He had a store on the corner of Liberty and 12th streets. His first place of business, however, was in his dwelling, corner of Elk and Tenth streets, where he resided from 1812 to his death, Sept. 30, 1844. The lot was afterwards occupied by his son Francis D. Kinnear<sup>s</sup>. Mr. Kinnear was also justice of the peace and commissioner, a good citizen and a prominent member of the Methodist Church. His daughters, Mary (Mrs. Samuel Bailey), Nancy (Mrs. William Raymond), Jane (Mrs. William Smiley) Elizabeth C. (Mrs. Nelson R. Bushnell), as well as his son Francis Delmar Kinnear, all settled in Franklin.

(8) Robert Kinnear<sup>2</sup>, uncle of William<sup>4</sup>, and his wife Nancy (Kinnear) Kinnear, were natives of Ireland, who emigrated to eastern Pennsylvania, and afterward to the Northern part of Venango County, early in the century. After a few years they removed to Franklin, where Mr. Kinnear filled the position of jailor, fifteen years. They reared five children; Ann who married Alexander Kinnear; James; Henry; Elizabeth who became the wife of Dominick McCormick, and Jane, all of whom are dead. For several years preceding his death, Mr. Kinnear kept the lock on the French Creek canal at the big dam, about one mile above Franklin. Both he and his wife were ardent Methodists and died in that faith at a ripe old age. Their last years were spent at the point previously mentioned, now known as the Echols farm, and formerly the property of William McCormick, the father of Mrs. E. W. Echols, of Franklin, and grand-son of Mr. Kinnear.

Extract from the Hist. of Venango Co. Pub. 1890.

(11) William and Mary (Allender) Kinnear, with a few others, organized about the year 1804, the first Methodist Church Society in Franklin.

"Gideon Draper Kinnear<sup>4</sup> was born in Franklin, Venango County, Pennsylvania, in 1809, and was converted and united with the Church in boyhood. In 1831 he was employed by the presiding elder of the Erie District to labor on the Youngsville Circuit, and the next year entered the regular itinerant ranks in the Pittsburg Conference, and was appointed to the Ridgeway Mission in 1834. The general minutes give Salem as his appointment in 1833. Gregg mentions neither Mr. Kinnear or Salem. He superannuated in 1874, but continued to labor as his strength would permit. At the Hollow Rock Camp meeting, on the evening of Sunday, Brother Kinnear fell while preaching with great power in the tabernacle. To those who ran to support him, he said; 'Let the meeting go on, let me die at my post' and a little later he became unconscious and passed to his reward, September 8, 1875. The following list of appointments will give some idea of the importance of the work of Gideon Draper Kinnear: 1832 Dover; 1833, Salem; 1835, Birmingham; 1836, Bradocksfield; 1837, Blairsville; 1838, Mooreville; 1839-40, Deersville; 1841-42, Salem; 1843-44, Brighton; 1845, Agent for Allegheny College; 1846, Beaver Creek Mission; 1847, Barnsville District; 1856, Temperanceville; 1857-58, Columbian; 1864-65, Springdale; 1866-67, Elkton; 1868, Bloomfield; 1869-70, New Somerset; 1871, Greenstown; 1872-73, Philadelphia Plains; 1874, superannuated, but appointed as supply to Unionville and Concord."

Alexander McElhaney was the first leader of a little church started on the banks of the Sandy, five miles south of Franklin. The fourth Quarterly meeting was held in McKean, May 23, 1835, among the local preachers present was Rev. William Kinnear.

HISTORICAL SKETCH OF THE MONNETT FAMILY.

By Cordelia P. Monnett.

In the personal account of those who knew him it is affirmed that David Kinnear immigrated in company with his parents and younger brothers and sisters from Dublin, Ireland, when a mere lad of fifteen, and that they were originally from Scotland. The baronial castle of the Kinnear family in Scotland is still quite well known by those who came from there to this country.

The family located for a time in Philadelphia, and subsequently removed to that part of the then far west, called Ohio, about 1793. School buildings and churches were few indeed, and unfortunate was the family which could not manufacture its own linen and woolen apparel and household comforts.

Besides arriving at his majority the young David arrived at much useful information. As surveyor in locating settlers in this extensive new country he traveled among the people, and thus in serving them in their necessity, he gained not a few new and valuable citizens as friends.

At one place where his surveying party were required to stop and wait for a time, he observed a tall, black-eyed lady of energy and good appearance looking well to the ways of a thrifty household. In his usual wise way he spoke of her as being one who would make a regal woman and wife and an excellent helpmeet, just as he himself much needed. And thus it came in due time that this Miss Coe became the wife of the wise, practical, humanitarian David Kinnear. He was a man of varied affairs and given to hospitality. His counsel was in request from near and far. His business guests, like his social ones, were received at his home, so his family were not isolated. They were a busy people and not permitted to wander away by the frivolity of those whom he could not respect.

To this pair of our immediate ancestry were born seven sons and three daughters. They were active and healthful, and all grew to manhood and womanhood. As each son became old enough, he was placed at a good business house to acquire a special industry, some schooling and knowledge of the world, tending to develop the individual and prepare him for a career of his own. This course proved to be the stepping stone to other and more varied interests and occupations.

The three daughters of quite different ages, married early and at long intervals apart. Owing to their dutiful life and quiet reserve, they were without exception, for women so young, of noble appearance and manner. Their home life was all too short for the educational culture their anxious father coveted for them.

The handsome eldest one, Pheobe, at one time, met with disfavor from her father in the approaches of a suitor, whom he thought too plain a man for so spirited a woman. She was, indeed, bright, with beautiful eyes. As judge of the court and man of affairs, his native wisdom discriminated between the good and true, and the vain and frivolous. As a parent his wide observation failed not at this time to move him to realize fully the weighty question—how shall youthful inexperience not drift beyond its own and needed welfare? Through the mediation of an uncle, in whose employ the young man then was, the affair was brought to a happy conclusion in their marriage. The man did so well and was so prospered that her father was quite reconciled and forgiving.

The second daughter was the bright, conscientious Mary Delamar, namesake of the father's sainted mother. Her mother said of her, what she of all knew best how to say, that Mary was an obedient daughter. She was noted for faithfulness and reliability, and was brightly equipped with a ready heart and a willing mind. It was all too late at one time to find that her physical strength as well as sense of love and duty might be too heavily loaded. The little maiden failed in health, and it was feared that she might die. With tender care and the prayer at her bedside of a good aunt, she finally recovered to bless the world with her presence for a goodly length of life.

At one time the mother planned with her husband and several others to make a visit at some distance in the East. She sent for the grandmother to come and stay with the little twelve-year-old daughter who was to be the housekeeper. Until they had gone the confusion of making ready beguiled her somewhat of its weight, though she felt it quite a task, for so much company was always coming to their home. When they had started, and the grandmother was resting, the faithful little housekeeper flew to the orchard and lifted to her Heavenly Father a devout petition that her mother might soon come home.

On the second day out, the mother being unusually moved, surprised her company by saying to them: "I must go home," earnestly repeating, "I must go home." The earnestness of her importunity could not be mistaken, and they turned them about and drove straight home. The child had the verified answer next day—her mother did come home in answer to her prayer.

The father mourned the fact that this daughter could not be spared from home to attend school as much as he desired. Then he was grieved again and again, for the school was so unlike what it should have been. He would say to her, "Polly, my dear, have a book. Get all the knowledge you can. These surroundings will not know you after a while." Father and daughter were in harmonious accord and a quick sympathy gave rest and comfort to each. Much of the strength of his ardent nature was revealed to her, the suffering he must endure with conditions he could neither avoid nor help. She was wise beyond her years, and more and more realized the weight of his words, and the sacrifice he would make for the soul of honor and the righteousness of right doing, without ever giving it a name.

It was his custom to give an informal lecture or talk in the evening—a necessity to the social and business relations of his household. These were a source of practical discipline and culture, not to be arrived at for the family in any other way. His topics were many and varied. He made known to them how life and living are full of emergencies, full of opportunities and full of duties. Our first duty is to be equipped and ready to meet them. To this end he explained further how Mr. A. and Mr. B. and a youthful friend of their acquaintance were each kind, useful Christian people. That they were such was no accident; they had studied hard for it, making it a daily principle of their lives, and that they had attained to such a degree of excellence was not without a cause. There was no such excellence without attention and great labor. That resulted in a love for it, as a fine art, and that had made them useful, and much happier for life.

When in after years these sons and daughters, each or any, were moved by a like zeal for the education and practical culture of a growing family, it was an unmeasured joy to recall the endeavor of their best teacher, their own dear father, and do as he had done. It was a sacred and lasting memory. They mourned his death as that of their last and best earthly friend.

In this family, no book was prized and honored as the Book of books, the Bible. It was the emblem of their quiet, abiding hope, their trust and restful faith. Its presence was the safeguard of their earthly home and existence, and guide to their heavenly home. From its sacred and much loved history was found the names for the children.

The third daughter was the fun-loving Magdalene. Her early death was a blow to her father which he did not long survive.

Time rolled rapidly and the years of unconscious childhood disappeared into manhood and womanhood with semi-serious mein and quiet graceful movements indicating the nobility of character developed. Whether at home or abroad, this demeanor made them attractive and observed of all whom they met.

Soon several of the elder sons were entrusted with civic positions. Though grown to manhood and actively engaged with business they loved to go home for a visit and be boys again and hunt up Mother and her pantry as they used to do. And well she loved to have them do so.

About this time in its history a second wedding inside the family occurred. This time it is the marriage of the second daughter, the lovely Mary Delamar, to Thomas Monnett. The first daughter had been married eight years before to his brother.

Sons of a noble patriarchal parentage, fortified in the life and principles of a Methodist Christianity, they were men of health and activity, of piety and perseverance.

The newly married pair soon departed for their distant home, too distant to be in those days often retraced by a journey home. While they bid adieu to her wise father and mother, how blessed it is that they go to the home of his wise father and mother, which was to be their own by purchase in two years. Dear Grandsire Monnett, he did not fail to provide for each of his five sons and three daughters a place for habitation,—a few hundred acres of farming and woodland, where each might build a home, in the practice of the virtues of industry, frugality and righteousness. He was remembered to say he felt quite sure under God that they would be all right if they might only be kept busy. He was as just as he was wise. If his wife made him a coat, he paid her the cash for her work. Wives and mothers had much of that to do in those days. If his daughter made a bed with coverings and feather bed, he gave her fifty dollars, a marvel of liberality, where so many needs in a new country were calling. They were a busy people and very happy in their several industries. They learned to be wise in dispensing their own private cash to the best advantage in personal need or benevolence. The sons, while yet mere boys, were delighted with an interest in a calf or colt, and early learned to have a care of animals. This encouraged thrift and a happy mutual helpfulness. Quiet steady progress made it a business industry, with, best of all, a personal training and habit of life.

While they were diligent in business, doing duty to their families, and their fellow creatures, they were not forgetful of their duty to their God and Creator. Often through the day, upon some touching reminder of his goodness and mercy to them they were heard to exclaim—"Thank the Lord!" and again, "Thank the Lord!" Regular as came the mercy of the morning and the evening, came the hour of family devotion,—the reading of the Word and prayer. Having no church building as yet in the new country, their home was set in order twice a week for prayer and church service. Families came from near and far to these services, though long distances and circuitous routes marked the roadway by which they came—still they came. In the summer seasons camp meetings were held in different parts of the country. They were extensively planned and largely attended, resulting in good to the public in general, and much spiritual refreshing and blessing.

To this home and the society of his devoted Christian parents, their son brought his bright young wife, the dear Mary Delamar,—she was under God a valuable acquisition, a Providential mercy in answer to prayer. Son and daughter, each of true Christian families. They now look to a Destiny whose supreme comfort is the building and keeping care of God and His attending multiplied mercies. They resigned themselves to the up and down of life, with the grace of veterans, remembering the while what had come to experienced ones, who had gone that way before them,—trusting to the wisdom of Divine guidance. The young wife was not a woman of strong constitution, but a good manager at home. She accomplished much; a good adviser, she commanded respect. Her husband was a man of health and activity and managed his farm of one hundred and sixty acres with little of outside help except in harvest time. Mowing and reaping machines were not yet known, a few men in the vicinity did mowing and reaping with the scythe and cradle for their neighbors. He pastured his grass lands and fed his corn crop to cattle, horses, a few sheep and hogs. After following this course for ten years or more, he found himself well rewarded for his industry and perseverance.

When he first heard of a cook stove, he removed the fireplace and built a flue for the stove and remodeled the entire house inside and out, making it quite new. He took down the old barn and built a new large barn in another place in the shelter of a grove. Being something of a carpenter he built a schoolhouse for the district. Only a man of more than ordinary strength and activity could have performed what he did in addition to his farm work.

About this time in talking with a brother-in-law who had moved west two years before, and was now back on a visit, he learned much of interest about the west. Thinking about it, he decided that if opportunity offered and he could be away from home a few weeks, he would go and see that new country in the west. Some months later the opportunity came. Being much pleased, he located some lands he wished to buy. The following year he went again. When he returned he was grieved to learn of the death, in his absence, of his saintly mother.

More than ten years before, the parents had sold their home to the son and wife and now the winter previous to going west, they sold out to his sister. The spring and summer follow with most busy preparations of all kinds for the departure and journey west.

The wife had brought home from the weavers a beautiful colored carpet of fifty yards and also a bolt of plaid flannel, both made from lamb's wool. Then there was the drying of fruit, apples, pears, peaches and cherries from the orchard, now weighted by more than a thousand bushels of fruit. The canning of fruit so extensively was not known of as yet, besides it could not be carried so well as the dry. Then there was a general visiting journey to be made to the mother's early home. On her return, she said like a fond mother, her little family was as good looking as any she saw.

As usual a public sale of household and farm effects was held. Father had prepared durable wagons for the journey. Mother had packed clothing and bedding and prepared an ample luncheon outfit for an indefinite camping journey if need be.

The sale is over, the goods sold are taken away. Two empty wagons are driven to the door where they become well loaded covered wagons. In the morning early they all take a bite of breakfast, returning thanks to God for many mercies, claiming guidance and preserving mercy and care through dangers seen and unseen. And the empty house echoes back the voices that say to it—"Good-by, Good-by."

Though railroad maps now show a network of lines, not one then existed between their Ohio home and Chicago. The first east and west railroad was the Baltimore & Ohio, only a few miles of the eastern portion being constructed. The only one crossed on the journey was a line running between Toledo and Cincinnati.

It is early in October the start is made and it is the last days of the month when the party arrives at its new location in western Indiana. At the beginning of each day, while the husband grooms and breakfasts his patient, faithful horses, the wife breakfasts her family from the well supplied luncheon cabinet, and coffee or tea she makes at the landlady's kitchen. At noon the horses are rested for a time, watered and fed and the family refreshed by a camp fire if no house is in view. Fair weather and good health help to make the journey one of rest and pleasure.

A village property was secured as their home for the winter, and until the farm could be fenced and a house could be built. Father secured osage orange seed and planted out a nursery of his own from which to transplant into rows where he wanted a fence that high winds would not blow down, nor prairie fires burn. To break the new sod ground for farming he hired men whose business it was to drive a number of large heavy oxen and do ditching. The school building was only across the public square and mother ever prompted her children to faithfully attend school while it was so near and to be diligent in their studies. The second winter whooping cough and measles came to the village. This was the occasion of a long and trying illness to their family, not one of whom had ever had either disease, and the care of the children who were all seriously ill was heavy on father and mother. To get help was next to impossible, no one was working if they could help it because of illness, and the cold, stormy weather. The trained nurse was not known then. Faithful wives and mothers, who served in their own domestic relations in health and illness, helped their neighbors care for their sick. With summer came the moving to the farm.

Such a happy condition to be in the country once more. A very sanatorium for the dear wife and mother. Her health had been much impaired in the hard conditions of the village life of nearly two years. The illness in her own family had been more than ordinarily severe and she had been ill herself. Every day she had prepared the children for school, and the men for work on the farm, and in addition there were encroaching claims of society and business, and no suitable help to be obtained. Her limited strength had been overtaxed and while the change to the country home brought the rest of new environment and greater quiet, she found it necessary to be down a few hours during each day to gain strength for her duties. By wisely directing the children she was saved many steps and assisted in the every-day routine of housekeeping.

The up and down of life to which the two had resigned themselves when married brought such material prosperity—the acquisition of property; hardship which was an inevitable consequence of life in a new country, then indeed the frontier; also the joys and sorrows so sure to come to any family. The son married but the three daughters remained at home, assuming the care of house and farm as the parents laid it down. The leading of the Lord was always sought and mother loved to dwell on his ways in the family, of which she was repeatedly assured.

Dear father and mother, we love them much, but Christ hath loved them more. He says, “I go to prepare a place for you,”—We surrender all to Him. Mother says, “At the farthest it can’t be far.” At another time, “Have you forgotten to thank God that I had no pain?” And again, “My mansions are above.”

After a lingering illness, resulting from a severe cold, without pain or organic ailment, she departed this life, fortified by the Christian believer’s lifelong hope of a blessed reunion with the redeemed and sainted ones gone before—around the throne of their God and Saviour.

121. George Cosgrove Kinnear<sup>s</sup>.

(92) As long as Seattle stands, the name of Kinnear will be an honored one in the city. It is perpetuated in Kinnear Park and in other public projects which owe their existence to his efforts and are the result of his sagacity and his public spirit. Dealing in real estate, he became one of the capitalists of Seattle and contributed in most substantial measure to its upbuilding and development. A native of Ohio, he was born in Pickaway County in 1836 and was taken by his parents to Tippecanoe County, Indiana, the family home being established on the banks of the Wabash, the father there building the first log cabin at La Fayette. He was three years of age when his father purchased land on Flint Creek and there erected a brick dwelling from brick which he made on his land, while the floors, lathes, doors, window frames and casings were of black walnut. George Kinnear had reached the age of nine years when the father started with his family for Woodford County, Illinois, taking with him his flocks and herds.

GEORGE KINNEAR,

George Kinnear spent the time in the usual manner of farm lads at the old home on Walnut Creek, in Woodford County, until the outbreak of the war. Years afterward there was to be a home coming in Woodford County and Mr. Kinnear in response to an invitation to be present on that occasion, wrote that he regretfully declined the invitation but gave an account of his experiences and recollections of the early times in that locality. From this we quote, not only because it gives an excellent picture of the life lived there in that day but also because it gives a splendid idea of the literary talent of the man who in the intervening years had advanced from poverty to affluence and had become a prominent figure in the community in which he lived. He said; "In the year 1851 when I was a boy, we settled in Walnut Grove. Then and for several years thereafter our postoffice was at Washington and there is where we did most of our trading. Near by where we built our house was the old camp ground of the Pottawottomies. Their camp ground was strewn with pieces of flint and arrow heads and their old trails leading off in different directions remained. During the summer time I went to Washington twice a week to have the prairie plows sharpened and while the work was being done I would stroll about and peer into the little stores and shops, which were interesting to the boy raised on a farm and not used to town life."

With the outbreak of the Civil War he joined the Forty-seventh Illinois Regiment, with which he remained until mustered out in 1864. On his way home while crossing the Mississippi, he said, "I have chewed tobacco for eleven years. This is no habit for a young man to start out in life with," and threw into the water a silver pocket case full of tobacco. That was characteristic of Mr. Kinnear. If once he decided that a course was wrong or unwise he did not hesitate to turn aside, for he never deviated from a path which he believed to be right. It was this fidelity to all that he thought to be worth while in the development of character that made him the splendid specimen of manhood, remembered by his many friends in Seattle.

Following his return from the war his mother handed him thirty six hundred dollars—his pay, which he had sent her while at the front to help her in the conduct of household affairs. With the mother's sacrifice and devotion, however, she had saved it all for him and with that amount he invested in a herd of cattle which he fed through the winter and sold at an advance the following spring, using the proceeds in the purchase of two sections of Illinois land. He not only became identified with farming interests but from 1864 until 1869 held the office of county clerk of Woodford County, Illinois, proving a most capable and trustworthy official in that position. On retiring from the office he concentrated his energies upon the development and cultivation of his land and while carrying on farming he would purchase corn in the fall and place it in cribs, selling when the market reached, as he believed, its best point. In the meantime he studied conditions in developing the northwest. His attention was first called to the Puget Sound country in 1864 and thereafter from time to time his mind returned to that district. Knowing that the waters of the sound were navigable he believed that one day a great city would be built there and after ten years, in which he pondered the question, he made a trip to the northwest in 1874, looking over the different locations. He was most favorably impressed with the site of Seattle and before he returned to Illinois he purchased what is known as the G. Kinnear addition on the south side of Queen Anne Hill. He then returned home and four years later, or in 1878, he brought his family to the northwest. He felt that investment in property here would be of immense advantage and as fast as he could sell his Illinois land at fifty dollars per acre, he converted the proceeds into Seattle real estate, much of which rose rapidly in value. There was but a tiny town here at the time of his arrival and from the beginning of his residence on the sound he did everything in his power to make known to the country the possibilities and opportunities of the northwest and to aid in the development of the city in which he had located. He favored and fostered every measure which he believed would prove of benefit to the town and country. In 1878-9, he labored strenuously to secure the building of a wagon road over the Snoqualmie Pass and as the organizer of the Board of Immigration he had several thousand pamphlets printed, sent advertisements to the newspapers throughout the country and as the result of this widespread publicity letters requesting pamphlets arrived at the rate of one hundred or more per day and for several years after the printed supply had been exhausted the requests kept coming in. Just how far his efforts and influence extended in the upbuilding of the northwest it is impossible to determine but it is a recognized fact that Mr. Kinnear's work in behalf of Seattle has been far-reaching and most beneficial.

In 1886, at the time of the Chinese Riots, he was captain of the Home Guard and in that connection did important service. The anti-Chinese feeling in the northwest found expression in action in the fall of 1885, when the Chinese were expelled from a number of towns along the coast by mobs and an anti-Chinese Congress was held in Seattle which promulgated a manifesto that all Chinese must leave the localities represented in the Congress on or prior to the first day of November. The authorities in Seattle prepared to resist the lawless element and the 1st of November came without the Chinese having been driven out of Seattle. On the 3d of November, the Chinese were expelled from Tacoma and the spirit of hatred against the Mongolians grew in intensity along the coast. As the weeks passed the leaders of the anti-Chinese forces continued their activity and it became increasingly evident that there was serious trouble ahead. One morning ten or a dozen men met in Seattle, among them Mr. Kinnear, and he proposed that a force of citizens be organized and armed for the purpose of holding the mob element in check. All present agreed and subsequently a company of eighty men armed with breech-loading guns was organized and given the name of the Home Guards. Mr. Kinnear was made captain of this organization and arrangements were made for signals to be given to indicate that the mob had actually begun the attack. As several inaccurate accounts of the riot have appeared, Captain Kinnear published a small book, giving a correct account of the whole anti-Chinese trouble and from this the following quotation is taken.

“On Sunday morning (Feb. 7th), about eleven o'clock, the old University and Methodist Episcopal Church bells sounded the signals. At a meeting the previous evening a committee had been appointed to take charge of the removal of the Chinese. They proceeded to the Chinese quarters with wagons, ordered the Orientals to pack up, then, with the aid of the rioters, placed them and their baggage onto wagons and drove them to the dock at the foot of Main Street, the intention being to load them onto the Steamer Queen, which was expected from San Francisco at any hour. Upon the arrival of Captain Alexander with the Queen at Port Townsend, he first learned of the situation at Seattle and when he arrived at the Ocean Dock he ran out the hot water hose, declaring he would scald all persons attempting to force their way onto the ship. They willingly kept at a distance. But the city was completely in the hands of the mob. The acting Chief-of-Police Murphy and nearly all of the police force were aiding the lawless acts. Early in the day Governor Watson C. Squire, being in the city, issued his proclamation ordering them to desist from violence, to disperse and return to their homes. Their only answer was yells and howls of defiance. He ordered out two military companies stationed in the city to report to the sheriff of the county for the purpose of enforcing the laws. A squad of eighteen men from the Home Guards escorted C. K. Henry, United States Department Marshal, to the front of Dexter Horton's Bank, where the governor's proclamation was read to the howling mob. They were furious at the presence of the armed men and would have attacked had the Guards not promptly returned to their quarters at the engine house. The removal of the Chinese from their homes continued till there were about three hundred and fifty herded on Ocean Dock awaiting the transportation by rail or steamer to carry them away. A strong guard of rioters was placed over them. Only those who could pay their fare were permitted to board the ship. The citizens subscribed a portion of the money to pay the fares of one hundred, being all that could be carried on the boat. In the meantime a writ of Habeas Corpus was issued by Judge Roger S. Greene, detaining the vessel and requiring Captain Alexander to produce the Chinese then on his vessel at the court room next morning at eight o'clock, that each Chinaman might be informed of his legal rights and say if he desired to go or remain; that if he wanted to remain he would be protected. Early in the morning of the 7th, the Home Guards were ordered placed where they could best guard the city. The entire force was posted at the corner of Washington Street and Second Avenue and details sent out from there to guard a portion of the city. That night a portion of the Guards and the Seattle Rifles took up their quarters at the Court House, Company D remaining at their armory. The authorities were active during the entire night in doing everything they could to enforce the laws. Governor Squire telegraphed the Secretary of War, also General Gibbon, commanding the Department of the Columbia, the situation. About midnight an attempt was made to move the Chinese to a train and send a part of them out of the city that way, but the Seattle Rifles and Company D were sent to guard the train and succeeded in getting it out ahead of time. While most of the mob that had not yet retired was down at the train, a squad of the Home Guard was detailed to take possession of the north and south wings of the Ocean Dock upon which were quartered the Chinese, watched over by McMillan, Kidd and others, all of whom were prevented by the Home Guards from leaving the dock. By daylight the Seattle Rifles and University Cadets with a squad from the Home Guards were lined up across the two wing approaches to the main dock. In the early morning the mob was gathering again and soon the adjoining wharves and streets were blocked with angry men who saw they were defeated in keeping charge of the Chinese. As their numbers increased, they became bolder and declared their purpose to kill or drive out the Guards. Early that morning after warrant was issued by George G. Lyon, Justice of the Peace, the leading agitators were arrested and locked in jail, where they were confined at the time the Home Guards escorted the Chinese from the dock to the court house pursuant to the Writ of Habeas Corpus issued by Judge Greene. Of course there would have been a skirmish somewhere between the dock and the courthouse if the anti-Chinese forces had not been deprived of their leaders. At the conclusion of court proceedings, the Home Guards escorted all of the Chinese back so that those who were to leave on the Queen might do so and the others went to the dock to reclaim their personal effects which they had carried from their houses or which were carried there by the mob. At this time the leaders who had been arrested had been released from jail on bail, at least some of them had, and they acted as a committee to disburse money which had been raised to pay the passage of those Chinese who wanted to go to San Francisco on the Queen. The committee or some members of it, were permitted to go upon the dock, but the mass of anti-Chinese forces were held in check by the Home Guards, Seattle Rifles and University Cadets, who maintained a line across the docks extending from Main Street to Washington Street. The numbers of the disorderly element were increasing and there was every indication of trouble ahead. President Powell of the University had been mingling among the crowd and informed us that they were planning to take our guns away from us. The Guards had been expecting this and were prepared all the time for trouble. After the Queen left, the remaining Chinese were ordered moved back to their quarters where they had been living and the Chinese were formed in column with baskets and bundles of all sizes which made them a clumsy lot to handle. In front was placed the Home Guards, the Seattle Rifles and the University Cadets coming two hundred and fifty yards in the rear. The march began up Main Street. The Home Guards were well closed up as they had been cautioned to march that way. Crowds of men were on the street, but they gave way. But on our left, on the north side of the street, they now lined up in better order and as the head of the column reached Commercial Street and alongside the New England Hotel, at a signal the rioters sprang at the Guards and seized a number of their guns, which began to go off. The rioters instantly let go the guns and crowded back. They were surprised that the guns were loaded. One man was killed and four wounded. This seemed to have the desired effect on them. Immediately the Guards were formed across Commercial Street looking north. The Seattle Rifles and University Cadets formed on Main Street facing the docks, where there was a large crowd, a few men were faced to the south and east, thus forming a square at Commercial and Main Streets. The dense mobs were in the streets to the north and west. To the north as far as Yesler Way the street was packed full of raving, howling, angry men, threatening revenge on those who were interfering with their lawlessness. I selected Mr. C. H. Hanford and Mr. F. H. Whitworth and directed them to press the crowd back so as to keep an open space between our line and the front of the mob. Many of the mob were seen with arms. At the time of shooting, several shots were fired by the mob, one ball passing through the sheriff's coat, but none of our men were hurt. Back a distance a number of the leaders mounted boxes and by their fierce harangues tried to stir the mob to seek revenge. There was no order given to fire. The men understood their business and knew when to shoot. We remained in this position about half an hour, until Captain Haines, with Company D, appeared coming down the street from the North, the mob cheering with great delight and opening the way to give them free passage. Shortly afterwards the mob called on John Keane for a speech. He mounted a box in front of the New England Hotel and made a speech in the following words: 'All of ye's go to your homes. There has been trouble enough this day.' Then the Home Guards, Rifles, and Cadets conducted the Chinese to their quarters and then marched to the courthouse, which from that time on, with Company D, was their headquarters."

In the afternoon of that day Governor Watson C. Squire proclaimed the city under martial law and the Guards and militia with the assistance of the Volunteers were able to maintain order in the city. In the meantime the President of the United States ordered General Gibbon, who was stationed at Vancouver, to send federal troops to the aid of Seattle. On the morning of the 10th, Colonel de Russy arrived with the Fourteenth Infantry to relieve the Guards and militia, who had been on constant duty for three days and nights without sleep or rest. With the arrival of the regular troops the disorderly element quieted down but the leaders of the Guards and militia feared that when the federal troops were withdrawn the rioters would again attempt to control the city. Accordingly, the Home Guards, the Seattle Rifles and Company D were all raised to one hundred men each and another company of one hundred men was raised. These troops, which represented men from every walk of life, drilled constantly and it was well that they did so, for as soon as the regular troops had gone, it became evident that the mob was taking steps to organize an armed force. Conditions were so unsettled for several months that it was necessary for the four hundred men to continue their drilling and to be constantly alert. Eventually, however, the excitement died out and quiet was restored and business again went on as usual." Too great praise cannot be given Mr. Kinnear for the course which he pursued in connection with these riots. He recognized at once that the greatest public enemies are those who seek to establish mob rule and overturn the forces of order and good government and he recognized the necessity of maintaining the rights of all. His insight was equalled by his public spirit and courage and he deserves the lasting gratitude of Seattle for what he did at that time to maintain her honor and good faith.

Mr. Kinnear at all times manifested a deep interest in the welfare of the city and in working for its improvement kept in mind the future as well as the present. In 1887 he gave to the city fourteen acres of land which overlooks the Sound from the west side of Queen Anne hill and which, splendidly improved, now constitutes beautiful Kinnear Park. It is one of the things of which Seattle is proud and as the city grows in population its value will be more and more appreciated. In many other ways Mr. Kinnear manifested his foresight and his concern for the public good and he was a potent factor in the development of the city along many lines. His qualities of heart and mind were such as combined to form the noblest type of manhood and in all relations of life he conformed to the highest moral standards. He was not only universally conceded to be a man of unusual ability and one of the foremost citizens of Seattle, but he was personally popular. In the spring and summer of 1910 he and his wife toured Europe and at that time wrote a number of extremely interesting articles relative to the different countries through which they traveled, and these articles are still in possession of the family. Of Mr. Kinnear it has been said: "He was upright in stature—honest, energetic, clear-headed and generous. He met his responsibilities fearlessly and lived his life worthily. He was willing to be persuaded along right lines—but he was not to be badgered. He was as kind hearted as he was hearty and he had not been sick since the war." During the later years of his life, Mr. Kinnear traveled extensively and took the greatest pleasure in being in the open, near to Nature's heart. On the 21st of July, 1912, he spent a day on Steilacoom Plains, returning by automobile in the evening. On the following morning he was seen watering the flowers on the front porch and later entered the house, awaiting the call for the morning meal, but when it came, life had passed and he had gone on as he wished, without a period of wearisome illness, but in the midst of health and action and good cheer.

John Richey Kinnear, civil war veteran, lawyer, a member of both territorial and state legislatures and of the constitutional convention, died at 4:15 o'clock Sunday, March 31st, 1912, of paralysis. A widow, Mrs. Means Kinnear, whom the former state senator married in Bloomington, Ill., forty years ago; a son Richey M. Kinnear, of the firm of Kinnear and Paul; a daughter, Miss Leta Kinnear; a brother George Kinnear, of Seattle, and a sister, Mrs. Eliza Davidson, are the immediate surviving relatives. The funeral will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m., from the family residence, 338 Olympia Place. Stevens Post, G. A. R., of which Mr. Kinnear was a former commander, will have charge of the services. Though incapacitated for business by his last paralytic stroke, Mr. Kinnear was strong enough to be taken from his home, and had planned, late Saturday night to make a visit to the home of Frank Paul yesterday in company with his son, former State Senator R. M. Kinnear. From the time J. R. Kinnear came to Washington, in 1883, until he retired from the senate in 1895, he was a prominent figure in Washington politics, narrowly missing the Republican nomination for governor at the first Republican state convention, after statehood. His friends had carried King county, but the delegation from Seattle did not reach Walla Walla, the convention city, until 2 o'clock on the morning of the convention and in the meantime friends of Elisha P. Ferry, a former territorial governor, had captured a majority of the convention delegates.

Mr. Kinnear was elected to the territorial legislature a year after he settled in this state, re-elected at the end of that term and was chosen in 1888 to sit in the territorial senate. The granting of statehood prevented the meeting of the legislature, but when Washington was admitted he was elected immediately to the upper branch of the legislature, serving eight years in the senate. Subsequently his son, R. M. Kinnear, was elected to the state senate from the same district his father had represented. Though an active and well known attorney in Illinois, Mr. Kinnear was not active in his profession after he came to Washington, though both as a member of the legislature and in the constitutional convention his legal training won him prominence on the judiciary committees.

He was chairman of the constitutional convention committee on corporate rate, and directed the work of framing those sections which deal with corporate powers. During the civil war Mr. Kinnear suffered from sunstroke, and indirectly that accident was responsible for his coming to Seattle. He had been compelled while living in Illinois to leave for a Northern country during the summers to escape the intense heat of the Middle West, and in 1881 visited his brother, George Kinnear, in Seattle. His decision to move to Seattle, where extremes of heat and cold were both unknown, was formed immediately. Mr. Kinnear was born in West Point, Ind., July 26, 1842, moving seven years later to Woodford county. His early education was in the public and private schools of Indiana, and he was completing a four years' academic course in Knox college, Galesburg, Ill., when he responded to a call for troops during the civil war. He enlisted in the Eighty-sixth Indiana volunteer infantry, serving three years and participating in Sherman's famous march to the sea. After the close of the war Mr. Kinnear studied law in the Chicago law college and practiced in Paxton, Ill., until he came to Seattle. During the time he was in law school, Mr. Kinnear wrote a history of the civil war record of his regiment and brigade, a work that has been accepted as one of the best regimental histories published for Indiana troops.

Wilson Sherman Kinnear was born in Circleville, Ohio, May 25, 1864, at the age of four years he was taken by his parents to Ottawa, Kansas. That was in the days when Kansas was settling up. The pioneers were breaking land. The Kinnears were not rich and like the rest had a hard time to get along. From the day he was large enough to help, young Kinnear was his father's companion on surveying tours, he did not go through college but was a student at the Kansas State University from 1881 to 1883. In 1885, Mr. Kinnear worked in the engineering department of the Kansas City, Clinton & Springfield, then a new road. He left this position after a few months and became assistant Engineer of Maintenance and way for the Missouri Pacific in Kansas City from April, 1886, to August, 1887, he was division and office engineer of the Gulf, Colorado & Santa Fe. November 13, 1887, Mr. Kinnear married Miss Caroline Nichols, daughter of Townsend Z. and Eliza Ann (Garlick) Nichols. Mrs. Kinnear's uncle, Dr. Datis Garlick, was one of the first promoters of fish culture in America. For more than a year following his marriage Mr. Kinnear engaged in private practice as a civil and hydraulic engineer, at Los Angeles, California. Soon after Mr. Kinnear was tossed to the other side of the globe. The North and South Improvement Company wished to build 700 miles of railroad in Chilli and sent Kinnear as associate engineer. After he had been there a while he was made engineer in charge. It was at the time of Balmaceda; the spirit of revolution was in the air. In the quaint old city of St. James or Santiago Chili, Mr. and Mrs. Kinnear lived at the Hotel Odo. They found Santiago cosmopolitan, with a decided Spanish flavor. Kinnear was seen each evening, with his wife, slowly strolling the Alemida, Santiago's principal boulevard, the lounging place of the fashionable throng. The ladies wore French toilets, the gentlemen were in military dress. Kinnear mingled on even terms with senators and other Chilean gentry. The revolt and overthrow of Balmaceda caused Mr. and Mrs. Kinnear to decide to quit the country. They sailed in a French steamer bound for Harve de Grass. It was six week's voyage. The ship touched at all the leading South American ports and finally straightened away for France. For two weeks she was in the doldrums and it seemed as if that voyage would never end. A few weeks in Paris and London and they made up their minds to return to the United States. Soon he was engaged to work on the Toronto, Hamilton & Buffalo railroad and in 1898 he went to Detroit as the principal assistant engineer; then followed promotion as assistant superintendent of the Canadian division; in 1902 he was appointed assistant general superintendent, operating department; and in August, 1902, Kinnear became Chief engineer, held the office of assistant general manager, besides was selected to build the Detroit river tunnel. This tunnel, a unique feat in engineering, about which so much has been written, was an entirely new departure in tunnel construction. Instead of digging a tunnel under the bed of the river a trench was dug in the river bed itself and the huge cylinders of steel and concrete were dumped into the trench from the scows and the sections connected by divers. It is a tremendously big thing Mr. Kinnear has done, and he has done it as he does all big things, very quietly. The great work of building the Detroit River Tunnel, was done by the Michigan Central Railroad Company at a cost of $10,000,000, or more. Mr.

Kinnear said the tunnel so absorbed his personality that when his friends met him they did not say "How are you?" but "How's the Tunnel?" The University of Kansas, as recognition of his great achievement conferred on him the honorary degree of civil engineer. Upon his retiring as engineer of the Michigan Central, Mr. Kinnear came to Kansas City as President of the Kansas City Terminal Company and has had the responsibility of the whole terminal and station project. The labyrinth of detail in the plans entail the spending of 35 million of dollars; at this time (1912) he has resigned from the presidency of that company to become the head of a 26 million dollar concern, the United States Realty and Construction Company of New York, at a salary of $50,000 a year. He spends his leisure playing golf, rain or shine; and a worthy antagonist he makes. During the building of the Detroit tunnel he was the honored guest at a "Sub-aqueous dinner" given by the "Snow Birds" and the unique menu contained a sketch of his life written in the parlance of the golf links. "On May 25, 1864, he teed up and drove off in this little game of life at Circleville, Ohio."

(134) Lawrence Kinnear son of W. S. Kinnear, who is a student at Kansas University (1912), taking a course in civil engineering, is a golf player of unusual attainment and took part in the national amateur golf tournament held at Detroit.

134. ii. LAWRENCE Willson Kinnear<sup>7</sup>, b. December 27, 1892. Is a graduate of K. U. 1912.

(Rev. D. K.)

Marion, Ohio, June 12, 1847.

“Mr. George Siggins,

My Dear Uncle:

Many years have passed away since I enjoyed the unspeakable pleasure of visiting you and your lovely family. I often think of you, and pray that the Lord will bless you. I have been a missionary for nearly six years among the Indians. During all this time my labors were too much for my health, and the result was that my strength entirely failed.

I was united in holy matrimony to Miss Elizabeth Lee, at the Indian Manual Labor School in the Indian Territory, west of Missouri, March 10, 1840. She was born in the State of New York. Both before and after our marriage she was a teacher in the school. To me she is an help-meet indeed. In consequence of my broken health we moved in the year 1842 to the South and I was appointed to Ope-tansas Station in Louisiana, my health gradually improved, my dear wife taught school, we labored for the church to the utmost of our ability. The harvest was so great and the laborers so few, that we exerted ourselves beyond our strength. More than a year ago I volunteered to be a Missionary to the people of color, and blessed be God, I never enjoyed myself better than while preaching to the poor black people in the South. The Lord has blessed my labors among them, if the Lord spares me I hope to preach to them while I live. May the rich blessing of Almighty be upon the poor black people, both bond and free, and may they and we meet in heaven to part no more forever.

Few people have labored more actively, and endured more hardships than my dear wife and myself, but the blessed Lord has been with us in the North and in the South, among the white people, among the red people and among the black people; we have had the pleasure of seeing many of all these classes converted to God, and rejoicing in his love, and by Divine Grace we hope to end our lives in this glorious cause.

We are now at my dear mothers, Dinah Kinnear's, on a visit, enjoying all the pleasures and comforts of her sweet home, here is our greyhaired venerable mother, the only surviving member of her father's family, her mind is yet strong and active; this is in all probability the last time we shall enjoy her company in this world, may the Lord sanctify this visit. We purpose to return South, next fall and remain there in the vineyard of the Lord till we fall asleep in Jesus, thanks be to God for the glorious hope of heaven. It is probable that I will soon depart this life.

We frequently hear from you through letters from our other relatives. I have been for several years collecting from my friends facts relating to my ancestors, relatives and others, connected with the family-copies of their family records, items genealogical and historical, and have written more than one hundred letters, have more than one hundred pages in manuscript—have arranged one also for my brother, Delmar Kinnear, and am writing one for my mother. I wish you to give me all the information you can in reference to your family, and what has taken place since I was with you. Tell me when and where any of them experienced religion. I have written a long letter to Uncle John Greer; we understand that our grand-parents, the Rev. William and Jane Young, are removed from where they were buried. I wish to know when and by whom this was done, where they are now buried and what their epitaphs are. The bones of Joseph were taken from Egypt nearly four hundred years after his death, and buried in the land of Canaan, and the whole account recorded; in like manner let us pay respect to our honored dead.

In conclusion, dear Uncle Siggins, we pray the blessing of the Lord, his Grace and Providence be upon you and yours until we all meet in heaven.

Our highly esteemed mother sends you her most cordial respect, in love and friendship, all the family join her in love to you and yours.

Very respectfully yours,
David Kinnear."

P. S. My highly esteemed mother enjoys good health considering her advanced age; very few widows are as comfortably situated as herself, or as much loved and venerated by their offspring; nearly all of her children have the love of God in their hearts and are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. D. K.

She had a strong mind, amiable manners, and was remarkably benevolent; she was one of the most holy women that ever lived, and had a testimony before her death that she would die on a certain Sabbath, and so she did, and that too in the most triumphant manner. ## YOUNGSVILLE.

In the spring of 1796, Mathew Young, a Scotchman and a bachelor, "pitched his tent" on the site of the borough of Youngsville, and began a career which justly entitled him to the distinction of bequeathing his name to the beautiful and prosperous village that sprang up around him. Young lived for many years the life of a recluse. He taught school, a calling for which he was well adapted, being well educated, and a friend and a general favorite of children. In 1807 he built the first saw mill, on what is called the Siggins water power. He died on the 4th of August, 1825, while on a visit to Charles Smith, in Deerfield township, and was brought back in a canoe and buried in the village cemetery at Youngsville. His remains now lie in the cemetery of the Odd Fellows. He is described, by one who well remembered his appearance, as being tall, slender and erect, with light complexion and (in later years) with white hair. He was simple in character, earnest in his purpose and eccentric in his habits, with a kind heart for all, and an integrity that was never tarnished." As early as 1800 Mathew Young carved the quaint word "YOUNGVAL" on a large stone which stood for many years on ground now covered by the brick hardware store, and which was used as a doorstep. The name, Youngville, was naturally given to the place as soon as it became a settlement, in the first decade of the present century (1887).

Hist. of Warren Co., Pa., p. 403.

Matthew Young erected a log cabin on the banks of the Brokenstraw creek, about thirty rods below where the bridge now crosses that stream in Youngsville, and cleared a small space, perhaps an acre, and cultivated it, living in his cabin just a sufficient length of time to gather the products of his "patch". He was little inclined to agricultural pursuits, and spent the greater portion of his time with the other settlers along the Brokenstraw. Finally he settled down, making his home with John McKinney, who lived about half way between Youngsville and Irvington. He died August 4, 1825. The original patent is now and has been for years, in the possession of Mr. C. V. Kinnear.

SCOTCH AND SCOTCH-IRISH YOUNGS.

We have been unable to establish any relationship between the family of Dinah (Young) Kinnear, the mother of Rev. David, and the several Young's of whom we give sketches, viz.:

Matthew Young of Youngsville, Pa., Rev. S. Edward Young, Capt. Thomas Young, Alcinius Young, David Young, Rev. John A. Young, Rev. Jacob Young, W. J. Young, but it is deemed advisable to publish this information.

Rev. S. Edward Young discusses the Men of that Blood.

Rev. S. Edward Young, of the Second Presbyterian Church, preached a sermon on "Scotch and Scotch-Irish Blood in Western Pennsylvania." His text was Ezra vii.; 27, "Blessed be the Lord God of our fathers." He said in part:

"A Scotchman direct on my mother's side, Scotchman via Ulster on my father's side, I hope to discourse impartially. A Scotch-Irishman is a Scotchman born in Ireland—born there actually or in person of ancestor, with possible flavoring of Puritan, Quaker, or Huguenot; yet never inter-marrying with Irish; Scotchmen forever, amongst shamrock or goldenrod. Ireland's Columba evangelized, Scotland gave Ireland St. Patrick. Panorama unfolds—savages gospelized, exalted into a Kenneth Macalpine, Wallace Bruce, John Knox, Robert Burns, Walter Scott, Alexander Duff, Hamilton, Chalmers, Drummond, Gladstone. Scotch colony transplanted to soil of Erin, betwixt Giant's Causeway—Grampian Range extended under sea, and Carlingford Lough, Scot and Irishman warring everlastingly, Presbyterian, Ulsterman ground beneath tyranny's iron heel, migrating for freedom's cause to America, principally to Pennsylvania, most venturesome filing along Juniata to Alleghenies and westward, battles with French and Indians and British, and forest with ravenous wild animals and rattlesnakes, with hunger and cold; conquering every foe, pioneers to Carolinas, indicting Mecklinburg Declaration of Independence, furnishing author and one-fourth the signers to the declaration of July 4, 1776; half the presidents of the United States, Scotch blood ceasing to flow when Abraham Lincoln's heart stopped beating; producing half of the Presbyterian ministers, besides soldiers, jurists, inventors, educators beyond reckoning; building Pittsburg and Allegheny and adjacent institutions of learning. Washington and Jefferson ranking topmost in America for proportion of great public men graduated or prepared; Christianity, the passion—matchless record of the race, 'Blessed be the Lord God of our fathers.' To lift your being to its loftiest, make their God your God.

CAPTAIN THOMAS YOUNG.

Before Leonard Calvert, and his overwhelming Protestant Colony, as the Jesuites who accompanied him declare, sailed for the waters of the Chesapeake, Captain Thomas Young, a son of Gregory Young of York, received a special commission from the King, which is printed in Rymer's Foedera, and dated September 23, 1633, authorizing him to fit out armed vessels for the voyage to Virginia and adjacent parts; to take possession in the King's name of all territory discovered, not yet inhabited by Christian people, to establish trading posts with sole right to trade, and to make such regulations and to appoint such officers as were necessary to establish civil government. In the spring of 1634 the exploring party departed, the Lieutenant of which was Robert Evelyn, a nephew of Young; Evelyn's father, of Godstone, Surrey, having married Susan, the Captain's sister. Among other officers was a surgeon named Scott, and the Cosmographer was Alexander Baker of St. Holbourns, Middlesex, described by Young as "skillful in mines and trying metals." The great object of Captain Young was to ascend the Delaware River, which he called Charles, in compliment to the King, until he found a great lake, which was said to be its source, and there to find a Mediterranean Sea, which the Indians reported to be four days journey beyond the mountains. He entered Delaware Bay the twenty-fifth of July, 1634, and on the 29th of August had reached the Falls of the Delaware.

Pa. Mag. Vol. V. (1881) p. 2-7.

Alcinous Young, was born in New Hampshire December, 16, 1796, and died in Marion, Ia., March 30, 1876, in his eightieth year. From childhood he was taught to pray by a pious mother, and at the early age of twenty-one united with the Presbyterian Church, but in 1827, after hearing the doctrine of Methodism preached, both he and his excellent companion, were so impressed that they at once identified themselves with the Methodist Episcopal Church. Being licensed to preach, he was soon after admitted into the Pittsburg Conference. For six consecutive years he lived in the midst of the most gracious revivals on Erie, Meadville, Youngsville and Deerfield Circuits. On Lisbon and Steubenville stations great additions were made to the Church. On Meadville Circuit the membership was more than doubled, leaving it more than 500 members. At Wellsburg, Va., where infidelity was entrenched, such were the exhibitions of divine grace under Father Young's labors, that the strongholds of infidelity were overthrown. These manifestations of power commenced with his labors on the first circuit, and continued through most of his itinerant career of nearly thirty years, during which, we may say, thousands were brought to Christ. The other fields of labor in Pittsburg Conference were Wesley Chapel, Pittsburg, Monongahela City, Burlington, Dubuque District, Iowa City District. He was conference missionary one year, but his health had become impaired from toil and exposure, so that he was unable to do much effective service after the close of his term on Iowa City District, which then extended from the mouth of the Cedar river to the north line of the state, including the settlements on both sides of Iowa and Cedar rivers. Roads were then unmade, streams unbridged and settlements far distant from each other, and consequently he was compelled to endure the hardships of pioneer life. For nineteen years his name has been on the superannuated list; but he has been loved and revered by the entire Upper Iowa Conference, as he was one of the original active members at its foundation. After the death of his wife he was tenderly cared for by his children, having his home most of the time in Iowa City, with Mrs. Judge Carlton, and for the last three years with his son, Hon. J. B. Young, Marion, Iowa.

From Hist. of Erie Conference, Vol. I, p. 628.

David Young, one of the most distinguished ministers of the west, was born in Bedford County, Virginia, in 1779. His parents were pious Presbyterians, and trained him carefully in the creed and catechism. In early childhood he was serious and studious, and at the age of twenty-one he was at the head of a grammar school in Tennessee. In 1803 he experienced a change of heart, and with the conviction that he was called to the ministry, he commenced holding meetings for prayer and exhortation, and his talents and usefulness were at once recognized. In 1805 he entered the Western Conference, and from that time until 1839, with the exception of a rest of six years, he filled important appointments either as a pastor or as a presiding elder. He was a man of fine personal appearance and of great mental vigor. He bequeathed to the church the most of his fortune. He died in great peace November 15, 1858. (Bishop Matthew Simpson's Cyclopedia of Methodism, p. 971.)

According to James B. Finley, he was born in Bedford Co. Va., March 7, 1779, but according to Bishop Morris, in Washington Co., Va.

Rev. John A. Young was born in Adams County, Pa., June 18, 1815, and became of subject of converting grace and power in Springfield, Summit Co., Ohio, Dec. 25, 1832. He was licensed to preach by the Quarterly meeting Conference of the Middlebury Circuit in 1842, and admitted on trial by the Erie Conference at its session in 1843. Mr. Young was a tall, stout, athletic man, with a good constitution for labor of any kind; was also possessed of a large degree of mental power and religious zeal, and with proper culture might have made a successful Methodist preacher. For what reason we know not, he soon retired to the local ranks, where he has tried to make himself useful in that work. (Gregg's History of Methodism, Erie Conference, Vol. II, p. 210.)

Jacob Young. A notable character appears as Presiding Elder of the Ohio District in 1812. Jacob Young, a man of such evangelical simplicity and purity, such good sense in counsel, and perspicuity, and pertinence in speech, so entertaining in conversation; and of such cordiality in manner and saintliness of character, that the most obstinate opposer and most fastidious critics were won by him, not withstanding the faithfulness of his administrations, and some obvious defects, made the more obnoxious to criticism by the peculiar recitative tone of his preaching. Steven's History of the M. E. Church, Vol. IV, p. 117.)

He was born in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, March 19, 1776, near where Adam Poe had his famous conflict with Big Foot, an Indian Chief. His childhood was beset with frontier hardships and Indian perils. His mind was early impressed with religious truths and obligations. The Rev. Jacob Young, D. D., was born in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, March 19, 1776. His father was of the Church of England, his mother of the Presbyterian Church, though both were brought in after days to the feet of the Savior through the labors of their own son. It has often been said that the circumstances under which a man is born and reared have much to do in the formation of his future character, and that one coming into life amid great and stirring scenes, the offspring of parents deeply interested in the great questions of human life and human liberty would more probably be marked in his mental character with the influence of those struggles, and stamped through life with the spirit of the age. The subject of our memoir was ushered into life amid the struggles of a nation for the boon of freedom, and the parents who rejoiced in the birth of a son were permitted in four months more, to rejoice in the birth of a nation by the Declaration of Independence. The first years of our brother were passed amid the wildest scenes of frontier peril, and the objects of early familiarity were sites of renowned conflict, and the port holes of his father's cabin. When he was about fifteen years of age, his father removed to the State of Kentucky. It seems to us almost a useless attempt, even to bear a truthful and sincere testimony to his rare abilities, ripe Christianity, and unwearied labors, for the name of Jacob Young brings with it an association of excellence, is burned in imperishable characters, and over so wide a territory, that the kindling of our feeble lamp would be obscured by the ever burning light in the mind and memory of his numerous friends. He died at the home of his oldest son, in Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 16, 1859. "A Prince and a great man had fallen asleep." (From Minutes of the Conference, Vol. VIII, 1860, p. 273.)

Jacob Young came from New York State in 1838 and settled in the northeast corner of Eldred Township, Pa., where he remained to the day of his death. He was a good quiet industrious man, by occupation a farmer, and blacksmith. Three sons, Mansel, Joseph, and Wesley lived in Eldred Township.

W. J. Young (Garland p. o. Eldred,) was born in Eldred, in 1849; is a farmer; owns a farm of fifty acres. He married Effie Brown, who died March 10, 1883, leaving one child, Effie E. He married his second wife, Ida M. Klingler, in 1885. His father, Jacob Young, was born in Ohio, Dec. 4, 1802, and married Margaret McRea, of Titusville, October 22, 1829, and died Nov. 16, 1873. He had a family of ten children. The father and five sons served in the war of the rebellion, and one of his sons was killed at the battle of Gettysburg.

(136) Delmar Kinnear<sup>s</sup>, was born in Allegheny Township, Venango County, Pa., May 27, 1804. He was baptized in infancy by Rev. Andrew Hemphil. He emigrated with his parents to Pickaway County, Ohio, early in the summer of 1812; he experienced religion and joined the M. E. Church in that county in the 14th year of his age. He was a copper smith, tin and sheet iron ware manufacturer, a remarkably ingenious and good workman, had much original talent and a strong mind; he was joined in matrimony to Marinda, daughter of James and Eleanor McDugal, of Chillicothe, Ohio, January 31, 1828, by Rev. James Quinn.

Her relatives and ancestors as near as we can learn them were:

Robert McDugal was born in Edinburg, Scotland, in 1733; he married Dorcas Donnelson, in Loudon County, Va. Her parents were natives of England; they were members of the Baptist Church.

Robert McDugal died in October, 1829, in Licking County, Ohio, aged 96. Dorcas, his wife, departed this life in April, 1794, in Bourbon County, Ky.

ix. Lewis McDugal; b. August 24, 1822, in Chillicothe, Ohio.

Mrs. Eleanor (Brittian) McDugal departed this life in peace, August 7, 1826, aged 43 years, 10 months, 27 days; she was remarkably benevolent, especially to the poor, a devoted and exemplary Christian, and had long been a member of the M. E. Church.

Delmar and Marinda (McDugal) Kinnear settled in Circilville, Ohio. He was a steward and class leader; their house was a home for Methodist preachers. (Rev. D. K.)

ville, lard oil was burned in them, and they were considered a wonderful invention.

Rev. John Sailor.

At a congregational meeting of the First Presbyterian Church, held in Warren, Pa., April 1, 1850, it was resolved "That the Rev. John Sailor be invited to abide with, and preach for us a year, in consideration of which the trustees be recommended to assume and promise to pay him $400 a year—provided a sufficient sum shall be raised upon subscription, to justify their doing so. Mr. Sailor was thereupon engaged in accordance with the resolution. His ministry of five years was eventful, and was disturbed by temporary schism—if such a phrase is admissible—concerning the ownership and right of disposition of pews and slips, which seriously affected the growth of the church, and the Christian zeal of the community. On the 29th of August, 1855, at his own request, Mr. Sailor was dismissed from the pastorate, though he continued to occupy the pulpit for some time. After his departure the pulpit was long supplied by occasional preaching or reading of a sermon by one of the lay members.

In 1887, after three successive seasons of "hot winds," driving out all our settlers, I graduated from Kansas. It cost me $25,000.00 to graduate, but I never need to show my certificate to a Kansas man; a few moments talk and he will take my word for it.

My wife's health failed soon after our return to Ohio. She died at Marion, Indiana, in 1894.

While living in Ohio, I "traveled" Indiana, Illinois, Iowa and Michigan for a manufacturing company, at Massillon, Ohio, and one at Canton, Ohio, later on I married the widow of a friend of mine, who lived here when I was traveling; she was living on a suburban place of 28 acres overlooking the town. (Martinsville, Ind.) I had fallen in love with the place when visiting her husband several years before; its a good place to live; Brown County, Indiana, the "Switzerland of America" corners with our country.

business, at 501 State Street, Indianapolis, Indiana. The firm name is "The Kinnear Company."

E. Church, and continued therein a faithful Christian until his death in 1821.

On his tombstone, in Franklin, Pa., where he died is the following inscription:

(258) James Kinnear<sup>5</sup>, one of the oldest and most respected citizens of Tidioute, Warren County, Pa., has led a long and busy life in that vicinity, and is now spending his declining years in peace. Although nearly eighty-five years has passed since he first saw the light of day, he still boasts of a fine constitution, and can do more manual labor in a day than many a young man. He was born in Huntingdon County, Pa., January 22, 1814, at a place then known as Hoag Valley, but which was later called Center Valley.

When grown to manhood, he learned the useful trade of a millwright, and accompanying his father to Tidioute he assisted in building nearly every mill in that vicinity during his younger days. Mr. Kinnear was an expert workman at his calling, and was known to be the best hand to dress mill-stones, for miles around; hence his services were much in demand. He built the first steam mill in that locality, and in 1853 he also built a grist mill on Tidioute Creek, selling both a little later to a Mr. LeBeau, of New York, son-in-law of Commodore Vanderbilt, together with other property. When the oil industry was in its infancy Mr. Kinnear discontinued working at his trade, and began to deal in real estate, buying land and selling to parties in New York and other large cities, who desired to invest money in operating oil wells upon such lands. After continuing to deal in land for a few years, Mr. Kinnear reaped such a handsome competency that he was enabled to retire from active business life a long time ago. He is a son of William and Rebecca (Macelvaine) Kinnear, and grandson of Alexander and (Jane Ganley) Kinnear. William Kinnear was of Scotch-Irish stock, descending from the Hugenots. He was born May 30, 1783 in the northern part of Ireland, and accompanied his parents to America when only seven years old. In 1819 he purchased from the Indian chief, Cornplanter, of the Seneca tribe, a tract of land in the wilderness—some two hundred acres—and cleared it. Oil City, Venango County, is now situated on that farm. After selling his farm he removed to the present site of Tidioute, in 1826.

Mr. Kinnear was formerly a Whig, but is now a Republican. He served as a captain of the State Militia. He is a good and faithful member of the M. E. Church, having served as trustee for that church, and as class leader for a period of twenty-two years. He has not only been a shrewd and energetic business man, but has done much to improve and build up the town. He was one of the founders of the Tidioute Savings Bank. His helpmeet and companion has contributed largely to her husband's success, and in her he has found his best and truest friend.

(258) James Kinnear<sup>s</sup>, one of the oldest and most respected citizens of this borough (Tidioute) died on the morning of the 25th inst., (1902), in the 89th year of his age. He was a son of William Kinnear and a grandson of Alexander Kinnear, who came to America in 1790-1 and settled in the eastern part of Pennsylvania. James Kinnear was born in Huntingdon County, Pa., Jan. 22, 1814. In 1819 his father, William Kinnear, purchased from the Indian chief, Cornplanter, of the Seneca nation, a tract of land at the mouth of Oil Creek, some 200 acres, and cleared it. The business portion of Oil City is now situated on that farm. In 1826 his father sold his farm in Venango County and removed to the present site of Tidioute. As soon as James was grown to manhood he learned the useful trade of a millwright, building, in his early days, nearly every mill in this vicinity. He built the first steam mill in this locality, and in 1835 he also built a grist mill on Tidioute Creek. He purchased a farm comprising about 200 acres, extending from Depot street to Tidioute Creek. Later he sold this farm to Mr. LeBeau, son-in-law of Cornelius Vanderbilt. When oil was discovered in this locality, Mr. Kinnear dealt largely in oil lands and later was a successful oil operator. His success enabled him to retire from active business. He was not only a shrewd and active business man but did much to build up the town. He was one of the founders of the Tidioute Savings Bank, was connected with it for many years, and was ever ready in every way to encourage every worthy enterprise for the good of the town.—From the "Tidioute News."

Marshall P. Getchell was born in Waterville, Me., on the 29th day of January, 1837. His boyhood was spent in his home town where he was prepared for college. Instead of entering college, he made a trip to California in those early days, when such trips were accompanied with many hardships and adventures.

He returned by the way of the Isthmus of Panama. After crossing the Isthmus, and taking a ship for home, the ship was wrecked, but Mr. Getchell, with a number of companions, refused to desert the wrecked ship, and for four days they were expecting to be swallowed up by the sea at any time. During this time, one of their number died, and he was given the regular sea burial, Mr. Getchell reading the burial service.

After his return home, the Civil War broke out and Mr. Getchell volunteered and went out as first lieutenant in the 9th Maine Regiment. He served one year, was taken with the rheumatism and compelled to resign. He returned home, recovered and again volunteered for service. He was made major of the 80th U. S. Regiment. He was in many of the battles of the Rebellion and acquitted himself with great credit. He was a great-grandson of Zachariah Taylor, of Revolutionary fame.

At the close of the war he entered the oil business in Western Pennsylvania and settled down in the town of Tidioute, Pa. He married (281) Josephine Kinnear, daughter of James Kinnear. He was very successful, becoming at different times Burgess of the town, director of the schools, and president of the Tidioute Savings Bank.

Later he moved to Colorado, settling in the town of Gunnison, where he was also successful in business.

He died on the 27th day of April, 1902, leaving a wife, but no children.

(284) Among prominent attorneys of Pittsburgh is James W. Kinnear, head of the well-known law firm of Kinnear, McCloskey & Best. Mr. Kinnear has been for more than a quarter of a century a resident of Pittsburgh, and is known not only as a leader of his profession, but also through his identification with the essential interests of his home city.

William Kinnear, grandfather of James W. Kinnear, was a pioneer of Venango County, Pennsylvania, removing in the early part of the nineteenth century, from Juniata County, and purchasing from Corn-Planter, the chief of the Seneca Indians, a tract of land now included within the limits of Oil City. At the mouth of Oil creek, the present site of the business part of the city, he built the first furnace of that vicinity, and in other ways did much toward promoting the growth and advancement of the place. In the latter part of his life he removed to Tidioute, Warren County, where some of his descendants are still living. William Kinnear married Rebecca McIlvain.

(II) James, son of William Kinnear, was born January 22, 1814, in Juniata County, Pennsylvania, and married Jeannette Parshall, daughter of Samuel and Elizabeth (Goucher) Parshall. James Kinnear was a millwright, lumberman and oil producer of Warren County, and his death occurred February 25, 1902, and that of his wife, December 21, 1905.

(III) James<sup>2</sup> Wesley, son of James<sup>1</sup> and Jeannette (Parshall) Kinnear, was born August 2, 1859, in Tidioute, Warren County, Pennsylvania, and received his primary education in the public schools of his native village, passing thence to the high school and graduating, in 1878. He then entered Allegheny College, receiving from that institution, in 1882, the degree of Bachelor of Arts, and in 1885, that of Master of Arts. Subsequently he registered as a law student with the firm of Brown & Stone, of Warren, Pennsylvania, and after spending a year in the law department of the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, was admitted, in 1885, to practice in Warren. After spending two years in general practice, Mr. Kinnear came, in 1887, to Pittsburgh, and rapidly built up an extensive civil practice in the County, State and Federal courts. He is attorney for the Firth-Sterling Steel Company, the Western Savings & Deposit Bank, the Keystone National Bank and many other companies of Pittsburgh. In all concerns relative to the City's welfare, Mr. Kinnear ever manifests a deep and sincere interest, giving substantial aid to any project which he deems calculated to further good. His executive ability and keen business sense find exercise in the industrial world and in the realms of finance. He is vice-president of the Washington Steel and Ordinance Company, Washington, District of Columbia; director of the Pittsburg Cold Rolled Steel Company, Wolf-Tongue Mining Company, Chemical Products Company, the Firth-Sterling Steel Company and the Keystone National Bank. He is also a director of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, and president of the American Fuse Company. In politics he affiliates with the Republican party, but his professional work and business enterprises have so occupied his time he never became a candidate for office, although frequently urged to do so.

While at college Mr. Kinnear was prominent in literary circles, and is a member of the Phi Beta Kappa and Phi Gamma Delta fraternities. In 1894, he was appointed a trustee of his alma mater. He is an official member of the Emory Methodist Episcopal Church of Pittsburgh. He has given much time and attention to the Sunday School work, and is now the teacher of an adult Bible class numbering over four hundred. He is also a member of the Executive Committee of the International Sunday School Association, the World's Sunday School Association, the Pennsylvania State Sabbath School Association, and the Allegheny County Sunday School Association.

Mr. Kinnear married, May 12, 1886, Edith M., daughter of John S. and Hannah (Robertson) Rich, of Oil City, Pennsylvania, where Mr. Rich was a well-known oil operator. Mr. and Mrs. Kinnear are the parents of three children; Jeannette, Esther, and James Wesley, junior, born March 8, 1898.

James W. Kinnear is a man who has touched life at many points. By his career as a lawyer he has added to the prestige of the Pittsburgh bar, and his work as a financier and aggressive man of affairs is crystallized in the present prosperity of his city.

CONDENSED ANCESTRAL SKETCH OF KINNEAR, SIGGINS, WALKER, ALLEIN, SCOTT, AND RUTHERFORD FAMILIES.

As a matter of History, the compiler of this work is presenting a brief resume of the different lines of ancestry represented in her descendants through her father and mother.

The first one known to the writer in the Siggins line was William Siggins, of Sligo County, Ireland, who m. Mary Taylor; his son, John Siggins, m. Sarah Hood, in 1750, both of Sligo County, Ireland; she is said to have been a near relative of Admiral Samuel Hood. They were the parents of Alexander Siggins, who m. Margaret Kinnear.

John Walker, of Wigton, Scotland, was the first of his line, known to the writer, his son John, married Katheryn Rutherford in 1702. They came to America soon afterward, settling in Chester County, Pennsylvania, but later went to Rockbridge County, Virginia. Elizabeth Walker, who m. Benjamin B. Siggins, was seventh in descent from John Walker of Wigton.

Katheryn Rutherford was either a neice or full first cousin of Rev. Samuel Rutherford, the eminent non-conformist Divine of Scotland, who was imprisoned for his religious belief and practices. This same Katheryn Rutherford was the grand daughter of Rev. Joseph Alleine, author of Allein's Alarm" and many other religious works. He was silenced and deprived of his position for non-conformity. Katheryn's great grandfather Richard Allein was rector of Batcombe, in Devizes, for upwards of fifty years, and author of a "Shorter Catechism" and numerous other works of a like character.

Another ancestor of Katheryn Rutherford, Edward Northie, was mayor of Devizes from 1612 to 1635.

Elizabeth Walker's great grandfather, Malcolm (Macum) Allen, served in the French and Indian War under Captain John Maxwell—Also Captain Neville's Company from Albermarle County, Va. He also served in the 8th Virginia Regiment during the Revolution. Elizabeth Walker's great great grandfather, John Scott, born in Scotland, served in the Irish Rebellion near Londonderry—where he lost an arm, his three sons, William, Thomas and Samuel served in the Revolution, their names appear on the Muster Roll from North Carolina. Samuel Scott being the great grandfather of Elizabeth Walker, who married Benjamin B. Siggins.

Several of the Coats of Arms granted to above mentioned families we have reproduced in this book.

THE SIGGINS FAMILY.

The Ancestors, brothers and sisters of Alexander Siggins, of Youngsville, Pa., and his descendants.

The Siggins family emigrated from Scotland to Ireland, about the time the latter was conquered by King William III, subsequent to the revolution of 1688 in England.

The victory gained by William III, over the army of James on the Boyne, July 1st, 1690, and by his General Ginkel at Aghraam, July 13, 1691, assisted by the clemency with which he treated the vanquished party made him master of Ireland, and restored the Protestant ascendancy.

The Siggins, according to tradition, as did many others, received donations of lands from the Crown of England over and above their wages, for their bravery and fidelity in military achievements.

1. WILLIAM Siggins<sup>1</sup>, of Sligo County, Ireland.

They were married about 1775, in Sligo County, Ireland, soon after their marriage, both experienced religion, through the instrumentality of the Methodist preaching, in 1793, they came with their family to and settled in Centre County, Pa., in 1816, "Sister" Siggins came to Youngsville, and united with the Methodist church, then consisting of but few members, she lived to see the number increase to seventy.

"For more than fifty years she was a Methodist, and walked consistently; in every situation she was sustained; she was loved; her end was peace."

Wm. Todd.

Erie, Pa., July 8, 1836.

"Alexander Siggins and wife Margaret Siggins, joined the Methodist church in Youngsville in 1820. Rev. William Connelly was the first Methodist minister of the Brokenstraw creek, this was in 1809. Alexander Siggins was one of the pillars of the Methodist organization. He seriously objected to the introduction of the Bass Viol into the church choir, his objection took such an aggressive form that the obnoxious instrument was soon removed. He was an expert blacksmith and worked at this trade throughout his life. He owned a large farm extending from York Hill to the center of Youngsville Borough, where he built his permanent home, which is still standing (1916), it was the most pretentious house in town, and although nearly a hundred years old is still in a good state of preservation. "Uncle Alec" as he was familiarly called, lived a quiet Christian life, and Youngville lost one of its best citizens when he was called up higher."

Old Times in Oildom by George W. Brown.

"Remembers Before First Church,—Among the visitors to Youngville's centennial celebration is A. M. Davis, now a resident of Corry, Pa. Mr. Davis is 88 years of age and stated to a Mirror representative yesterday that he remembers attending church services in a house located opposite the first M. E. Church edifice and attended Sunday school in an old school house that stood where H. C. Mead's residence now stands.

Uncle Alec Siggins was the superintendent, and his father was one of the first members of the class."

MEMOIRS OF B. B. SIGGINS OF YOUNGSVILLE, PENN.

I was born in the Town of Youngsville, Warren County, State of Pennsylvania, on the 28th day of July, 1827. My mother's maiden name was Margaret Kinnear, a daughter of Henry Kinnear of the said town of Youngsville. My father's name was Alexander Siggins, who was born on the Atlantic Ocean in the summer of 1793, whilst his parents were enroute from Ireland to America. I was sent to the common schools of the Town until I completed the course of studies then taught in the town schools of those days; were morals were taught by the laying on of the rod. When I completed this course of education I was sent to Meadville College and there completed the course, excepting the dead languages. After I left college I read a course of Law in the office of George B. Delamatter, who afterwards became very wealthy in the Oil Business, having been a partner of a man by the name of Noble in the once famous Noble oil well at Pithole.

Afterwards I taught school for three or four years. During my boyhood days I became quite noted as a traveler for I had twice been away in the adjoining County of Crawford and had twice crossed over the state line into New York State, and was gone over night both times, which was something unusual for those days. In the spring of 1851 I made my most memorable trip from Brokenstraw Township, Warren County, Pa., to St. Paul, Minnesota, wholly by water. I was employed by William Finley Siggins, a lumberman to go as a hand on a raft of lumber from Brokenstraw to Pittsburgh, Pa. Then I started down the Ohio River on an Ohio Fleet, but after two days on this craft I took passage on a steamboat for St. Louis, Mo., but as the boat was destined for St. Paul, Minnesota, territory, I continued my journey up to that city, which was then quite a large place containing many large business houses and fine residences, and many wealthy people. During my stay there I visited the St. Anthony Falls, which was the head of navigation for the lower Mississippi River Boats. As I remember now there was an abrupt rise of ground on each side of the river bed, the lower side of which was about thirty feet high, over which the water flowed into the lower Mississippi. This was called the St. Anthony Falls of the Mississippi River. I worked in the office of the Secretary of State whilst at St. Paul. The next day after my arrival in St. Paul I went down to the river where there was a boat just landing, on which I found Irvine Siggins, son of William Siggins, but he left the next day. This person and one other were the only persons I ever saw during my stay in the West that I had ever seen before leaving the States.

I went from St. Paul to a small town in Iowa on the Mississippi called _____ where I remained several weeks. Whilst at this place I fell in with a man who had a government contract for subdividing Townships into sections and quarter sections. We travelled up the Coon River from Ft. Des Moines, as it was then called. The old log building used for a Fort was still there, but at this time there were no soldiers stationed there. We went from Des Moines to the land in a lumber wagon in which was stowed a canvass tent, provisions, and a regular camping and surveyor's outfit. We reached our field of work in five or six days. The Townships to be divided lay on the flats or lowlands of the Coon River and were covered with a heavy growth of grass and weeds that came well up to our necks, and often taller than our heads. We had got the first Township nearly completed when I was taken down sick with the Ague, and getting worse all the time, after four or five days, I told the contractor that I would have to throw up the job, but he insisted that I would be well enough to go on in a day or two with the work, but I refused to stay there any longer, and told him the best thing to do was for him to drive to the Fort and get another surveyor, which he finally concluded to do, for he saw I was not able to stand the work, in the condition I was in, and I was getting worse every day. When he got ready to go back to commence work again, one of the boys refused to go back with the company to work again but remained at the Fort to take care of me. He secured a good place for me to stay and remained with me until I was well enough to be up and around and take care of myself. When he was ready to start away he took out his pocket-book and offered me half the money he had, but I refused to take it, telling him that I owed him more now than I could ever pay him. He replied I did not owe him anything. I have often wished I could see or hear from him again, but when he left me he said he did not know just where he would go, and I never saw or heard from him again.

I went from the Fort early in the fall of 1851 to a town called Redrock on the Redbank River, and taught two terms of school—a fall term and a winter term. During my stay in this place I became acquainted with an attorney by the name of Allen, whom I called on after my school closed, for purpose of continuing my law reading. After I had made my business known, he asked me what books I had read. I gave him the list of books I had read, to which he replied, Well! if you have read all those books, you have read more than is required in this State, but I said I did not think I could stand the examination for admittance, without a more extended reading, but he thought I could on what books I had read. Well! he says, suppose I ask you a few questions. Very well, says I. Thereupon we selected a clean log in the woods where he was at work clearing a piece of land, which had once been burnt over, and he commenced questioning me, and kept it up for about an hour and a half. I answered all his questions, and on invitation I went home with him for dinner. I stayed with the family until the next morning. He did not go back to work in the afternoon but remained at the house to help the family entertain their boy visitor. Whilst telling them where I was from and something of my trip from Pennsylvania to St. Paul, Minnesota, I incidentally remarked that I made the trip from Pennsylvania to St. Paul, Minnesota. This seemed to require an explanation, and I proceeded to give it without being questioned. The next morning as I was arranging to leave, Mr. Allen advised me to go to Ft. Des Moines and ask Judge McPiar to appoint a committee to examine me for admittance to the Bar, saying by way of allaying any misgivings I might have over the coming ordeal, You will get along all right, my boy. It was with some regret that I said goodby to that family, for I have had nothing in all the years since but pleasant remembrances of that social feast and kindly entertainment.

I made my trip to the Fort, arriving there in the evening of the second or third day after leaving Red Rock, and called on the Judge next morning just as the family were sitting down to their breakfast, and I was shown into the dining room and invited to breakfast, but declined as I had already had my breakfast. I thought I would not make my business known until the Judge had finished his meal, but kept quiet and become somewhat restive by the numerous glances at me by the different members of the family, which fact, I think, was noticed by the Judge, for when they were about half through with their meal, the Judge looked at me and said, "What can I do for you, young man." I replied I called to request you to appoint a committee to examine me for the purpose of admission to the Bar. "Well!" he says, "How old are you?" I gave him my age. "Where are you from?" I replied Pennsylvania. Then he said, "We have been in the habit of admitting members to the Bar here on very loose regulations and superficial examinations, but I have recently adopted a new rule under which the examinations are very rigid. Then he asked me what law books I had read, and something about my education. I told him what law books I had read, and that I had completed the course taught in the Public Schools of Youngsville, Pa., and had attended a high school taught in our town and then was sent to College for two years. "Well," he said, "I will appoint a committee and they will examine you." He then wrote a note and handed it to me saying, take this to Mr. Young, and he will call the committee together. I took the note, saying that I would like to have him present at my examination, if it was convenient for him to do so. He replied that he had some papers to look over that morning and could hardly spare the time, but as I urged him he finally said, you tell Mr. Young that I would like to have him call the committee together right away and I will come around to his office to be present at the examination. Within a short time the committee was assembled, the judge present and the examination commenced and continued for an hour and a half or two hours, and resulted all satisfactorily to the committee, the judge and myself, and I was formally admitted to the Bar at the next term of the District Court of Lucas County, Iowa. After receiving my certificate of examination I left Des Moines for Chariton, in Lucas County, Iowa, where I settled and hung out my shingle as Attorney at Law. I made my trip from Red Rock in Marion County to Des Moines, thence to Chariton on foot, arriving there sometime in July, 1852. Where I put up with Henry Allen who was keeping the only hotel in the town. Chariton was then laid out with a public square in the center of the town. The Court House was a small, two story log building, the lower room being used for a court room, public meetings and dancing hall and Post Office. Bev. Searcy as postmaster, had a method of his own of distributing the mail, by untying the hemp sack, he gave the mail matter a send from the bag scattering it over the floor, at the same time calling at the top of his voice, Pick out your mail! After the parties were through gathering their mail, he picked up what was left, piling it up in one corner of the building and filling his pockets and delivering it to parties as he met them on the streets around town.

This sketch was written by my father, Benjamin B. Siggins, in the fall of 1895 or 6, when he and my mother visited us in Kansas City. E. S. White.

In the summer of 1861, my father, Benjamin B. Siggins, with his family was journeying overland from Iowa to Colorado, somewhere in Nebraska we became separated from our friends who were making the journey with us. We stopped one evening to make camp and were just sitting down to our evening meal when an old Indian Chief of the Pawnee Tribe walked into the tent. Father gave him a generous helping of warm biscuits, after eating them he went outside and soon returned with a sharp stick in his hand, this he proceeded to fill with the biscuits which remained on the table. After his departure mother made more biscuits, when we were about to resume our interrupted meal our Indian visitor returned bringing several members of his tribe with him. These were fed as the others had been, departing almost immediately thereafter. When the old Chief again returned with still other hungry men father was obliged to refuse to feed them fearing his supply of flour would not last until we reached the next town. This angered the Indians and they withdrew to some distance to hold a council to determine what should be done with us. At the end of about an hour they returned and pointing off across the prairie motioned us to be off—we were not long in taking our departure. It was a very dark night and not until nearly morning did the stars appear revealing to us the fact that we had turned completely around and were driving directly toward the camp we had quitted so hurriedly the night before. This timely discovery probably averted what might have easily been a tragic encounter to say the least.

BENJAMIN B. SIGGINS' OBITUARY.

Benjamin Baird Siggins was born in Youngsville, July 27, 1827, and died June 14, 1903. He was a son of Alexander and Margaret Kinnear Siggins. He attended Meadville College, studied law and practiced awhile in Chariton, Iowa; then went to Colorado, near Central City, where he engaged quite extensively in mining and became Judge of the Probate Court in Central City, Gilpin County, Colo. When the family moved to Colorado they made the trip across the plains with teams and covered wagons and while en route narrowly escaped being captured by the Indians on several occasions. While this little family of father and mother and three little ones, aged seven, five and two years, were on a visit in Pennsylvania, in the summer of 1864, the mother sickened and died at the home of Kinnear Siggins, near Tidioute. He then married Druzilla E. Belnap, going shortly after to Philadelphia to live, where they remained nearly three years, then returned to Warren County, Pa., where they lived on a farm five miles from Tidioute for about five years, then went to Youngsville, which was his home until his death. He was always interested in educational matters, served as a member of the school board of Youngsville for six years. By his first wife he had three children, Emma Siggins White, born Feb. 6, 1857, in Chariton, Iowa, married Hon. J. B. White, and now lives in Kansas City, Mo.; Laura Siggins Messerly, born Aug. 15, 1859, at Chariton, Iowa, married J. O. Messerly, now living at Warren, Pa., and Clinton C. Siggins, born Dec. 31, 1862, in Colorado, married Nellie Cunningham and now lives at Twin Falls, Idaho. By his second wife he had two children, Albert B. Siggins, born 1866, in Philadelphia, died in infancy, and Lida B. Siggins Hyatt, born Feb. 3, 1867, and married George H. Hyatt, of Whitehall, N. Y., and died of consumption in Colby, Kansas, June 29, 1887.

Mr. Siggins was a faithful adherent and attendant of the Methodist Church. A few days before his decease he fell into an unconscious sleep from which he did not rally, and thus from a painful lingering illness he slipped quietly, peacefully from his friends into the shadowless clime of eternal bliss. The funeral was held at the home of the deceased, Rev. J. P. Burns officiating. Those attending the funeral from out of town were John Siggins and wife, of Tidioute, David Siggins and wife, Lavern Siggins and daughter, J. O. Messerly and family, Mrs. O. W. Beatty, Mrs. J. W. Alexander of Warren, J. B. White of Kansas City, and James Culbertson and wife of Allegheny Springs, and Mrs. Clara Whitehill of Kane, Pa. From a Youngsville paper.

YOUNGSVILLE BOROUGH.

Youngsville Borough is the largest town in Brokenstraw township, and is located in about the center of the township, which was organized as "Number Four" March 8, 1821. The name Brokenstraw it seems is taken from the Indian word—Cushanadagua—bestowed upon this region from the fact that the flats along the creek once bore a grass which in the fall would break and bend over.

Youngsville is located on what was the site of a big Indian village known as Buckaloon, from here the Indians floated down the creek to the river in their canoes and committed many depredations on the settlements along the Allegheny river. In 1781 they were overpowered by an expedition under Col. Broadhead and the village of Buckaloon destroyed, to fortify his position and enable him to keep the Indians away, Col Broadhead built a Fort on the hillside between Irvine and Youngsville, the ruins of which may still be seen.

Robert Andrews was the pioneer settler in the Brokenstraw Valley, coming a short time before John W. McKinney; McKinney was an importation from Ireland, he was married in Lancaster to a Miss Arthur, who returned to the Brokenstraw region with him and their home was a place of welcome for all wayfarers and a general gathering place for the settlers of the vicinity.

In 1796, Matthew Young, a Scotchman and a bachelor, settled on the site of the town that was afterward named after him—Youngsville, he made his home with John McKinney, teaching the children in the evenings in return for his board, he was well educated and a favorite with the children, he also taught several terms of school in the neighborhood—was the second county treasurer 1821-23—built the first saw-mill in 1807—died in Deerfield Township in 1825, his body was brought back to and buried in the Youngsville village cemetery, it now lies in the Odd Fellows cemetery. He is described as being tall, slender and erect, and of very light complexion—he was simple in his character, earnest in his purposes and eccentric in his habits with a kind heart for all and an integrity that was never tarnished.

Matthew Young laid out many of the streets of Youngsville and seemed to have a prophetic vision of its relative importance in the county, in 1849 it had grown to be quite a village and was incorporated September 4, 1849, it was organized on the 15th of February following by the election of Archibald Alexander as burgess; William Siggins and John Hull as councilmen; Philip Mead as treasurer; Henry P. Kinnear as clerk; John Siggins as tax collector. James Davis is quoted as authority for the statement that as early as 1800, Matthew Young carved the quaint word "YUNGVAL" on a large flat stone which stood for many years turned upright so that all who ran might read.

The first merchant was Henry Kinnear, Sr., and the next was Henry McCullough who started a store in 1830.

The first tavern in town was the unpretentious hostelry of John McKinney. Matthew Young built the next hotel. This was replaced by the Wade House. The Fairmount House first saw the light in 1851, being built by John Siggins.

The first resident physician in Brokenstraw township was Dr. John W. Irvine, who settled at Irvineton, and the first physician in Youngsville was Dr. James A. Alexander who came in 1826 and was in active practice until 1853.

Until the year 1819, the inhabitants of all the vicinity about Youngsville obtained their mail from the earlier office at Pittsfield, but in that year Henry Kinnear, Sr., was appointed postmaster and opened what was known as the Brokenstraw office at Youngsville."

The story of the Methodist Church in Youngsville starts back in 1806 when a few families had located along the Brokenstraw creek and were engaged in lumbering and farming, they felt the need of churches and longed to have the privilege of services. Prayer meetings were held at various homes. In 1800 the first ministers regularly appointed by the Genesee Conference, preached occasionally in the Brokenstraw valley and children born of the few families were regularly baptised and communion services were held. Honest John Gregg was an itinerant preacher holding services according to the Methodist persuasion evenings and on the Sabbath, other early settlers were William Arthur, William Carpenter, William Cochran, David Carr, Abraham and William Davis, Barnabas McKinney, James and Elijah Davis, Judge William Siggins, John Crawford, John Long and Joseph Gray. Among the earliest pastors of the church may be mentioned John McMahon, 1813; Burrows Westlake, 1814; Lemuel Lane, 1815; Daniel D. Davidson, 1816; Curtis Goddard, 1817; John Summerville, 1818; Philitus Parkus and David Smith, 1819-20; Parker Buel and Silvester Carey, 1821; Parker Buel and John W. Hill, 1822; Nathaniel Reader and John Scott, 1823-24; Peter D. Horton and Joseph H. Barris, 1825; Joseph H. Barris and Dow Prosser, 1826; John Chandler and John Johnson, 1827; Hiram Kinsley and John Johnson, 1828; John P. Kent and L. L. Hamlin, 1829; James Gilmore and John J. Swazey, 1830; John C. Ayers, Samuel E. Babcock and Gideon Draper Kinnear, 1831.

In 1812, the first quarterly meeting was held with the Rev. William Connelly in charge. Presiding Elder Jacob

JOHN BARBER WHITE, OF KANSAS CITY, MISSOURI.

Mr. White had previously married Arabella Bowen, of Cleveland, Ohio. She died in 1881. Their children were: John Franklin, who died in 1900, aged twenty-four years, and Fanny Arabelle, born in 1876. She married Alfred T. Hemingway, of Chicago. Two children, Franklin White and Jane Hemingway.

John Barber White was born in Ellery Township (near Jamestown), Chautauqua County, New York, December 8, 1847; he was educated in the public schools and Jamestown Academy. Began teaching school at the age of nineteen, taught three winters, working on the farm in the summer. In 1868, in company with two Jenner brothers, purchased 200 acres of pine timber land, near Youngsville, Pa. The young men boarded themselves in the woods, cut the logs and had them sawed at a neighboring mill. In 1870 he bought out the interest of the Jenner brothers and soon with R. A. Kinnear, formed the firm of White & Kinnear at Youngsville and East Brady, Pa., and successfully continued until 1874; when he removed to Tidioute, Pa., and bought the Arcade mill and also opened a lumber yard in Scrubgrass, Pa. While there he became owner and proprietor of the "Warren County News" which he had helped to establish; he edited the paper in addition to managing his lumber business, much of the work being done at night. In 1878 he returned to Youngsville, still continuing in lumber manufacturing. He also served six years as President of the Board of Education. Their offices and mills were at Grandin, Carter County, Mo., for more than twenty years, the town itself being the product of the Lumber Company's business. He was postmaster at Grandin 1887 to 1892.

She taught school for ten years in Warren County, Pa. She belonged to the Athenaeum Literary Club and was a member of the 'History Class of '82,' of Kansas City, and also belongs to the C. L. S. C. Alumni Association. Mrs. White was one of the organizers of the Kansas City Chapter D. A. R. in Old Public School Building, Youngsville, Pa. WHITE MEMORIAL BUILDING on the right.

1906, and was made chairman of the Patriotic Education Committee, and has served for seven years as Historian; in 1913 was elected vice regent; she is at this time (1916) chairman of the Patriotic Education Committee having held the office since the organization of the Chapter. The principal work accomplished by the committee has been the furnishing of the library of the "Boys Hotel" of Kansas City, an institution where one hundred homeless boys are housed and given not only a home, but proper instruction and training; the library is a large and most comfortable room; the book cases contain over two thousand carefully selected books, and the walls adorned with handsome and instructive pictures. A scholarship for one of the boys at this home has been maintained for several years. This committee has had framed copies of the Ten Commandments hung in eighty-two of the public schools and in nearly every public building in the city, and has edited and had printed several thousand pamphlets containing a simplified version of the Constitution of the United States, in Italian and English and distributed them in the Italian settlements in Missouri and other states. In 1913 they started a campaign to make Lincoln's birthday a legal holiday in Missouri, several thousand petitions were circulated, hundreds of letters and telegrams were sent to the voters all over the state and every influence used to bring about the desired legislation, but it failed to carry when brought to a vote. At the next session of the Legislature the Bill was again introduced—still greater effort was put forth with the result that on March 19, 1915, it was passed thereby paying just tribute to one who with a genius of foresight never yet excelled guided the fortunes of a disrupted Union through four years of the most tragic of its existence to the glorious culmination of a Reunited Republic. "With malice toward none, with charity for all; with a firmness in the right, as God had given him to see the right" that was Abraham Lincoln, often and with peculiar fitness called "Father Abraham." Mrs. White, in January, 1915, was appointed a member of the Mayor's Commission on Unemployment and was one of the Commission to assist in providing work for the unemployed through the rigor of that severe winter. Graduated from Wellesley College, Wellesley, Mass., in 1907, has since spent two years in the University of Wisconsin studying Economics and Sociology and 1913 studying German in Berlin. The Kansas City Star, July 16, 1911, says of Miss Ruth White's work under the Board of Public Welfare: "Visiting among the women workers in the laundries of Kansas City often in a temperature of 124 degrees is not an occupation one would choose for the summer months. Yet that has been the work of Miss Ruth White in her investigations for the Board of Public Welfare. Miss White has talked with every woman operative in Kansas City since she began obtaining her information in February. There are more than a thousand of them. June was reserved for her investigations in the laundries for the most trying conditions under which laundresses work prevail in the summer months.

"The result of the investigations into the labor conditions in Kansas City by the Board of Public Welfare has been compiled by Miss Ruth White and is now being published. A social survey of this nature, containing detailed information as to the wage, home life, recreations, etc., of each operative is expected to yield data on which remedial legislation can be founded." "LIFE AND LABOR," A Monthly Magazine published by the National Women's Trade Union League in Chicago, in the January, 1912 issue, commends the Kansas City Child Welfare Exhibit, held in November, 1911. It points to the fact that the booth telling the girls' wages could not fail to impress the visitor with the need for a living wage. This exhibit was under municipal auspices—the Board of Public Welfare—who vouched for the statement in great red letters: NINE DOLLARS A WEEK IS A LIVING WAGE IN KANSAS CITY. "Life and Labor, says, "To Miss Ruth White is due the credit for the masterly presentation of facts regarding the wages of working girls. Her untiring efforts have made possible, in Kansas City at least, a better understanding of the dangers of a six-dollar a week wage and the justice of the growing demand for a minimum wage."

In January, 1915, Miss White was appointed a member of the Mayor's Commission on Unemployment and gave two months of very active service in connection with the women's branch of that Commission. In June, 1915, she was appointed vice president of the School of Social Service, and was also chosen one of its lecturers and delivered a course of ten lectures on Industrial Problems of Foreign Countries in the spring of 1916.

REUNION OF VETERANS OF THE WAR OF 1812.

"On the 12th of June, 1869, a number of the surviving soldiers of the War of 1812-15, met in Warren.

Hon. William Siggins was chosen president of the meeting and Robert Miles, secretary.

They passed resolutions regarding the granting of pensions to soldiers of the last war with England, and were hospitably entertained by L. L. Lowrey, Esq., at the Carver House, with a dinner sumptuous in its appointments.

The veterans present were as follows: Zachariah Eddy, of Warren, aged ninety years; Robert Miles, of Warren, aged seventy-six years; Stephen Olney, of Warren, aged seventy-eight years; John Geer, of Glade Township, aged seventy-eight years; Emanuel Crull, of Tidioute, aged eighty years; Caleb Thompson, of Pine Grove Township, aged seventy-seven; John Brown, of Brokenstraw Township, aged seventy-three years; William Siggins, of Youngsville, aged eighty years; Isaac Lopus, of Pittsfield, aged seventy-seven years; Elisha Sterling, of Limestone, aged eighty-one years; Ira Badger, of Pine Grove, aged seventy-four years; and Joseph Ackley, of Pine Grove, aged seventy-nine years; were veterans of the same war but were unable to attend."

History of Warren County, Pa., p. 137.

When men were needed to reinforce Commodore Perry, at Erie, in 1813, the four sons of John Siggins responded; they were:

William Siggins, who was first sergeant.

George, John and Alexander, they marched to Erie, but were not called upon for active service.

(393) Carter Verow Kinnear<sup>s</sup>, was born in Venango county, January 8, 1815, when Warren county was a wilderness. When he was eighteen years old his father died. He took up the business followed by his father, at once, and began to sell goods, on a small scale, however at first. He was engaged in the mercantile business, more or less, for a period of fifty years, occasionally paying some attention to the lumber trade. On the 19th of May, 1836, he was appointed and commissioned a Justice of the Peace by Joseph Ritner, then Governor of the state. In 1842 a change having been made in reference to the office of Justice of the Peace, it now being made an elective office, he was elected by the voters of Brokenstraw township for a term of five years. He was reelected in 1847, in 1852 and in 1857, holding the office continuously for a period of twenty-four years. He was County Auditor for a period of ten years, and represented the county in the State Legislature in the session of 1852 and 1853. In 1871 he was elected and commissioned an associate judge of the county and served in that capacity during a term of five years. Judge Kinnear was an ardent and persistent friend of the common schools. He was a director for almost a quarter of a century, and during that time he paid strict attention to the management of the schools. He assisted in dividing the township into the necessary sub-divisions for school purposes, superintended the erection of the school houses, employing teachers and bringing the schools into successful operation. Judge Kinnear was a self made man. With but the slightest advantage for acquiring an education in his youth, he managed, by his own effort to acquire a store of practical knowledge, of more real utility to him and his neighbors than most of the learning found in books.

He was a charter member of Youngsville lodge No. 500, I. O. O. F., and served as its financial secretary over twenty years.

He built the first brick house in Youngsville. He was known as "The poor Man's Friend" often giving legal advice without remuneration.

(393) Judge C. V. Kinnear, a native of Venango County, Pennsylvania, moved to Warren County, as a young man, where he was engaged as a merchant and lumber dealer. He was very successful, and a very prominent man. Identified with the industries of Youngsville, his judgment was valued and his advice sought in business ventures. He married Rachel Rebecca Dyke. Judge Kinnear was a Republican, serving a term in the State Legislature very capably. Then Associate Judge of Warren County for five years. Having been previously elected Justice of the Peace in Youngsville, he held that office thirty-two years. He was conscientious and wise in making decisions so that appeals were rarely made to higher courts. He died September 6, 1884.

(572) W. D. Kinnear, son of Judge Carter Verow Kinnear, was born in Youngsville, Pennsylvania, Dec. 12, 1847, attended the State Normal school at Edinboro, Pa., and Allegheny college, at Meadville, Pa. He was chief burgess for the borough of Youngsville, being elected for the third time. One of Warren County's foremost citizens. Engaged in mercantile business in 1864, which he conducts with his son, Frank D. Kinnear, who is a popular business man. They conduct a high grade business, their store being one of the best in Warren County. W. D. Kinnear is vestryman in the Protestant Episcopal church. In politics a staunch Republican, has been Justice of the Peace, and member of the borough council. Member of the A. O. U. W. Married, 1st, Jennie F. Smith, 1873; they had one son, Frank D. Kinnear. Married 2nd, Flora F. Hoffius, 1885, daughter of Thomas Hoffius of Youngtown, Ohio, Children, Orin V., Lucile and Howard C. From History of Warren County.

Willard J. Davis, commonly known as "Jeff," aged 55 years, one of the most prominent residents of Youngsville, died suddenly at his home in that village at an early hour this morning (May 2, 1910). Mr. Davis was the proprietor of one of the leading stores of the village and this morning opened his store in his usual happy spirit. He returned in a short time to his home on College street, only a short distance from the store, and complained of a severe pain in his stomach. He sat down and expired in a few moments.

Mr. Davis was a veteran of the Civil War, a prominent member of the I. O. O. F., and was highly respected by all who knew him.

HON. HENRY PUNCABEE KINNEAR.

(396) "Hon. Henry Puncabee Kinnear (Youngsville), one of the successful business men of Warren county, was born in Youngsville, July 26, 1816, devoted his entire business life chiefly to the lumber interests from which he retired in 1882. He was elected sheriff in 1843 and again in 1861; and was a member of the Legislature in 1846-47 and 48; he also held minor offices in the town. He is now a director and superintendent of the chartered Point Chautauqua Company on the Lake, which has a capital of $100,000. On March 28, 1842, he married Abigail Morgan of Chautauqua county, N. Y. They had four children—George W., Harry C., C. F. L., and Florence D., the latter married M. D. Whitney. George W. enlisted in Company I, One Hundred and Eleventh Pennsylvania Volunteers and served to the close of the war. Henry P. was a son of Henry and Margaret Kinnear. They were born in Ireland—he in 1764, she in 1776—and were married in Center county in 1797. They had a family of nine children—James, Ann, Margaret, Rebecca, Judge Carter V., Robert, Charles, and Hon. Henry P., one died in infancy. Henry P. is the only surviving one. They settled in Youngsville where they purchased a tract of land, in 1816 Henry engaged in the mercantile trade, being the first merchant in that township. He was appointed recorder and commissioner of Warren county by the governor, and also acting Justice for several years. Mr. Kinnear's mother, Margaret, was never sick a day, and lived until she was 105 years old when she died from a fall. Henry Kinnear died in 1826, and his wife in 1856. (Warren County History, 1887.)

The Youngsville Savings Bank was established in 1875, with Henry P. Kinnear as First Vice-President, later he succeeded John McKinney as President of the Bank, and remained in office until his death June 28, 1885. He had joined the Methodist church on probation in 1876.

His father, Henry Kinnear, was constable of Venango County in 1810, and received a wound while attempting to reprehend a prisoner from which he never recovered; he died March 6, 1826.

In the interest of the History of Youngsville and of Warren County, as well as in justice to a good man, I am glad of the opportunity to pay a tribute to the memory of Honorable Henry P. Kinnear. He was my friend and I was his friend, and I feel that I knew him so much better than many others that I can truthfully speak of some of his sterling virtues, and feel it both a pleasure and a duty in so doing.

I first made his acquaintance in 1869, and was present at the dedication of the Odd Fellows Cemetery of Youngsville by Grand Lodge Officers of Pennsylvania, of which Mr. Kinnear was one, on October 19, 1869. Past Grand Sire J. B. Nicholson of Philadelphia acted as M. W. Grand Master and Honorable Samuel P. Johnson delivered the Historical address. It was a great and grand occasion. There were delegates sent from the Warren, Titusville and Tidouite Lodges and large numbers came from nearby towns, and it was the largest assembly of people that Youngsville had ever seen within her gates.

To Henry Kinnear was due the success of this great public spirited undertaking. It was the proud culmination of his untiring activities begun in 1866, when he and two other trustees purchased the ground for this purpose. Later, on November 29, 1884, I was one of the five incorporators of the Odd Fellows Cemetery Association of Youngsville, Pennsylvania, and Henry P. Kinnear was one of the three trustees and remained so as long as he lived. He it was who caused the remains of Matthew Young, the founder of Youngsville, to be removed from the old cemetery and re-interred in a location near the center of the new cemetery; and to him is due the selection of the rough granite boulder—appropriate as a monument to the plain, solid, unpolished Scotch character—in which is sunk a copper plate suitably engraved. Some years later he took me to his own cemetery lot and showed me a grave already dug and lined with brick, and I understood that it was prepared in advance for himself when it would be uncovered and opened when needed. Henry P. Kinnear was first in every movement for the progress and elevation of the people. There was nothing done for the better development of the community and for the advancement of the town that he did not lead in promoting. He was a leader in the work for better schools. I well remember the fight for a new school building. He took three or four carpenters with him to Sherman, N. Y., to examine a new school house just built in that village of about the size of Youngsville. Plans were brought back and he succeeded in getting them approved and the right school directors elected, and the school house was built in spite of violent opposition. This school building still stands, now veneered with brick, and is an historic monument to his civic pride and his love of educational advancement. He was a leader in the agricultural fair movements, when it used to have its annual meet at Youngsville. He was an exceedingly modest man. He admired and gave great praise to others for their good deeds, oftentimes when he himself was the moving spirit, but took no credit to himself. I recollect that one morning when the mail had been received he announced that he had a letter from Horace Greeley, and that he had accepted the invitation to make an address at the Agricultural Fair. Everyone was pleased. But Greeley was a poor penman, and later it was discovered that what he really did write was his regret that he had to decline the invitation.

He was one of the first—with Vincent, Miller and others—to start the first Chautauqua, on the west side of Chautauqua Lake, but told me he tried to buy the Bemus farm at Bemus Point, because of its high and beautiful location. Later he was the leader in developing and building up and laying out the grounds at Point Chautauqua, on the east side of the lake.

HENRY P. KINNEAR,
BORN 1816.

He served two three-year terms as Sheriff of Warren County, and was a member of the State Legislature in the session of 1847. In February of that year he got a bill passed making the bridge across Brokenstraw Creek at Irvineton a County bridge. Thirty-two years later I was in the Legislature and on petition of 1,017 citizens of Warren County, of which he was one, I had passed a bill repealing this act and making it a Brokenstraw Township bridge. He told me that at the time he got the bill passed there was no railroad in Warren County, and the entire west half of the County had to drive over that bridge in going to the County seat, and that the east half of the County had to drive over that bridge in their travels to Titusville, Erie and other places west, and that it was an unjust burden for Brokenstraw Township to keep up the bridge for the entire County—that they had done it for a long period of years previous to 1847, but that as the County had kept it up for thirty-two years since 1847 and as there was now two railroads running from Warren west through Irvineton up the Brokenstraw Valley, he believed that now the Township should take care of the bridge, the County having built a new one. I think everyone recognized that his reasoning was just.

His father was born in Ireland in 1764, and came to this country in 1790, and to Youngsville in 1816, where he built the first store in the village. He was commissioned a Justice of the Peace and in 1819 was appointed one of the first commissioners of Warren County, serving two years. Henry P. Kinnear no doubt inherited some of his Irish diplomacy and resourcefulness from his ancestors. He was often engaged in manufacturing lumber and in running rafts of lumber down the Brokenstraw and on down the Allegheny River. As illustrating his resourcefulness, I remember his telling me of his running logs down Matthews Run—a small tributary of Brokenstraw Creek. In fact it was so small where it ran through the farm of Samuel Hull that he fenced it up in two or three places by running his fence across the creek through his fields. Kinnear had a lot of logs up the creek above these fences and was waiting for a raise of water in the Creek so that he could run them through into the Brokenstraw. Neither argument nor diplomacy would avail with Mr. Hull. He remained obdurate and told Kinnear that the only way that he could get his logs would be to wait for snow and haul them on sleds in the public road. As it was late in spring, Kinnear knew that there would be no more snow that season, and as he was in the Legislature, he had hurried through an act making Matthews Run a navigable stream for the running of saw logs. When Mr. Hull saw that he had been outwitted, he yielded to the new law, but it was doubtless a long time before he became reconciled to the practical joke. But I think that neither Mr. Kinnear nor any one else ever again used that stream for the running of logs.

Mr. Kinnear was a good rifle shot. His marksmanship was well known, and I am one who has reason to know of its excellence—in my trial of skill with him, where the score was found to be largely in his favor, after he had too generously announced it more favorable to myself.

Such straws are indices to character. In the winter of 1882 and 1883 I had invited him, the Methodist minister of Youngsville, and two other gentlemen of Warren County to hunt and fish in the region of my Company's lumber plant in the Ozark hills of Missouri, where they spent a few weeks and had a good time. The day they left Mr. Kinnear called me aside and told me that while hunting in the woods the day previous he saw what he supposed was a black bear, at which he took careful aim and fired, and the "bear" dropped; when he reached his game he found it to be a dog—his bullet had sped true, and the dog was dead. In coming out of the woods he met the owner of the dog and told him of the humiliating incident and asked him to call on me, and that I would act for him in settling for the dog. There has never been a very stable market for dogs in southeast Missouri, and when the owner came in a few days later, I was able to conclude a settlement so that it only cost Mr. Kinnear ten dollars. The story got out, but he always bore the references to it in the best of good humor.

Henry P. Kinnear was born July 26, 1816. He died June 28, 1885. He was generous and kind; an earnest friend to the poor and the unfortunate; and was a most useful man in the community and a great helper in church and social work. He built the parsonage for the Methodist Church, of which he was a member. I remember that at one time he promoted a Bell Social to raise money to purchase a bell for the new school house, and some hand bills were sent out that at this musicale Kinnear was to sing a solo and I was to play the accompaniment. It helped draw a crowd and the money was raised. His song was "The Wolf Went up the Mountain," but my playing on the organ was unnamed in any polite language.

Mr. Kinnear has been long and is yet sadly missed by those who yet live that knew him. The children loved him, and they missed his "Santa Claus"; and those whom the children love have much of sunshine and goodness in their character.

Some one ought to write up the history of all those good old pioneers, and of some of the people of later date, in the history of Youngsville and of the Township of Brokenstraw, for the benefit of their descendants and for the descendants of their neighbors and friends of this and of succeeding generations.

There is history in cemeteries, and 'tis there will be found the index to much of the history that should be written and preserved.

Roscoe H. Kinnear. The lumbermen of Kansas City, Mo., and the southwest were grieved to hear of the death of Roscoe H. Kinnear, one of the best known young men in the yellow pine industry, of pneumonia at his home in Kansas City. He had been sick only six days. Roscoe Kinnear had earned the respect and affection of all with whom he had come in contact and the news of his passing away made many a man regretful that he would see his kindly face no more. Roscoe H. Kinnear was brought up in the lumber business. He was born at Youngsville, Pa., and at an early age became acquainted with the details of the lumber trade. His father, R. A. Kinnear, being a lumberman, and for a time a partner of J. B. White in Pennsylvania. Captain White says of the deceased that his company never had a better salesman, or a more faithful, honest, upright man; this expression crystallizes the ex-

Last Thursday morning the community of Youngsville was grieved to learn that on the evening before Mrs. L. J. Kinnear had suffered a stroke of paralysis and would probably not recover. She never regained consciousness but failed steadily until death came early Sunday morning. Funeral services were held from the house yesterday afternoon at 2:30, Rev. B. L. Perry officiating. She was laid to rest in the I. O. O. F. cemetery. Mrs. L. J. Kinnear has been a life long resident of Youngsville. She was born a short distance north of town, the daughter of Joseph and Ann Mead, who owned a farm near the Brown farm; she and Mr. George Brown were children together. She was the last of a family of six, and had she lived until March 10, 1915, she would have been seventy-four years of age. Louisa A. Mead was united in marriage to L. J. Kinnear on December 30, 1860, enjoying nearly fifty four years of married life with him. Mr. Kinnear will certainly miss the companion of so many years and is entitled to the sympathy of the community. Aside from the husband two daughters survive, Miss Bell Kinnear, and Mrs. E. D. Cody, both of Youngsville. No other near relatives survive. Mrs. Kinnear united with the Methodist Church of this village when but a girl, and has been an active member ever since, holding several important offices in the church. Surely Youngsville has lost an estimable lady in the death of Mrs. Kinnear. (From a Youngsville paper, 1915)

“Dead of a broken heart.”

Lewis J. Kinnear's death follows closely that of his wife.

An accute attack of what is known as hardening of the arteries of the heart, caused the death of L. J. Kinnear at his home on Main Street, Friday, February 26, 1915. For ten days or two weeks he suffered intensely from trouble that medical science was unable to alleviate, and only death could relieve. Funeral services were held at half past three, Tuesday afternoon, from the house, Rev. B. L. Perry officiating. The floral tributes spoke mutely of his wide circle of friends and of the love in which he was held. Beside several Old Soldiers the following from out-of-town were present at the funeral: L. W. Olds and wife of Corry, Murry Olds of Corry, Miss Terrill of Erie, Mr. Garner Terrill and wife of Tylersburg, Mrs. Emma Bowman of Falconer, Mrs. W. E. Rhodes of Corry, Mrs. Ransom of Clarendon, Mrs. Baker of Warren, Mrs. W. W. Whitehill of Kane, Mrs. Cash Alexander of Corry, Ford Cody of Coneaut, Ohio, Mrs. Clint Pugh of Coneaut, Ohio, Mrs. Emily L. Mead of Bradford.

Mr. Kinnear was a highly respected resident of Youngsville. He was born in this place on July 7, 1838, and has made his home here all the years of his life. He was a carpenter learning the trade from his father. Twenty years ago he built the house in which he spent the latter years of his life. He was one of the honored "Boys in Blue," enlisting in Independent Company C, Pennsylvania Volunteers, and serving with them in many important engagements of the war, until its close, when he was honorably discharged on July 7, 1865. He was a charter member of the Robert A. Kinnear Post, G. A. R., and was elected to the office of Quartermaster, holding the position since the organization of the Post. The G. A. R. had charge of the services at the grave. He was also a charter member of the Workmen's Lodge of Youngsville. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. E. D. Cody and Miss Belle Kinnear, both of this place. Mrs. Kinnear died about eleven weeks ago and sorrow for the loss of his wife hastened Mr. Kinnear's death. For fifty-four years they have lived together—and when relentless death took the one it wounded the other with a sorrow that could not be comforted. H. C. Kinnear was a cousin of Lewis, who will mourn him as a brother, for there existed between the two men a friendship exceeding that of many brothers. They both learned the carpenters trade together as young men under L. J's. father and have worked together much of the time since. (From a Youngsville paper Feb. 1915)

Mr. Kinnear was an active man during his long life, and his many friends will be saddened to learn of his death. He was a member of a prominent family, and widely known in this vicinity.

He served in the Civil War as a member of Co. D, 111th Pennsylvania Infantry. Among the many important battles in which his Company was engaged was Gettysburg, where they won special praise for their valiant work. He was with Sherman on his march to the sea. While a resident of Youngsville, Mr. Kinnear was elected to the office of Register and Recorder and in that capacity served the county very faithfully and with distinction to himself for a number of years. Upon his election he moved to Warren, where he has since made his home, with the exception of a short time during which he lived in Kane. By profession he was a gun-smith and upon the completion of his duties as Register and Recorder he moved to Kane to follow his trade, later returning to Warren and taking up the same line of work. Near relatives left to mourn their loss are his wife, three children, Guy Kinnear and Nellie G. Kinnear, both at home, and Harry J. Kinnear who also lives in Warren. Two brothers survive H. C. Kinnear of this place, and C. F. L. Kinnear, who is somewhere in the West. Mrs. M. D. Whitney, of Youngsville, is a sister. (From a Youngsville paper)

(135) Rev. David Kinnear, in his history of the Kinnear family says: "Robert and Elizabeth (Verow) Kinnear, and many of their relatives were members of the Church of England.

(9) Robert Kinnear, was in Ireland before 1764; belonging to the Scotch-Irish families, he was probably a kinsman of James Kinner<sup>1</sup>, but the relationship is unknown; he married Elizabeth Verow; both died in Ireland. D. K.

(675) Henry Kinnear, was an officer in the English Army (Light Horse), for about ten years, he was sent to America to buy horses, for the English Army; after shipping the horses he resigned from the Army. In 1797, he was married to (387) Margaret Kinner, they settled in Centre County, Pa., where on July 17, 1803, he obtained a certificate of naturalization.

The following inscription was taken from his tombstone:

IN MEMORY OF HENRY KINNEAR
WHO DEPARTED THIS LIFE, MARCH 6, 1826,
IN THE 62nd YEAR OF HIS AGE.

(675) Henry Kinnear, Sr., son of Robert and Elizabeth Kinnear, was born in Ireland on Easter Sunday, about the year 1764. He came to this country about the year 1790. After passing a short time in the eastern part of Pennsylvania, he settled in Center County, where he remained a number of years. He married in 1797, Margaret Kinnear, daughter of Thomas and Margaret (Kinnear) Kinnear. He came from Center County to Venango County, near Titusville and came to Youngsville in 1815. During this season he purchased a part of Mathew Young's tract, built and occupied a small log house, and in the following summer erected a small frame store house. These buildings stood about on the site of the present Odd Fellows hall. Henry Kinnear was the first merchant in Youngsville. On the 6th day of August, 1816, he was appointed and commissioned a Justice of the Peace by Simon Snyder, then Governor of the State. His commission was recorded in Franklin, Venango County, Pa., on the 27th of August, 1816, and again in Warren County the 19th of December, 1820. In 1819, he was appointed one of the first commissioners of Warren County, continuing in that office two terms. Besides clearing his land and cultivating in some measure his farm, he kept a store sufficiently stocked to supply the needs of the community, and continued an acting Justice of the Peace during his lifetime. About the year, 1810, while Henry Kinnear was acting in the capacity of constable in Venango county he had a warrant for the arrest of a notorious ruffian and desperado, named Polen Hunter. Against the threats of the criminal, Kinnear attempted his forcible apprehension, when he received from Hunter, a wound in the hip from which he never recovered. It is said he succeeded in obtaining pecuniary redress for the injury. He died on the 6th of March, 1826. He had a family of nine children, five sons and four daughters, all now dead, but many of whose children are residents of Brokenstraw township or Youngsville borough. Henry P. Kinnear and C. V. Kinnear have been perhaps the most prominent of his sons in Youngsville. The latter was born in Venango County on the 8th of Jan., 1808, and came to Warren County with his father, in 1815. Upon the death of his father he took up the trade, and continued to be one of the prominent and active merchants of Youngsville for a period of fifty years, besides being engaged to some extent in the lumber trade. On the 19th of May, 1836, he was appointed and commissioned a Justice of the Peace by Governor Joseph Ritner. When this office was made elective in 1842, he was the choice of the voters of Brokenstraw township, and by successive re-elections, held the position for twenty-four years. He was county auditor for ten years, represented the county in the State Legislature in the session of 1852 and 1853, and in 1871 was elected and commissioned Associate Judge of the county, and served in that position for five years. He was a warm friend of the common schools, serving as director for nearly a quarter of a century. He died September 8, 1884. Henry P. Kinnear was born in Youngsville, on the 26th day of July, 1816. As soon as he reached years of discretion, he began to manifest an interest in public affairs, and as has been said by another, he became a politician because he could not help it. He served two terms as sheriff of Warren county; the first from 1843 to 1846, the second from 1861 to 1864. He was a member of the Legislature in the session of 1847 and 1848. It was he who obtained Charters for Youngsville Borough, also the Odd Fellows Cemetery Association. He died, June 28, 1886.

1795—FRANKLIN 100 YEARS OLD—1895

Franklin, Pa., June 30, 1895. Just 100 years ago today General William Irvine and Andrew Ellicott arrived at Fort Franklin, and, in accordance with an act passed in the Spring of 1795, proceeded to survey and lay out in town lots what is now the City of Franklin. In July, 1828, the borough of Franklin was incorporated and Gov. Thomas Mifflin appointed William Irvine, Andrew Ellicott and George Wilson, agents, to dispose of the lots to the highest bidders. The sales took place in Philadelphia. There was little demand for the lots, and prices paid ranged from five dollars down to eighty cents.

Franklin derives its name from Fort Franklin, which was erected on the present site of the city by Jonathan Hart in the spring of 1787. The Revolutionary war had left the country in the possession of the Americans. The French had evacuated their forts, and the English had been driven from the State. To encourage emigration Fort Franklin was erected to protect the people from the Indians. George Power settled here in 1795.

Under the act of April 14, 1828, the first election for borough officers occurred here, on the second day of May, when a burgess, and five councilmen were elected, as follows:

Burgess, John Broadfoot. Constable, Robert Kinnear. Council: John Singleton, J. R. Sage, Alexander McCalmont, John Galbraith, Myron Park and William Bennett.

An act incorporating the City of Franklin passed both branches of the Legislature, March 24, 1858. Our first Mayor was T. A. Dodd.

Franklin is one of the most beautiful cities of the State, being laid out at the foot of beautiful hills, and at the junction of the Allegheny river and French creek.

Many of Franklin's citizens have filled conspicuous places in history. Generals Jesse Reno, Alexander Hayes, and Alfred B. McCalmont won distinction in the Civil War; John Galbraith and Arnold Plummer were Congressmen; J. Ross Snowden, State Treasurer and Director of the mint in Philadelphia; James Thompson, John C. Knox and John Trunkey were judges of the Supreme Court; Dr. George R. Espy was Auditor General.

On the 4th and fifth of September next will be held a celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of the town."

From newspaper clippings in a scrap book belonging to Miss Justina S. Siggins.

IRVINE.

General WILLIAM IRVINE, in 1785, explored a portion of the Allegheny Valley in quest of good lands to be donated to Revolutionary soldiers. The men to whom more credit is due than all others in preserving for all time one natural feature at least, of which the eye never wearies, were General William Irvine, and Col. Andrew Elliott, the commissioners appointed by Governor Mifflin to lay out the town of Warren; this they accomplished by simply running Water street parallel with and next to the river bank, thus leaving an unobstructed view of river and street for a distance of more than half a mile.

William Irvine was born at Fermanagh, Ireland, November 3, 1741. Educated at the University of Dublin, he studied medicine and was sometime surgeon in the English Navy. After the peace of 1763, he removed to Pennsylvania and settled at Carlisle. He was a member from Cumberland county of the Convention which met at Philadelphia on the 15 of July, 1774, and recommended a general Congress. He was a representative in the succeeding conference of the Province. In 1776, he raised and commanded the Sixth Penn'a regiment, and was captured at Trois Rivieres, Canada. On the third of August, was released on parole, exchanged May 6, 1778. The same year he was appointed Colonel of the Second Penn'a regiment, and the 12 of May, 1779, a brigadier general. He served under Wayne during that and the following year. In the Autumn of 1781 he was stationed at Fort Pitt, intrusted with the defense of the north-western frontier. In 1784 he served as a member of the council of censors. In 1785 he was appointed by the president of Penn'a an agent to examine the public lands of the state, and suggested the purchase of "Triangle" thus giving to Penn'a an outlet upon Lake Erie. He was a member of the Old Congress of 1786-8, and of the Constitutional Convention of 1790. In 1794, Gov. Mifflin appointed him with chief justice McKean, a commissioner to go to the western counties. He served as member of Congress from 1793 to 1795. He was president of the Pennsylvania Society; Society of Cincinnati. He died at Phil. July 29, 1804.

Dr. William A. Irvine was born in the old fort at Erie, Pa., September 28, 1803, and died at his residence near Irvine, Warren county, September 7, 1886. He was descended from the branch of the old Scotch family of Irvine, which settled in Ulster, Ireland, under a grant from James VI. of Scotland. His grandfather William Irvine was a general in the War of the Revolution, and an intimate friend of Washington, whose letters now in the possession of the family, show that important movements in the struggle for the independence of the colonies were committed to his command. Dr. Irvine's father, Callender Irvine, was in command of the fort at Erie when his son was born. As General William Irvine, then Commissary-General of the United States, died in 1804, Callender was summoned to Philadelphia to take his place, which office he retained until his death in 1840. The journey was made on horseback, the child being carried the entire distance in the arms of his father. His correspondence with President Jefferson reveals the confidence of the author of the Declaration of Independence in his ability and integrity, and that he was directed to look after the speculations of Indian agents in this part of the country. He had inherited lands in Warren and Erie counties, some of which were granted to General Irvine for military services. After receiving a liberal education, William Armstrong Irvine studied medicine, and was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania. Immediately upon his graduation he removed to Irvine, which was his home from that time until his death. In 1843, he married a daughter of Stephen Duncan, a prominent planter of Mississippi, of this marriage two daughters survive, Mrs. Thomas Biddle and Mrs. Thomas Newbold. At the time of his death Dr. Irvine was president of the Pennsylvania branch of the Society of Cincinnati, and vice president of the general society.

The territory of Freehold remained practically unbroken by the ax of the pioneer until about 1802, when James Irvine and others came in, though Mr. Irvine was the only one who remained permanently. James Irvine was born in Northumberland County, Pa., about 1773-4 and died at Wrightsville, in 1849. He was half brother to Guy C. Irvine of Pine Grove, and Andrew Irvine of Glade. He settled on the west side of the creek at Wrightsville in September, 1802, where he built the first house this side of Pittsfield. During the rest of his life which he passed here, he was a prominent lumberman and farmer of this region, and held a number of the township offices. He was a justice of the peace almost from the beginning until that office was made elective. Samuel Irvine, who came to his farm near Wrightsville from Pine Grove, married a daughter of James Irvine, by whom he had six children. Andrew Irvine was born near Watsontown, Pa., and emigrated to Bradford County in 1813-14. He was a tanner and currier by trade and followed that business in Towanda, and in some measure here in connection with farming and lumbering on the river. He died at his home in Glade in 1853, and was followed by his widow in 1866. His eldest daughter, Jane D. died there in June, 1886; Mary F. died in 1876; B. Franklin died in Tununangwant, N. Y.; Guy C. and Thomas resided in Glade, and a daughter, Catherine Parker, lived in Bradford. James McAfee, father of Mrs. Andrew Irvine, was a native of Northumberland County, served in the War of 1812, at Erie, Buffalo and other points. During his stay in Glade he lived with Andrew Irvine and died about 1855.

FRANKLIN METHODISM.

The first white man to settle within the bounds of Venango County was a Scotchman, John Frazer by name, who was engaged in business at Venango. In 1753, Edward Shippen, of Lancaster County, wrote to Governor James Hamilton: "Wenigo is the name of an Indian town on Ohio"—now Franklin—"where Mr. Frazer has had a gunsmith's shop for many years; it is situated eight miles up the said river beyond Logstown, and Cassewago is twenty miles above Wenigo."

The Baltimore Conference in April, 1804, appointed Thornton Fleming Presiding Elder of the Monongahela District, and Andrew Hemphill, preacher in charge of the Erie Circuit, which included Franklin. That year Mr. Hemphill organized a class at Gregg's, now Pioneer, on Oil Creek, of which John Gregg, Hannah Gregg and Sallie Stephenson were members. He also organized the class at Pithole settlement, composed of the Dawsons, Siggins, Kinnears, Hendersons, Alcorns and others. Sometime in the fall of this year, Mr. Hemphill, in company with William Conley, who served as a guide, traveled from where Titusville, on Oil Creek, now stands, to Franklin, Pa., along a bridle path. He had an appointment to preach and was refused the privilege of occupying the school house; thereupon, taking his stand under an old chestnut tree on the diamond, he delivered the first Methodist sermon to which the Franklin people ever listened. (Posts Journal; Early History of Western Pa.)

YOUNGSVILLE BOROUGH.

Youngsville Borough was organized as a borough in the year 1813. In the borough two school buildings were erected. For some eight or ten years these answered the purpose, but in 1854 one of them was enlarged at an expense of $218. The next year a new house was built on the east side of the creek, at a cost of $476. In 1858 the schools were graded. W. F. Siggins took charge of the higher department at a dollar a day and his dinner. Elizabeth Siggins took charge of the primary at four dollars per week, and boarded herself. In 1871 a Union school-house was built, containing two large school-rooms on the first floor, two large school rooms on the second floor, and a large hall on the third floor. It is well furnished with modern patent furniture, a large nice bell, and a first class organ. The cost of the building was over $8,000. The different principals that have had charge of the school are as follows, viz: J. M. Hantz, Mr. Morrison, Mr. McIntyre, N. R. Thompson, H. D. Patton and William C. Gorman.

The fourth Quarterly meeting held at McKean, May 23, 1835, U. Gittings, George Deighton, S. Brace, William Kinnear, Philip Osborn and William Stafford were the local preachers present.

The Baltimore Conference held its annual session in Baltimore, April 1, 1803, Bishop Asbury presiding. Thornton Fleming was reappointed to the Pittsburg District. Noah Fidler was sent to the Erie Circuit, and George Askin to the Shenango. The Deerfield Circuit was formed, to which Shadrack Bostwick was appointed. Noah Fidler was received on trial in 1801 and located in 1807. He formed a class at Henry Kinnears, where the Titusville road crosses Sugar Creek in Crawford County. "The Cottage Hill Academy" at Ellsworth shared largely in the revival at that place. (Pittsburg Christian Advocate, March 1, 1848)

Hist. of Warren County.

Dear Mrs. White:

I have found the old Church record which gives the names of the persons joining the first Methodist class. Record states that in the year 1812 Jacob Young and Bishop McHendree, when passing through the Broken-straw valley, stopped at the home of Darius Mead, and the Bishop preached to the people that could be gotten together (there were but few people on the Brokenstraw at that time) after which Jacob Young organized the first Methodist Class consisting of John Gregg and wife, Jacob Goodwin and wife, William Arthur and wife, Anna Mead and her son Phillip Mead, Betsy Ford, Polly Arthur, and Polly Campbell, making eleven in all. The next year it became an appointment on the Chautauqua Circuit. There had been preaching in the valley several times before this. Judge Siggins says that (by side note in the record) Rev. William Connelly was the first Methodist minister that ever preached on the Brokenstraw, and that was in the year 1809. I also find by a sketch given by Samuel Hull that (675) Henry Kinnear, Sr., was a member of the Church for a number of years before he died, and was a regular attendant upon the preaching of God's word, and was a true friend of all the preachers of the M. E. Church, and always a true friend to the laboring poor, but for the lazy poor he had no charity. Died in 1825 or '26.

Sincerely yours,

M. D. WHITNEY.

One of the daughters, Mrs. W. T. Turner, of Edenvale, Santa Clara County, California, writes: "Father came to America when a young man; he never saw his grandfather Kinnear and does not know his name; he has many nephews and nieces, but does not know their names."

Another Scotch Kinnear family.

773. JAMES Kinnear, resident of Langforrgan, said to be a descendant of the old family of Kinnear of that "Ik," married Isobel Bissit, and had besides several daughters, three sons:
774. i. JOHN Kinnear, resident of Fingcastle, County Perth; m. Magdalena Santar, and died in 1801, leaving issue:
775. i. CHARLES Kinnear, of Kinnear and Kinloch, County Fife, Scotland, a successful agriculturist, who married in 1772. Ann Hunter, dau. of James and Janet (Mathews) Hunter and sister of Charles Hunter, of Seaside, County Perth.

The first known ancestors of the old family of Kinnear, William DeKinner, temp. William the Lion.

776. ii. SYMON Kynner, and his wife Amy lived in the same reign.
777. iii. SIMEON Kynner, made a grant to the Church of St. Andrews, which was confirmed by Alexander II, 1213.
778. iv. Sir JOHN DeKynnere, was living in 1286. Robert II. on 15th, of August in the seventh year of his reign granted a charter of the lands known as free Barony, to John de Kynnear, and the heirs of his body, which fell to John, son of Regnald de Kynneir.

(1816) John Kinnier, of 1715 Grace Street, Lynchburg, Virginia, says: "The tradition I have through my father, as to the origin of the Kinnear (or Kinnier) family in Ireland, is: that some three hundred years ago, three brothers of that name came from Scotland and settled in Ulster, the Northern Province of Ireland; they settled at different points, and sooner or later some of their descendants may have settled in other sections of Ireland.

In the neighborhood where we lived, about 3 miles from Castle Blaney, there were many Kinnear's all more or less related. I went to school in a little brick school-house, on a farm that was owned by the widow and family of Robin Hill. I was born in 1836; in November, 1852, my Father and Mother, Sister and myself, all of our family, came from Ireland and settled in Lynchburg, Va., my father had two brothers and three sisters, all of them married, the sisters in Ireland, the two brothers here in Virginia.

My father had an uncle Michael Kinnear, who settled in Culpepper County, Va., long before we came to America, but he removed to Indiana, to get away from the "clank of the chains of slavery." (Note:—See (993), about this Michael.)

I married a Kinnear myself, she was not closely related, she was born and reared in Clontibret, County Monaghan, Ireland, not many miles from where I was born, she had a brother Alexander, he came to Lynchburg a good many years before I did, he visited Michael Kinnear in Indiana, and said he was then a very old man and had children and grandchildren.

One of the Kinnear families living near my father, in the townland of Tullmamalro, Ireland, was that of John Kinnear who married a Miss Harrison, they had quite a large family, one of the sons George was one of my most highly prized friends; some years before we came to America they emigrated to America and settled in Smithville Flats, Chenango County, N. Y., the oldest son was a physician, he died in London, the rest of the family came to America, a Mr. Richard Mathews who was raised near Castle Blaney, came to Lynchburg several years before we did, but went back to Ireland and married a daughter of John Hill, who lived near Castle Blaney, Mr. Mathews had some relatives living in Chenango County, N. Y., and went there to visit them, he said one of the Kinnear girls there was the most handsome Kinnear he had ever seen, one of this Kinnear family, Jane married her cousin Alexander Kinnear, of Fairview, near Garmany's Grove Meeting House, Ireland, near where we were all raised. If you should go to Ireland you would find many Kinnears living near Castle Blaney, and in the townlands of Drollagh, Tullmearly and Tullmamalro; my wife's brother Alexander Kinnear, settled in Nebraska, and two of his sons live near Primrose, Nebraska.

Dr. Claude H. Kinnear of Tacoma, Washington, is a son of George A. Kinnear, who was a son of Rev. James Kinnear, who was pastor of lower Clenaneese, Presbyterian Church, in County Tyrone, near Dungannon, Ireland, for about 53 years; he died in March, 1864, aged 80 years; his youngest son Robert Kinnear, lived in the old parsonage home, he was married twice, but left no children; another son John Kinnear became pastor of the First Letterkenny Presbyterian Church of Donegal, Ireland; he was widely known in Ireland and was the only Presbyterian clergyman, I believe, who ever sat in the English Parliament; he was not a politician he only consented to go there in aid of the oppressed farmers of Ireland; he died early in 1909, in the 86th year of his age, I think, his family had all preceded him to the grave, none of this family remain in Ireland the others having come to America.

Dr. Robert G. Kinnear, of Philadelphia, is a son of my wife's brother Alexander Kinnear.

My father's brother Andrew Kinnear came to America before we did, he was an intimate friend of the Rev. Dr. Horatio Thompson, of Rockbridge County, Va., who married one of the Kinnear's of Rockbridge.

A nephew of my father, Hamilton Boyd, went back to Ireland and married Margaret Kinnear, an aunt of Dr. Claude H. Kinnear, of Seattle, Washington."

Signed John Kinnier.

(790) Rev. John Kinnier<sup>s</sup>, Rev. James<sup>s</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>. Was pastor of the First Letterkenney Presbyterian Church, Donegal, Ireland, is said to be the only Presbyterian Preacher who was ever a member of the English House of Parliament; b. 1829, near Dungannon, County Tyrone, Ireland; d. July 1909, in County Donegal, Ireland; m. twice, by his first wife he had three children, all of whom died without issue, by his second wife lived but a few years and left no children.

"He was not a politician, he was raised among farmers and knew how they were oppressed by reason of the system of land tenure that prevailed in Ireland then, early in life he threw himself earnestly with what was known as the tenant right movement which aimed to deliver the oppressed farmers by securing legislation to accomplish that, and a vacancy occurring in Parliament, by the death of one of the representatives from his county, he was induced to permit his name to be used as a candidate, with the approval and support of his own church and co-religionists, it was a most righteous cause as I myself know, as I was old enough to take in the existing conditions before leaving Ireland.

While in Parliament he supported all good causes, after a long struggle extending over many years the rights of the tenant farmers were secured; he had no connection, of course, with what is now known as the Nationalist or Home Rule movement, to the protestants of Ireland "Home Rule" means "Rome Rule."

99-hundredths of the adult population of Ireland are troubled this day about the possible or probable success of Home Rule.

He was a lover of good books, when in parliament he spent a good deal of time in looking up valuable books in the book-stores of London; he had some rare and valuable books, and I understood years ago that he had the finest library in Ulster, he gave away hundreds of volumes while living, mostly to Magee College in Londonderry, but some also to the Presbyterian Historical Society. His estate, except for a few pounds, was his library, and at his death Magee College got the whole of that. It was known to the college what his purposes were years before he died, and he was induced by it to go to Belfast to have his portrait taken by an artist, this was placed in the college. He gave me an idea of the value of books in telling me many years ago in one of his letters, that he carried books with him in his visits to his congregation, to give to those whom he thought would be benefited by them. I began to realize what good could be done in that way, and wish I could do much more in that line than I have been able to do."

- (888) Tillie M. (Kinnear) Fitch, in a letter to Knox C.
Hill, of McKeesport, Pa., says:
"My father (Joseph Kinnear) died Christmas day, 1851; and my mother (Elizabeth Hillis Kinnear) died May 26, 1884. I remember hearing it said that grandfather Kinnear was married three times, the names being Mary Harrison, Mary Donaldson and Mary Donald, but I do not know which one was my grandmother, my father had two half-brothers: Dr. James Kinnear of New York City; and John Kinnear of Smithville Flats, N. Y.

Father's sister 'Jane' was married to John Hillis, mother's brother, both died in Ireland.

His sister, Agnes, married uncle Hawthorn, Isaac Hawthorn). His sister, Mary, married uncle Hill (James Hill), only one of the Hawthorn family is living: Sadie, who married Rev. J. K. Adams.

Father's people were Scotch Presbyterians, and mother's were members of the Church of England, they lived near Castle Blaney, the address was Crechenroe, County Monaghan, Ireland. Father had eleven children, four boys and seven girls, all the boys except Joe died young, at the beginning of the war (Civil War) Joe kept teasing his mother to let him enlist, and she finally gave her consent and at 18 years of age he enlisted in Company I, 105 Reg. Pennsylvania Volunteers, he was in the army between two and three years, was wounded at the battle of Gettysburg, July 2, 1863, and died of his wounds July 6, 1863, he was a sergeant when he died. Joe was a brave soldier and a true patriot, he received a silver medal with the names of all the battles he was in engraved upon it, and also Kerney's Cross for his bravery. Twilla, your mother, and Uncle Hugh (Hugh Miller and his dau. Twilla) went for his body and brought him home, and he was buried with the honors of war in the old cemetery." Signed, Aunt Tillie.

She also says father wrote the following in many of his old books:

(875) "Joseph Kinnear is my name and Ireland is my Nation. Fairview was my dwelling place, and Heaven is my expectation. When I am dead and in my grave, and all my bones quite rotten; Christ himself will think of me, when I am quite forgotten."

From the letter of John Kinnear of Lynchburg, it would appear that the above named Joseph Kinnear was a son of John Kinner of Fairview, near Castle Blaney, Ireland.

My grandfather on my mother's side was Thomas Goff, he was a very fine architect and mechanic, I think his wife's name was Jane, but do not know her last name, they had seven children, six girls and one boy, my mother was the eldest.

My grandfather on my father's side was Thomas Kinnear, I have always understood he was of French descent, he was in the War of 1812, and participated in the battle of Fort Megis, May 5, 1813, he was color bearer and planted the flag on Fort Megis, this flag was retained by him and handed down as a family relic, my father carried it in the old-time musters they used to have in the State of Ohio, in the 30's and 40's, it was a silk flag, and had an eagle on the blue ground, it had several bullet holes in it, received at Fort Megis, the staff was of black walnut, I have seen it many times when I was a boy, it was highly prized by my father, and was in his possession when I was home last in 1866, I remember hearing my father tell about the Fort Megis incident, and it is correct.

I was named after my grandfather, and the Pharies part was after a Baptist preacher, my father and mother were both Baptists.

I served through the Civil War, was bugler in Co. D., 6th, Ill. Cavalry. Capt. Joseph Coker; I was discharged at Selma, Alabama, November 5th, 1865, I have lived in a number of States, am at present in the retail drug business in Winona, Texas, am a member of the Masonic fraternity, am now District Deputy Grand Master of the 16th Masonic District of Texas.

We have no children.

Signed, Thomas Pharies Kinnear.

"My great-grandfather Michael Kinnear and my grandfather James Kinnear, left Belfast, at the close of the Revolution, the Kinnears of Belfast, were linen manufacturers, and emigrated from (probably) Fifeshire, Scotland.

My great-grandfather settled in Eastern Virginia, two of his brothers had come earlier and settled in Rockbridge County, Va. James Kinnear, my grandfather, married Elizabeth Harris, and moved to Indiana in 1838; raised a large family, all of whom (1908) are dead except Campbell Kinnear, he is 80 years of age.

Robert Kinnear, my grandfather's brother, went to Iowa in the 50s, he was a judge in Indiana and afterwards in Iowa.

John and Judge Campbell Kinnear, also brothers of my grandfather and Andrew Kinnear, his youngest brother, all lived and died in Indiana. Andrew raised a large family, no girls.

The Civil War came on and all of military age answered the first call, all died from wounds or disease or were killed, except myself and Thomas J. Kinnear; I served four and one-half years; was mustered out as First Lieutenant Co. B, 13th Indiana Volunteers; I am a son of William D. Kinnear, who was born in Virginia in 1817; and died at Lancaster, Indiana, in 1892. J. W. Kinnear, his oldest child of ten, five boys and five girls, and one sister dead. Uncle Campbell Kinnear lives on the old homestead patented in 1816, it has never been out of the family name nor had a deed of trust placed on it.

My grandfather entered a large body of land in Indiana at the close of the War of 1812.

My family were the old John Knox Presbyterians of the strictest kind.

Many years ago I met a temperance lecturer from Illinois, who claimed that at the time England conquered Scotland, three brothers, Kinnears, left Scotland, one went to Normandy, one to Germany, the other to Ireland; that he was French; that his ancestors were officers in the French Army under the Old Napoleon; that I descended from the branch in Ireland, and that the "Dutchman" got lost; he said that he and his father went to Scotland and examined the records as far back as they ran; he was a typical Frenchman, as I never took much stock in temperance lecturers I am giving this as he told me; the Coat of Arms, he said "was a Shield with a ladder; a dove on each round, a scroll; Motto: I live in Hope; Kinnear at the base.

Signed, J. H. Kinnear.

SIMPSON FAMILY.

There is a tradition of long standing in the Kinnear, Siggins, and Simpson families that ex-President, U. S. Grant, Bishop Matthew Simpson, Jefferson Davis and Jane Simpson who married William Kinnear, the ancestor of most of those whose names appear in this genealogy, had an ancestor in common through the Simpson lineage; and the posterity of Andrew Simpson and Elizabeth (Patton) Simpson, claim that Hannah Simpson, the mother of President Grant, was a descendant of the above mentioned Andrew; the line being, 1. Andrew and Elizabeth (Patton) Simpson; 2. Thomas and Sarah (Morris) Simpson; 3. Robert Simpson; 4. John Simpson; 5. Hannah Simpson who married Jesse Root Grant and was the mother of Ulysses Simpson Grant. While Grant is a descendant of the New England Grant family, we are convinced that his Simpson ancestors were "Scotch-Irish," and emigrated to Pennsylvania. The first of the line being

John Simpson of Scotland and Ireland whose two sons came to America and settled in Lancaster County; Andrew Simpson may also have been his son (but of this we have found no proof) and settled in Boston. The descendants of William and Jane Simpson, whose son John and wife, Mary (Schenck) Simpson of Bucks County, Pennsylvania are "sure of their relationship to U. S. Grant," and William Simpson of Bucks County who came from the north of Ireland some time before the Revolutionary War and married Nancy Hines is no doubt a member of this family. Bishop Simpson's own account of his ancestry says "In 1793 my family including my father's mother, emigrated to the United States, sailing from Londonderry to Baltimore, removed to Huntingdon County, Pennsylvania and afterwards to Western Pennsylvania and Ohio." He says he knows little of his paternal ancestry except that his grandfather, Thomas Simpson was in the service of England as horse-dragon. We therefore deem it not unreasonable to deduce his lineage from John Simpson of Scotland and Ireland and that of Grant from the same source. Jefferson Davis, former President of the Confederate States could only, so far as we can ascertain, have had the Simpson blood flow through his veins by being a descendant of Sarah Simpson<sup>4</sup>, born 1734; married about 1754 Colonel William Cook, as the mother of Jefferson Davis was Jane Cook, born 1759, and married about 1782, Samuel Davis. After years of research, comparing all dates, letters and other documentary evidence, we have been able to secure the compiler of this genealogy believes that Jane Simpson who married William Kinnear is the great grand daughter of John Simpson of Scotland and Ireland. And thus is bound together by ties of consanguinity the Simpson, Kinnear, Grant, Cook, Davis and allied families.

The Associators of Philadelphia to the Committee.

Philadelphia, 5th Feb., 1776.

To the Honorable the Committee of Safety from the Province of Pennsylvania:

The petition of the Committee of Privates of the association belonging to the City and Liberties of Philadelphia humbly sheweth: That as it is of the utmost consequence in the prosecution of our present most righteous opposition to Tyranny and Arbitrary Power, that none be commissioned as officers in the Continental Service but those who manifest the most sincere and warm attachment to the cause of Liberty, and, as the Honorable the Continental Congress has entrusted the appointment of all inferior and the recommendation of all superior officers for this honorable board.

Your petitioners do pray this honorable board to appoint or recommend none but such as have signed the articles of association given out by the honorable House of Representatives of the freemen of this province, seeing this ought at this time to be considered as the strongest mark of attachment to the cause which our present circumstance will admit of.

As your petitioners have the pleasure to assure this honorable board that the signing the articles aforesaid is become very general in the City and District, and like to be universal among those who have therefore associated, and as the association is principally composed of tradesmen and others who earn their living by their industry. They do further pray this honorable board that such of them as may be capable of performing such public works as this honorable board may have in charge to see executed, and have signed the Association aforesaid, may be employed in preference to all others, and that such works may be equally distributed amongst the signers of the Association as conveniently can.

The propriety of this application your petitioners humbly conceive will speak for itself, and as they assure themselves that this honorable board will consider the associators who sign the articles of association as better to be depended on and more worthy of encouragement than those who do not, they take the liberty to request this honorable board to shew them these marks of their favor and countenance and your petitioners will pray, etc.

Signed on behalf of the Committee of Privates.

SAMUEL SIMPSON, Chairman.

Indorsed:

The petition from the Committee of Privates being read, this board resolved that the matters therein prayed are reasonable and proper, and this committee will pay a due regard to same.

torical Society, contains a letter from Robert Magaw to the Committee of Safety for Cumberland County, Pa., dated Rifle Camp on Prospect Hill, Aug. 29, 1775.

"On Saturday night last about 2000 of our army with 100 of our battalion took possession of Plough Hill—this hill lies a little to the left of a direct line from our camp to Bunker Hill near Mystic river, about  $\frac{3}{4}$  of a mile from us, and very little more from Bunker Hill; they discovered our work only on Sunday morning, and soon began a very heavy cannonading from Bunker Hill and two floating batteries, all the loss we sustained was two killed in the fort, and two wounded near the enemy. Poor BILLY SIMPSON was the only person who suffered of ours; he had a foot and ankle shot off by a cannon ball as he lay behind a large apple tree, watching an opportunity to fire as the enemy advanced guards; there appears no danger of his recovery, etc. Poor Simpson, whom I heard this morning was in a good way, is since dead."

Robert Magaw was of Major Thompson's Pennsylvania

onel of the 5th Pennsylvania.

JOHN Elder; b. 1706; d. 1792; m. about 1740 Mary Baker; m. 2nd Nov. 5, 1751.

John Elder was born in the County of Antrim, Ireland, in the year 1706. His father, Robert Elder, migrated to America about the year 1730 and settled a few miles north of what is now Harrisburg, Pa. He brought all his family with him except his son John, the eldest of his children, who was left with his uncle, the Rev. John Elder, of Edinburg, to complete his studies for the ministry. He (the son) was licensed to preach in the year 1732, and some time after (probably in 1736) agreeably to previous arrangements, followed his father and family to America. In August, 1737, the churches in Pennsboro and Paxton (Paxtang), Pa., applied to the Newcastle Presbytery for a candidate, and Mr. Elder was sent in answer to the request. On the 12th of April, 1738, the people of Paxton and Derry invited him to become their pastor, and about the same time he was called to one or two other places. He accepted the call from Paxton and Derry and was ordained and installed on the 22d of November following. As Mr. Elder resided on the frontier Province the members of his congregation were generally trained as "Rangers" in defense against the Indians. Many a family mourned for its head, shot down by concealed foes, or carried away captive. The men were accustomed to carry their rifles with them not only to their work in the field, but to their worship in the sanctuary; and their worthy minister kept his beside him in the pulpit. It was no uncommon occurrence for death to overtake them as they returned from the public services of the Sabbath to their scattered plantations. In 1756 the meeting house was surrounded with Indians while Mr. Elder was preaching; but the spies having noticed the large number of rifles that the hearers had brought for their defense, the party silently withdrew from their ambush without making an attack.

In 1757 an attack was actually made as the people were leaving the church, and two or three were killed. During the summer they had some security by means of friendly Indians; but at other seasons of the year murders frequently occurred, and they found it impossible to discover the criminals. Mr. Elder himself superintended the military discipline of his people, and became captain of the mounted men, widely known as the "Paxton boys." He afterwards held a colonel's commission in the provincial service, and had the command of the block-houses and stockades from the Susquehanna to Easton. His apology for this extraordinary course lies in the extraordinary state of things which led to it. It is not easy to over estimate the suspense and terror in which the inhabitants of that frontier region lived from 1754 to 1763.

Elder besought the governor to remove the Conestoga Indians, because they harbored murders, and he engaged, if this were done, to secure the frontier without expense to the Province. This being refused, a party of his Rangers determined to destroy the tribe; and they called on Elder to take the lead in the enterprise. He was then in his fifty-seventh year. Mounting his horse, he commanded them to desist, and reminded them that the execution of their plans would inevitably involve the destruction of the innocent with the guilty; but their prompt reply was "Can they be innocent who harbor murderers?" at the same time pointing indignantly to instances in which their wives and mothers had been massacred, and the criminals traced to the homes of the Conestogas. He still earnestly opposed the measure, and at last placed himself in the road, that they might see that they could advance only by cutting him down. When he saw that they were preparing to kill his horse, and that all his entreaties were unavailing, he withdrew and left them to take their own course. The persons engaged in this desperate enterprise were chiefly Presbyterians, who resided in that neighborhood, and not a few of them were men far advanced in life. They performed their work thoroughly and mercilessly, destroying in Lancaster and Conestoga every Indian they could find. On the 27th of January, 1764, Elder wrote to Governor Pen as follows:

"The storm which had been so long gathering has at length exploded. Had the government removed the Indians, which had been frequently, but without effect, urged, this painful catastrophe might have been avoided. What could I do with men heated to madness? All I could do was done. I expostulated; but life and reason were set at defiance. Yet the men in private life are virtuous and respectable; not cruel, but mild and merciful. The time will arrive when each palliating circumstance will be weighed. This deed, magnified into the blackest of crimes, shall be considered as one of those ebullitions of wrath, caused by momentary excitement, to which human infirmity is subjected." The Indians were at length removed by the governor from every exposed place to Philadelphia; and many apprehended that the "Paxton boys," in the overflowing of their wrath, would pursue them thither. The governor issued a proclamation setting a reward on the head of one Stewart, supposed to be the ringleader, and some of his associates. Elder wrote the governor in their defense, stating the true character of the men, and palliating, if not justifying, circumstances under which they acted. Several pamphlets were published, commenting on the case with great severity, and some of them representing the Irish Presbyterians as ignorant bigots or lawless marauders. But amidst all the violent attacks and retorts, Elder is never stigmatized as abetting or conniving at the massacre; nor is his authority pleaded by the actors in their defense. The union of the Synod brought Mr. Elder and the other members of Donegal Presbytery into the same body with the leading members of the "New Side" Presbytery of Newcastle. For a while they maintained, ostensibly, union of action; but at length the "Old Side" men withdrew from the Synod on account of dissatisfaction in respect to certain cases of discipline, and formed themselves into a separate Presbytery. They, however, finally returned and were scattered, with their own consent, in Donegal, Newcastle and Second Philadelphia Presbyteries. Mr. Elder joined the Second Presbytery of Philadelphia May 19, 1768. In the formation of the General Assembly he became a member of the Presbytery of Carlisle. He died in the year 1792 at the age of eighty-six; having been a minister of the gospel sixty years, and the minister of the congregation in Paxton and Derry fifty-six.

Mr. Elder was married about the year 1740 to Mary, daughter of Joshua Baker, who was armourer under King George the Second, and by this marriage he had four children—two sons and two daughters. After her death he was married to Mary, daughter of Thomas Simpson and sister of General Michael Simpson of Revolutionary memory, who was captain under General Montgomery at Quebec. By his second marriage he had eleven children. The last of the whole number (fifteen) died in April, 1853, at Harrisburg in his eighty-seventh year.

Letter from General Michael Simpson, regarding the journal by Rev. John Joseph Henry, an account of the hardships and sufferings of that band of heroes who traversed the wilderness in the campaign against Quebec in 1775.

"Dear Sir: I have read your work of the expedition through the wilderness in 1775; so far as I was concerned in that expedition, perhaps the most arduous during the Revolutionary War, it is truly represented. The public may in the general be assured that account is genuine.

Your humble servant,

Second Lieutenant, Michael Simpson (Paxtang). Captain from Dec. 1, 1776; retired the service Jan. 1, 1781; died June 1, 1813; aged sixty-five; is buried in Paxtang church grave yard, near Harrisburg, Pa.

Pa. Ar., 2nd S., Vol. X, p. 39-321.

General Michael Simpson was a lieutenant at the storming of Quebec and went through the Revolution with great credit. He was brother-in-law to Rev. Col. John Elder, and had three wives but left no issue. He was born in Paxtang 1748 and died 1813; is buried under a handsome monument in Paxtang church yard. At his death he was Major-General of Pennsylvania Militia.

Early home of General Grant's mother, in Montgomery County, Pennsylvania.

The wooden part of this house, with a farm of one hundred and sixty-four acres, was purchased by John Simpson, General Grant's great-grandfather, in 1763. It was then a bare structure of logs, the clapboard coating not being added until later. The stone part was built by John Simpson about 1765. In 1804, at John Simpson's death, his son, John Simpson, General Grant's grandfather, bought the property. General Grant's mother, Hannah Simpson, was at this time five or six years old, having been born November 23, 1798, at White Marsh, Pennsylvania. The picture shows the house as it stands today. It is from a photograph owned by Helen M. Burke, of La Crosse, Wisconsin, a granddaughter of the second John Simpson and a cousin of General Grant.—[From Garland's History of U. S. Grant.]

GRANT FAMILY.

Ulysses Simpson Grant cared little for genealogy, great names and lofty lineage inspired him with no special feeling of awe, much less of reverence. In the presence of royalty he later stood quite unabashed and calmly at ease. It mattered little to him from what particular clan across the seas his sires were sprung. It was sufficient for him that because for eight generations his immediate forebearers had made their way on American soil, he could claim to be thoroughly American. When in large numbers the descendants of the proud old Grant clan answered the call of their putative head, a field marshal of the British army, our Grant courteously but firmly declined. "We have been Americans for two hundred years," said he, and he could trace his decent in unbroken line back to Mathew Grant, of Dorchester, Massachusetts, 1625. The Grants had been Americans too long, he thought, to feel sure they had ever been Scotch. But there are those to whom family tradition means more than it did to Grant. It is for the benefit of such therefore that his genealogy is here given as recorded by James Grant Wilson.

1. Mathew and Priscilla (————) Grant; m. 1625.
2. Samuel and Mary (Porter) Grant; m. 1658.
3. Samuel and Grace (Minor) Grant; m. 1688.
4. Noah and Martha (Huntington) Grant; m. 1717.
5. Noah and Susannah (Delano) Grant; m. 1746.
6. Noah and Rachel (Kelly) Grant; m. 1791.
7. Jesse Root and Hannah (Simpson) Grant; m. 1821.
8. Hiram Ulysses, later known as Ulysses Simpson Grant; born April 27, 1822.

Jesse Grant moved to Point Pleasant, a beautiful spot on the Ohio, and in June, 1821, he married Hannah Simpson, then in her twenty-first year, the third child of John Simpson, of Montgomery county, Pennsylvania, a man who cared little for genealogy.

From "The True Ulysses S. Grant.
By Gen. Charles King.

The Grants of the United States now number between ten thousand and fifteen thousand; they have not been satisfied with a mere book of genealogy but have sought still further to bind themselves together. Through the efforts of Author Hastings Grant they have been able to give each one of themselves a number, which, by means of a simple key, explains at a single glance their descent from Matthew Grant, the 'American progenitor, of this branch of the Grant family. The number of President Grant, for instance, is 11,040,030. The key to this is, that the first figure 1 represents the progenitor, and every following figure stands for a succeeding generation in which an O stands for the first child, and 1, 2, etc., denote successive younger children. Accordingly, General Grant was the first child of his father who was the fourth child of his father who was the first child of his father, and so on. We shall be very much interested to learn General Grant's number when his descent from John Simpson of Scotland and Ireland shall assume as much interest and importance as his Grant lineage. Much of interest has been written of Mary, the mother of Washington. Is not "Hannah Simpson the mother of Grant," a worthy subject for the facile pen of a ready writer?

(1033) HANNAH Simpson, the mother of Grant.

"In the letters written to his mother, especially those penned in his 'plebdom' at West Point, he opened his heart and told her how firmly implanted were the lessons of truth, patience, self-sacrifice and of reverence for religion that he had learned from her gentle lips. A rare woman was Hannah Simpson; sweet and comely to look upon in youth, she gained in her maturity an added dignity of bearing. A silent, observant nature was hers. Deeply religious in temperament, reared in the austere and solemn tenents of the Methodist church she looked upon life with eyes that saw only its duties and responsibilities. She had a smile for every one, but laughter with her was as rare as anger. Soft of speech, just, gentle, yet firm and steadfast, she proved an admirable help and stay for the sometimes erratic Jesse; but 'nagging' never, she watched over her little brood with the vigilance of the mother partridge. Shielding them ever from that which menaced their innocence or their well being, she reared her children pure of heart and pure of speech, and the best of her, because he had the most of her, seems to have concentrated in Ulysses."

(The True Ulysses Grant, by Gen. Chas. King.)

Hannah Simpson was in person the very antithesis of her husband; a brunette with small, slender, erect figure, delicately chiseled features and when young, Hannah Simpson must have been very sweet to look upon; she had a modest air of refinement and that expression of moral beauty which increases with years.

Hannah Simpson had no discoverable enemies; she was almost universally beloved as a Christian woman and faithful wife and mother. But it took longer to know her. She was the most reticent of persons. "Ulysses got his reticence, his patience, his equable temper from his mother," is the verdict of those who knew both father and mother. Others go further and say: "He got his sense from his mother. In truth the Simpsons were a fine old family. They were quite as marital as the Grants; were as genuinely American in their history, and were possessed apparently of greater self-control. Hannah Simpson was the daughter of John Simpson, a man with the restless heart of a pioneer, who had left his ancestral home in Pennsylvania near Philadelphia, and had settled in Clermont county a few years before. He had built a brick house and opened a large farm, and his position was most honorable in his town of Bantam. Hannah Simpson, his daughter, seems to have gathered up and carried forward to her son Ulysses the best qualities of her people. That she was a remarkable woman all her neighbors bear testimony. She never complained of any hardship or toil or depression. She seldom laughed, and her son Ulysses once said: "I never saw her shed a tear in my life." She was as proud of her family history as her husband was of his, but she said nothing about it. She never argued, never boasted, and never gossiped of her neighbors. Her husband bore testimony of her character in words well chosen: "Her steadiness and strength of character have been the stay of the family through life." Her neighbors called her "a noble woman."

"Ulysses Grant, His Life and Character."

By Hamlin Garland.

"Gen. Grant's mother is one of those sedate, sensible, serious women whose households are fit nurseries for heroes. Industry, economy, patience, temperance and religion were the lessons of his early days."

"Men of Our Times," Stowe.

The ancestry of General Grant is most distinguished; many Colonial and Revolutionary heroes there are in the line back to Noah who was born in 1718; Captain Noah Grant was at the siege of Crown Point under General Lyman; was also doing scout duty with Putnam and Rogers at Lake George (see official report signed by the three, Doc. Hist. New York IV, 17-177); served with great distinction and was killed at Lake George September 20, 1756. It remained for General Ulysses Simpson Grant to win laurels in two decisive wars fighting under the Stars and Stripes, after which he was chosen by popular vote to rule over the land he had fought to save; his military career, as we all know, was most brilliant, and his reign as chief magistrate was wise and just, earning for him the love and gratitude of a nation torn and scarred by four years of civil strife, safely piloted by his military genius and masterly guidance through this bloody conflict to the fulfillment of Lincoln's cherished dream of a Reunited Republic.

Ulysses Simpson Grant was born at Point Pleasant, Ohio, April 27, 1822; died at Mt. McGregor, N. Y., July 23, 1885; graduated from West Point in 1843; fought in the war with Mexico; was commander in chief of the United States army in the war of the Rebellion during Lincoln's administration; married Julia, daughter of Col. Dent, and sister of Frederick T. Dent, who was Grant's room-mate at the military academy.

At the time of Ulysses' birth the family lived in a one-story wooden building; the large chimney was built on the outside; a small room at the back called a lean-to was used as a sleeping apartment; this cottage was removed to Columbus, Ohio, in 1886, and is there preserved as a valuable relic; the family went to Georgetown to live in 1823.

Noah Grant, grandfather of U. S. Grant, was a Revolutionary soldier; he married Rachel Kelly; he moved to Ohio in 1800; Captain Noah Grant's second wife died in 1805; he then took his two small children and went to live with his son Peter, a farmer, in Maysville, Ky.; Jessie Root Grant, one of his two sons, was taken care of by George Todd.

The Grant family was of hardy Scotch ancestry, coming to America in 1630; they were identified with those early times in the Indian wars, the Revolutionary struggle, the Mexican war and the Rebellion.

Jessie Root Grant married Hannah Simpson; she is described as comely, modest, unselfish, full of good sense, a woman of strong religious convictions, a devout Methodist; her ancestors were noted for their regard for integrity, veracity and independence; Gen. Grant never ceased to reverence the religion of his mother; her firmness and strength of character were inherited to a marked degree by her gifted son. E. S. W.

1034. MATTHEW Grant, the emigrant ancestor, was one of the original company who came, in 1630, to Dorchester, Mass., in the Mary and John, with Maverick and Warham. He was admitted a freeman 18 May, 1631, and continued in Dorchester till the removal of the company which settled Windsor, of which he was a prominent member. His name appears on the Dorchester records as late as Nov. 2, 1635, and though he was without doubt, among those who went, in 1635 to prepare their new homes at Matinauck, now Windsor, it is not likely that his wife and children left Dorchester before April 18, 1636. He was the second town clerk in Windsor, also the first and for many years the principal surveyor; was a prominent man in the church; evidently was just and exceedingly conscientious in all his public and private transactions and duties, and as recorder, he often added notes explanatory, or in correction, to the records which have considerable value to the investigator of the present day—Stiles. He was compiler of the "Old Church Records" so often quoted by Dr. Stiles in the History of Windsor, "which in the absence of some of the earliest records of the town of Windsor (1635-50), assume a value which can scarcely be over-estimated; in short he was a pious, hard-working, conscientious Christian man, and a model town clerk. He was born Oct. 27, 1601; married Nov. 16, 1625, Priscilla _____, she died April 27, 1644, aged 43 years and two months, he married (second, May 29, 1645, Susanna, daughter of Bernard Chapin and widow of William Rockwell, she died Nov. 14, 1661. "Matthew Grant Recorder" died at Windsor, 16 Dec., 1681.

PHILADELPHIA COUNTY

One of the three counties originally established by William Penn, about the close of the year, 1682. It then extended indefinitely towards the northwest, bounded on either side by its fellow counties, Bucks and Chester. It has since, by the establishment of Berks Co., in 1752, and of Montgomery Co., in 1784 been reduced to an area of 120 sq. miles. Penn speaks of Bucks County in a letter to the Society of Free Traders, in 1683, calling it Buckingham Co., and the whole of the two townships, Buckingham and Solebury, in early times was called Buckingham. The name was first given to the township, and borough of Bristol but transferred here perhaps before Cutler's resurvey. The following is from the sketch of Buckingham and Solebury by John Watson, of Greenville: "The imposing authority of necessity obliged the first settlers and their successors to wear a strong and coarse dress; enduring buck-skin was used for breeches and sometimes for jackets; oznabrigs made of hemp tow, was much used for boys' shirts; sometimes flax, and flax and tow were used for that purpose; and coarse tow for trowsers; a wool hat, strong shoes, and brass buckles, two linsey jackets and a leather apron, made out the winter apparel. This kind of dress continued to be common for the laboring people until 1750. Yet a few even in early times, somewhat to imitate the trim of their ancestors, laid out as much to buy one suit of fine clothes, as would have purchased 200 acres of pretty good land. The cut of a fine coat, (now antiquated) may be worthy of description. Three or four large plaits in the skirts—wadding almost like a coverlet to keep them smooth—cuffs vastly large up to the elbows, open below, and of a round form. The hat of a beau was a good broad-brimmed beaver, with double loops drawn close behind and half raised on each side. The woman in full mode wore stiff whale-bone stays worth 8 or $10. The silk gown much plaited in the back; the sleeves nearly twice as large as the arm, and reaching rather more than half way from the shoulder to the elbow—the interval covered with fine holland sleeve, nicely plaited, locket buttons, and long-armed gloves. Invention had then reached no further than a bath bonnet with a cape. Something like this was the fashion of gay people, of whom there were a few, though not many in early times in Buckingham and Solebury. But the whole or something like it was often put on for wedding suits, with the addition of the bride being dressed in a long black hood without a bonnet. There was one of these solemn symbols of matrimony made of near two yards of rich Paduasoy, that was lent to be worn on those occasions. The straw-plat, called the Bee-hive bonnet, and the blue or green apron were long worn by old women." This may serve to give us a mental picture of the dress worn by Rebecca Weir, the mother of Hannah Simpson, and cannot but make us have a feeling of regret that we can furnish our readers no other likeness of the maternal grandmother of Ulysses Simpson Grant, but as John Simpson and Rebecca Weir lived in Philadelphia County (which was later Montgomery County) the pen picture must serve the purpose, and we must be contented to imagine Jean (or Jane Simpson) the first cousin of Grant's mother as she looked in her "silk gown much plaited in the back with the fine Holland sleeves and long-armed gloves." The motherly face of Hannah Simpson may be seen with that of her distinguished son among others of the Simpson family.

BISHOP MATTHEW SIMPSON FAMILY.

We are indebted to Crooks Life of Bishop Simpson for much of the information regarding this branch of the Simpson family.

(1095) Thomas Simpson, the grandfather of Bishop Matthew Simpson, was a native of England where he had been in the government service, as a horse dragoon previous to his emigrating to Londonderry, Ireland. He died while yet a young man leaving a family of six children; i. Andrew; ii. John; iii. William; iv. Mathew; v. James, and vi. Mary.

Mathew was born in Ireland, June, 1776, went to America in 1793, taught school for a time. Represented Harrison County, Ohio, for ten years, was a good Greek and Hebrew Scholar, died in Allegheny City in 1874, aged 98. He lived most of his life with his brother James. Mary married Mr. Eagleson; Andrew settled near Chillicothe, and left a large family. John settled on Stillwater Creek in Harrison County, Ohio, raised a large family of sons and daughters, most of whom settled in Illinois, William settled near Waterford, Erie county, Pennsylvania, left several sons and daughters. Mary Eagleson, settled in Harrison county, Ohio, and brought up a large family, all of whom, except two daughters, died without children.

(1100) James Simpson born in Ireland, 1776. Was a reed maker by trade; married June 10, 1806, Sarah Tingley, daughter of Jeremiah Tingley, who served in the Revolutionary war and received a soldier's grant of land in Western Virginia. Sarah Tingley was born in New Jersey, near South Amboy, May 23, 1781, she had a brother who was clerk of the County Court and another brother who was Editor and publisher of the county paper. James Simpson died in Pittsburg, June 15, 1812. The family had been reared in the Presbyterian faith, but Sarah Simpson became converted to Methodism through the preaching of Wesley. She lived to be very many years old, had a wonderful memory, could repeat many passages of scripture, hymns and stories. The spinning wheel and hymn book were her constant companions. The children of James and Sarah (Tingley) Simpson were: Hettie Simpson, born April 3, 1807, married in 1829, George McCullough, for many years a merchant in Cincinnati; ii. Elizabeth Simpson, born February 2, 1809, married a physician, Dr. Scoles who became a Methodist minister, she died in 1833; iii. Bishop Matthew Simpson, born June 21, 1811, died June 18, 1884, married on November 3, 1835, by the Rev. Z. H. Costen to Ellen Holmes Verner, daughter of James Verner, of Pittsburg.

(1105) Matthew Simpson<sup>c</sup>; was converted in 1829, licensed to preach in 1833, elected Bishop, at Boston, in May, 1852. Received degree A. M. from Allegheny and D. D. and L. L. D. from Wesleyan University. President of North Western University. President of Indiana Asbury University. Appointed delegate to British Wesleyan Conference; went first to Berlin, and then to the Holy Land, his son Charles accompanied him. His wife, Ellen Holmes Verner, was interested in building a home for aged women in Philadelphia, was president of the Bible Reader's Society. Beside a son and a daughter, who died young, they had a daughter, who married Charles W. Buoy. The Bishop visited his mother and sister in Cincinnati on his way to Greencastle, accompanied by his wife and small son. In 1870, he started for Europe, taking wife and daughters with him—a daughter and her husband were living in Antwerp at the time. Went home and left his family in Europe, returned in 1875. Went to China and Japan, in 1881, to attend the Methodist Ecumenical Conference.

“Bishop Matthew Simpson. First president, Indiana, Asbury (De Pauw) University 1839-1849, and M. E. Bishop, was born in Cadiz, Ohio, June 21, 1811. Son of James and Sarah (Tingley) Simpson. His paternal Grandfather, a soldier in the British Service, removed late in life to county Tyrone, Ireland, where he died, and his widow and five children came to the U. S., in 1793, and settled in Western Pennsylvania. On the maternal side his ancestors had long been Americans."

National Cyclopedia of Biography. Vol. VII, p. 381.

"In 1857, Bishop Simpson was made a Delegate to the British Wesleyan Conference with Worlds Evangelical Alliance which met at Berlin. He preached in the Garrushon Kirche, which was under the direct control of the King, that being the first time that an established church in Prussia had been opened to the preaching of an evangelical minister of the English or American churches. He rendered vast services to the country during the Civil War, having come, not long after its opening, into very close relations with President Lincoln, who was not slow to discover that the support of the churches was vital to the government, and that few men understood the people more thoroughly than the Methodist Bishops. Bishop Simpson was often sent for, to come to Washington, and it seems that as early as 1861 he had suggested the necessity of an Emancipation Proclamation. Subsequently, Mr. Lincoln showed him the draft of the Proclamation, consulting him about its form, the Bishop urging an explicit recognition of God. During the war he traveled the country over, speaking in behalf of the Federal cause, and everywhere leading the people up to the pitch of his own patriotic enthusiasm. A volume of his sermons was printed after his death." National Biographical Encyclopedia. Vol. VII.

For some time previous to and all during the troublous days of the Civil conflict, Lincoln frequently sent for Bishop Simpson for counsel and advice. He had great respect for his opinion of men and his knowledge of conditions both in the north and the south. Bishop Simpson's travels over the country gave him unusual opportunities for observing men and affairs generally. On one occasion

Lincoln had promised to preside at the opening session of the Sanitary Commission. Finding it impossible to attend, he requested Bishop Simpson to take his place, saying that there was no other man in the county by whom he would prefer to be represented. This was another of his characteristic speeches, in which he expressed his devotion to the cause of freedom, echoing at the same time the sentiments espoused by the General Conference, which had just closed a session. One of the important transactions of this body being the appointing of a Day of Prayer for the deliverance of the Nation. On this day the National flag was raised over the building in which the Conference was held. A committee was appointed to carry to the President assurances of the unfaltering support of loyal Methodists, it read "Say to him we are with him, heart and soul for human rights and free institutions." This committee with Joseph Cummings at its head, prepared and presented an address to the Chief Magistrate of the United States. Dr. Granville Moody presented the paper, and as he was retiring remarked "Mr. President, we all hope the country will rest in Abraham's bosom for the next four years." Lincoln's reply follows:

"Gentlemen:

In response to your address, allow me to attest the accuracy of its historical statements; and thank you in the Nation's name for the sure promise it gives.

Nobly sustained as the government has been by all the churches, I would utter nothing which might, in the least appear invidious against any. Yet without this it may fairly be said that the Methodist Episcopal Church, not less devoted than the best, is, by its greater number the most important of all. It is no fault in others that the Methodist Church sends more soldiers to the field, more nurses to the hospital, and more prayers to Heaven than any. God bless the Methodist Church—bless all the churches—and blessed be God, Who, in this our great trial, giveth us the Churches.

Immediately after the assassination of President Lincoln, Bishop Simpson was summoned to Washington by Mrs. Lincoln to render such service and consolation as he could to the stricken family. Then when all was over and the remains of our Martyred President reached the final resting place in Springfield, Bishop Simpson preached the last sad words over his friend. Frances E. Willard said of him "He lived in Evenston when I was a school girl and of all the gifted men who made earlier days of our University so brilliant, that the later ones can only hope to compete with, not excel them, he (Bishop Simpson) was chief. In an Editorial of April 16, 1851, he outlines the plan for a Temperance campaign in Ohio, he says "Ministers of the Gospel fear not the charge of meddling in politics, Sobriety will but prepare the way for the gospel." His last sermon was delivered at the dedication of the Peoples' Church in Boston, late in the winter of 1884. He was one of the Methodist Pioneers that did such splendid constructive work in Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana. It would be hard to estimate the value of these early God-fearing men in the settling of this new country. They builded better than they knew, they not only inspired people to right ways of living but they were assisting in laying strong and deep the foundation of the New Republic and helping to instill the principles of patriotism along with their tenents of Methodism.

(1105) "Bishop Matthew Simpson, was born at Cadiz, Ohio, June 21, 1811, died at Philadelphia, June 18, 1884. An American Bishop of the M. E. Church; he was president of the Indiana Asbury University (Greencastle, Ind.) was elected Bishop in 1852. He was distinguished as a pulpit orator. He published 'One Hundred Years of Methodism (1876). Reference Cyclopedia of Methodism.'"

Century Dictionary, Vol. XI.

"According to all reports young Matthew Simpson was a precocious child. At the age of three, he was able to read. When but eight years old he took up the study of German, in which he became quite proficient. A few years afterward he entered upon the study of Latin and Greek, and made rapid progress in these languages. While quite a boy, a book embracing the elements of surveying, geometry, trigonometry was placed in his hand. In a short time he had fairly well mastered the work, largely through his own unaided efforts. Noticing his insatiable thirst for knowledge and his remarkable facility for acquiring it, friends determined to give the young student the benefit of college training. In 1828, when Matthew was in his 18th year, Dr. Charles Elliot, who was at the time professor in Madison College, at Union Town, Pa., a small institution then under control of the Pittsburg Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, visited Cadiz and became interested in Young Simpson. He urged him to attend the college and offered to assist him in various ways. As a result we find the young man passing from the direct tuition of his uncle to the sympathetic care and training of one of the great scholars, teachers and ecclesiastical leaders of the time. It was fortunate for Bishop Simpson that he came so early under the influence of Rev. Elliot, who urged him to enter college, appointed him an assistant teacher, brought about his entrance to the Pittsburg Conference, recommended him to the presidency of the Indiana Asbury University, and delivered into his hands the editorial direction of the Western Christian Advocate.

Bishop Matthew Simpson presided at the Erie Conference in session, in Jamestown, N. Y., July 14, 1852."

BISHOP SIMPSON'S DEATH.

"Sunday, June 18, 1884, at about day-break he roused up with unexpected strength, for his death was hourly expected. Mrs. Buoy (wife of Rev. Chas. W. Buoy) who was watching with him, read Psalm 103, one of the Bishop's favorites,, commencing, "Bless the Lord Oh my soul; and all that is within me, bless His Holy name." During the reading he responded frequently in a quiet way. Mrs. Simpson repeated the first verse of Charles Wesley's hymn, "Jesus, Lover of my Soul," and to the last line "Oh receive my soul at last," he responded distinctly, "My Savior! My Savior!" these were his last words. He lingered on in silence until Wednesday morning, June 18, at 8:40 o'clock. Had he lived three days longer he would have completed seventy-three years upon earth."

“THE NAPOLEON OF METHODISM.”

“Bishop Simpson was unquestionably a great Methodist, but he was more than that. He was an American citizen and patriot almost without peer, especially among men of ecclesiastical pursuits, during a period of years fraught with most important developments in national life. It was a pathetic and impressive scene which brought to a close the Methodist General Conference of 1884. Bishop Simpson arose from a sick bed to attend this gathering at Philadelphia, because it was so near his home. But he felt as did his friends, that this was to be his last experience of the comforting communion and loved association of his church. More sincere or general mourning has rarely attended the passing of any man than that which filled the hearts of men and women within and without the Methodist Episcopal denomination when Bishop Simpson’s eyes closed on earthly scenes, June 18, 1884. At the largely attended funeral service in Philadelphia, Bishop Randolph S. Foster delivered the principal address. At the conclusion of the service Bishop Foster was heard to say to his colleague, Bishop Edward G. Andrews; “There never has been a bishop of any church who wielded so great an influence on national affairs as Bishop Simpson has exerted, nor do I believe there ever will be another who will exert so great an influence on the nation as he.”

Perhaps no more expressive epitome of Bishop Simpson’s career could be spoken or written than this. Endowed with all the essential qualities of greatness of mind and heart, he was naturally one who would achieve distinction in any line of work at any period of time. But he reached the very climax of his career when the nation was in the throes of the Civil War. Thousands were thrilled and aroused to patriotic fervor by listening to the great lecture which Bishop Simpson delivered in various cities of the country during those trying times. And no man can tell the full measure of American indebtedness to him for the creation and maintenance of the spirit of embattled courage which made possible the preservation of the Union. Bishop Simpson was the close personal friend of President Abraham Lincoln. And often when worried and harassed almost beyond endurance; when daily made the object of unjust criticism by those who hampered his every move by obstructive tactics; fearing often lest the fair face of friendship might mask the designs of a traitor. Lincoln turned to Bishop Simpson for advice and counsel, and for the information as to exact conditions which came easily to the later in the discharge of his duties as a general superintendent of the Methodist Church. Lincoln felt he could absolutely trust Bishop Simpson, because the latter's observations were never colored by the prejudice of a politician, and because he had no personal ends to serve. The Methodist Bishop was therefore called frequently to the White House. It was not strange that Bishop Simpson was called upon to deliver the funeral oration over the body of the martyred president, at Springfield, Illinois.

Matthew Simpson was born at Cadiz, Ohio, in 1811, and was therefore seventy-three years old at the time of his death. He came of Methodist stock, with Irish ancestry on one side that proved the effect of heredity by the vein of wholesome humor that lightened all his life with a sunshine of optimism and frequently drove the clouds of doubt and dismay from the hearts and faces of those about him. He was elected to the bishopric at the General Conference in Boston, in 1852. Bishop Simpson's amazing eloquence was of the quality that ranked him with Henry Ward Beecher among the greatest American preachers. He was selected by the Yale University to deliver the "Lyman Beecher Lectures on Preaching," one of the time honored foundations of that great school. The stories that come to us of the effect of some of Bishop Simpson's sermons and addresses are almost unequalled. To those who came to hear him for the first time there usually came a succession of surprises. Somewhat stooped in stature. with a voice of rather delicate fibre—sympathetic but not sonorous—the initiation of one of his addresses was usually disappointing to a stranger. But this feeling was soon forgotten. A thrill soon came into his voice, his magnificent imagination transcended the bounds of materialism to pierce the reaches of infinity, and he easily carried his hearers from one climax of eloquence to another. He realized to the fullest extent in his own heart and in the work of the sixties the full power of that insuperable combination of patriotism and religion. This was perhaps best illustrated in a sermon which he delivered at a Methodist Conference in the early part of the Civil War, when the audience rose to its feet as one man and went wild with the religious emotion and patriotic fervor he had aroused.

But perhaps one of Bishop Simpson's notable accomplishments on the public platform was in England, at the time of Garfield's death. A meeting was called in Exeter Hall, and Bishop Simpson was one of the speakers. It is related that he fairly held his audience in the hollow of his hand, and until this day English men refer to this address as the greatest speech ever delivered in England by an American. Speaking of the close bonds of sympathy that had been growing between England and America, and of the mother country's expression of sympathy over the martyrdom of Lincoln and the assassination of Garfield, he led up to a peroration in which he paid glowing tribute to England's ruler and ended with an ejaculation of "God save the Queen!" which brought the entire audience to its feet and filled the hall with a shouting that continued for several minutes. In 1864, the New York East Conference of the church met in Hartford with Bishop Simpson presiding. On Sunday morning a large company of students of Wesleyan University went to Hartford to hear him preach. One of that company recalls having heard a business man who had come from a distance to hear the bishop say, as he left the Allyn house to go to the church; "I am going to hear the Napoleon of Methodism preach. Bishop Simpson may well be called by the force of several analogies, "the Napoleon of Methodism." He was a great general and an inspiring leader; he made notable conquests in the Kingdom of Righteousness. But his conquests were accompanied by no self-assertive egotism, and he ruled by the power of love in the hearts of the sons and daughters of Methodism, where his memory is lovingly cherished to-day "even unto the third and fourth generation."

DAVIS FAMILY

JEFFERSON Davis, president of the Confederate States of America; b. 3rd June, 1808, in Christian Co., Ky.; d. in New Orleans, La., 6th Dec., 1889. At the age of seven years was sent to St. Thomas College kept by the Dominican Fathers in Washington Co., near Springfield, Ky; later to Wilkinson County Academy; thence in 1821 to Transylvania University, Lexington, Ky.; and in Nov., 1823, was appointed to West Point by President Monroe, graduating in 1828, and attached as Second Lieutenant of the Twenty-fifth U. S. Infantry. It is said that it was Lieutenant Davis who administered the oath to Capt. Abraham Lincoln upon the latter's receiving his commission during the Black Hawk War. Promoted First Lieutenant of Dragoon 4th Mar., 1834, but after some service against the Indians, resigned 30th June, 1835; settled near Vicksburg, Miss., and became a cotton planter. Elected to Congress 1845; June, 1846, resigned from Congress to become Colonel of the First Mississippi Regiment, which he led to reinforce General Taylor on the Rio Grande. At Monterey he charged Fort Lenerie without bayonets, and led his command through the streets, nearly to the Grand Plaza. At Buena Vista, unsupported, he repulsed, by a "V" formation of his command, an attack by a brigade of Mexican lancers, overwhelmingly superior in numbers to his command; was wounded but remained in the saddle, and was complimented for his coolness and gallantry by his commander in chief in his dispatch of Mar. 6th, 1847. On May 17th, 1847, appointed Brigadier-General of Volunteers by President Polk, but declined on the ground that the militia appointment by a Federal Executive was unconstitutional. Appointed to the United States Senate 1847. Unanimously elected senator by the Legislature in 1848 and re-elected in 1850. Appointed Secretary of War by President Pierce, which position he retained until 1857, when he re-entered the U. S. Senate. On the 10th of Jan., 1861, Mr. Davis made a speech asserting the rights of secession and denying that of coercion, and urging the withdrawal of the garrison from Fort Sumpter. Being advised on Mar. 24th, 1861, of the secession of Mississippi, he withdrew from the Senate and returned home. Was appointed by the convention commander-in-chief of the Army of Mississippi, with rank of Major-General, but on Oct. 9th, 1861, was elected president of the Confederate States by the Provisional Congress at Montgomery. Was elected, Nov., 1861, president of the Confederacy for six years without opposition. While encamped near Irwinsville, Ga., was on May 10th, 1865, captured by a body of U. S. Cavalry under Lieutenant-Colonel Pritchard. He was taken to Fort Monroe and confined there for two years. On May 8th, 1866, was indicted for treason by a grand jury in the U. S. Court for the District of Norfolk; on May 13th, 1867, was released on $100,000 bond, but was never brought to trial, as the U. S. government entered a nolle prosequi in December, 1868. His remains are buried in Hollywood Cemetery, Richmond. m. (firstly) 1834, Sarah Knox Taylor; d. Sept. 15th, 1836, near Bayou Sara, La.; dau. of Colonel and later President Zachary Taylor, and his wife, Margaret Mackall Smith, dau. of Major Walter and Ann (Mackall) Smith of St. Leonard, Calvert Co., Md.; m. (secondly) 1844, Varina Banks Howell, dau. of William Burr Howell, of Trenton, N. J., who m. 1823, Margaret Louisa Kemp, dau. of Col. James Kemp. William Burr Howell was the son of Gov. Richard Howell, of New Jersey, an ex-naval officer who had distinguished himself in the war of 1812.

From "Colonial Families of the U. S., by George Norbury Mackenzie, Vol. III, p. 149-50.

Three Davis brothers came to America from Wales; the youngest, Evan, went to Georgia; was the grandfather of Jefferson Davis; he married a widow, Mrs. Williams; her family name was Emory; they had two children, Joseph and Samuel, the latter the father of Jefferson Davis. Mrs. Williams had two sons, Isaac Williams, who married Susannah _____, and Daniel Williams. Three of Jefferson Davis's brothers bore arms in the war of 1812; he had a sister, Polly, two years older than himself, also an older brother, Joseph.

Samuel Davis, father of Jefferson Davis, left Georgia and moved to the Greenbrier county in Kentucky, where he hoped to find a good home for his nine children, of whom Jefferson was the youngest; from there they went to Louisiana and later to Mississippi. He entered the Revolutionary service from Georgia when about sixteen years old in company with his two half brothers, Daniel and Isaac Williams. Samuel Davis was one of the founders of the American Republic who first served his country in the capacity of gunner in the Revolution and later by his bravery became captain of a company of infantry at the siege of Savannah. After the close of the war Samuel went to Augusta, Georgia, where he was made county clerk; during his service in South Carolina he met Jane Cook, whom he afterwards married; she was of Scotch-Irish descent. Samuel lived to be over sixty-four years of age. Jefferson Davis did not take kindly to the discipline of the school room but submitted for a time when sent to Transylvania and later West Point, and from these institutions he received instruction that well fitted him for his career as leader of the Seceding States when they instituted the greatest revolt known to history. His father, Samuel Davis, died in 1828 and his eldest son, Joseph, assumed the care of the growing family.

Jefferson married in 1835 the daughter of Col. Zachary Taylor and went to live at his brother's plantation on the Mississippi river, called "Hurricane"; she died near Vicksburg within the year; he married (Feb. 26, 1845) Varina Banks Howell. Jefferson Davis served in the United States Senate, and all through life manifested a most resolute and persistent endurance and stubborn adherence to any cause he espoused. Was at the head of the Government War Department four years previous to the Civil War; he was often spoken of as the Railroad Statesman; he was an expansionist in rather a broad sense as concerned territory to be acquired but conservative where territory acquired was concerned. His dream was to extend the "Cotton Kingdom" to take in all of Mexico and possibly other lands. Of all the men which constituted his political group, Davis, who was a born leader, was the wisest and best and the one most deferred to and consulted in all important questions. It is believed by many that knew him best that Davis had hopes that the Union would be saved, although he never admitted having done anything unpatriotic, it was probably a matter of deep regret with him as long as he lived that he had not counted the cost and given the matter more careful consideration before he allowed his love of the South and her cherished traditions to delude him into taking up the cudgel in her behalf. But he put his whole soul into the cause, never turning back after aligning himself with the Seceding States. His wife says in his memoirs: "Defeated man never had such a following, and never had people a leader who so loved them." He was made president of the Confederate States in February, 1861. The following quotation from a letter written by William Preston Johnson gives an insight into his character and shows in what esteem Davis was held by his associates: "Of course no word from me can add anything to the luster of President Davis' reputation in the eyes of those whose good opinion we chiefly value. But as I am putting myself on record I must permit myself to say that having stood so near him for four years, that no veil to his character was possible even if he had wished it, he has left upon my mind an ineffaceable image of knightly purity, of public rectitude, and undeviating patriotism, and moral grandure which I shall forever cherish as a consolation in adversity and defeat, and as a standard and ideal for myself and my countrymen."

Colonel Kempt organized the Natchez troops and accompanied them during the Revolution. Mrs. Davis' uncle, Franklin Howell, was killed on the "President." She died in 1906.

THE DAVIS FAMILY. A TRADITION.

“Opechancanoug, the celebrated chief of the Powhatans, who was brutally murdered while a prisoner in 1644, left a lovely young daughter, the child of his old age, the princess Nicketti—‘She sweeps the dew from the flowers.’ Some years after this graceful maiden had reached the years of mature womanhood a member (the name is not given) of one of the old Cavalier families of Virginia ‘fell in love with her and she with him,’ and the result was a clandestine marriage, and a half-breed Indian girl who married about the year 1680, a Welshman (others say a native of Devonshire, England) named Nathaniel Davis, an Indian trader, and, according to some accounts, a Quaker; and from this alliance many notable people in the East and in the West have descended.

Their daughter, Mary Davis (born 1685), married Samuel Burks of Hanover (the ancestors of the Burks family of Virginia), and their daughter, Elizabeth Burks, married Captain William Cabell, the Ancestors of the Cabells.

Another daughter, Martha Davis, married Abraham Venable, the ancestor of the Venables.

Robert Davis, Sr., a son (the ancestor of ‘the black Davises’ of Kentucky, and from whom Jefferson Davis descended) had a daughter, Abadiah (or Abigail) Davis, who married William Floyd, the ancestor of the Floyds of Virginia and of the West. A daughter, or grand-daughter, of the Quaker married Gen. Evan Shelby of Maryland, the ancestor of the Shelbys of the West. Samuel and Philip Davis of the Blue Mountains were sons, and there may have been other sons and daughters.”

JOHN SIMPSON

DESCENDANTS OF WILLIAM SIMPSON OF BUCKS COUNTY, PA.

The tradition in the Simpson families of Lancaster and Bucks Counties, Pennsylvania, regarding their early ancestry is practically the same, viz.: They emigrated from Scotland to Ireland and later to America.

John Simpson<sup>1</sup>, who died in Ireland had two sons John<sup>2</sup> and Thomas<sup>2</sup>, who came to America and settled in Pennsylvania.

From Thomas Simpson<sup>2</sup>, is traced the lineage of Hannah Simpson the mother of Ulysses Simpson Grant.

John Simpson<sup>2</sup>, born in Ireland, 1680, came to America about 1720, his son William Simpson<sup>3</sup>, b. Nov. 4, 1725, married Jane (Bailey) about 1745; they settled in Bucks County, Pa., his descendants are sure they are descended from the same Simpson ancestor to whom the line of Hannah (Simpson) Grant is traced.

It is related of William Simpson<sup>3</sup>. "He was very fond of horse racing, but having joined the Presbyterian church at the age of eighty-four years, this became to him a forbidden pastime, but he found it difficult to discontinue this worldly amusement and would take a strong field glass, seek an elevated location overlooking the race course and from there watch the exciting sport."

A tradition that has been handed down by his descendants is: "There were three cousins all named William who settled in Bucks County, one was a shoemaker, one a blacksmith the third, (this William<sup>3</sup>,) 'a gentleman of leisure' and that he had brothers, John and James, who also settled in Bucks County."

These latter are mentioned in the History of Bucks County, by W. W. H. Davis.

The following records are from the Family Bible of (1176), William Simpson, of Doylestown, Pa. Now in possession of Talbot Simpson, Kansas City, Mo.

This Bible was printed in 1724.

"Isabel Simpson, daughter of William and Jane Simpson, was born June 27, 1747.

Mary Simpson, was born May 12, 1749.

Elizabeth Simpson, was born September 13, 1751.

Jane Simpson, was born March 11, 1753, "Newstile."

William Simpson, was born Jan. 17, 1755.

John Simpson, was born Jan. 10, 1757.

Samuel Simpson, was born March 17, 1759.

Ruth, daughter of Nathaniel Wescott, of Norwalk, Connecticut, born April 19, 1753; died August 16, 1838, at Poughkeepsie, New York.

"Thomas Benedict<sup>1</sup>, was born in 1617, at Nottinghamshire. He came to New England in 1638, in the same vessel with his future wife, Mary Bridgum, who lived to the age of 100 years. The pair were married and settled in Massachusetts Bay, but subsequently removed to Long Island, where they resided at Southold. The commissioners of the United Colonies of New England appointed Thomas Benedict to adjust differences between Uncas, the Sachem of the Mohegans, and Mohansick, Sachem of Long Island; date of his appointment, September 5, 1650. May, 1658, he was one of the petitioners to have the town of Huntingdon annexed to New Haven. Appointed by the General Court, May 15, 1662, as Commissioner of his town. On March 20, 1663, appointed Magistrate by the Dutch Governor Stuyvesant. At this time he resided at Jamaica, Long Island. September 29, 1663, was one of the petitioners to the General Court of Connecticut, to annex Long Island, and appointed Lieutenant of the town, December 3, 1663.

September 26, 1664, Thomas Benedict, with three or four others, received a grant to settle Elizabeth City, State of New Jersey. Grant signed by Sir Richard Nicolls, Governor of New York. This place is now Elizabeth, New Jersey. In 1665, Governor Nicolls issued an order for a general meeting from each town.

Thomas Benedict was one of two delegates from Jamaica, Long Island. This is said to have been the first legislative body convened in New York.

In 1665 he was appointed Lieutenant of the Foot Company of Jamaica. Later he removed to Norwalk, Connecticut, and was Selectman and Town Clerk until 1674, and Selectman till 1688. His name is one of the forty-two comprising the list of freemen of Norwalk in 1669. In 1669 he was Representative of Norwalk in the General Assembly, again in 1670 and 1675. Was a patentee on the title of Norwalk, in 1686. In 1684 the General Court appointed him with three others to make a settlement near Norwalk. This they did in the autumn of 1684 and the spring of 1685, and settled there permanently. The land was purchased from the Indians. This is now Danbury, Connecticut. He was one of the most prominent men in public affairs in his section of the country, and this is only a brief extract from the voluminous records of his service. He was one of the founders of the first Presbyterian church ever erected in America, built at Jamaica, Long Island, in 1662, and his name appears upon the records of that church as Goodman Thomas Benedict. His son James Benedict<sup>2</sup>, was one of the eight who purchased and settled Danbury, Connecticut, having sold his property in Norwalk, on March 26, 1619. Thomas Benedict<sup>3</sup>, son of James was also one of the original settlers of Danbury. In May, 1738, he was appointed Justice of the Peace and first Judge of the District, and he held both offices until his death, which occurred on the 4th of July, 1776. He was also a member of the Connecticut Legislature for thirty-one sessions, between May, 1737, and October, 1766 inclusive. Thomas Benedict<sup>4</sup>, son of Thomas, also resided in Danbury, and possibly was a Selectman in 1785. Joshua Benedict<sup>5</sup>, his son, was born and resided in Danbury, and died in Poughkeepsie, New York State, in 1825. He was appointed to supply horse-trappings for the artillery and cavalry during the Revolutionary War. He related to Mr. Ely Westcott Bailey (who was his grandson, the son of Lucy Benedict and Major Bailey), when the latter was a boy, the exciting incidents through which he passed, the difficulty he had to procure the necessary outfits, and told how he was obliged to accompany squads of men into the forest for days at a time, to select and cut the natural crooks from trees which would be suitable for saddle-trees. He was living at Danbury when that town was attacked and burnt by the British troops, on Sunday morning, April 27, 1777. His house, with those of other members of his family, was marked for destruction by the resident Tories of the town. Five of the nineteen houses burnt by the British belonged to the Benedicts. He removed his young children in great haste in order to escape capture, and secreted them several miles distant, at a place called Stony Hill." WHERE WASHINGTON AND HIS MEN CROSSED THE

DELAWARE

The McKonkey House at "The Ferry" now Taylorsville, on the Pennsylvania side of the river and designated as "Washington's Crossing." This is about nine miles above Trenton. A bridge nine hundred feet long takes the place of the Old Ferry. Washington and his officers made their headquarters here before the Battle of Trenton.

"Itinerary of Gen. Washington," by William S. Baker.

This famous Spot Has Been Selected for a Park to Be the Nation's Christmas shrine.

The States of Pennsylvania and New Jersey Are Now Co-operating to Make a National Park at the Point Where Washington and his Ragged Continentals Crossed the River and Surprised the Drunken Hessians Feasting at Trenton.

"Soon the nation is to have a Christmas Shrine. It will be like no other place of pilgrimage in the country for it will commemorate not only a great patriotic achievement, but will also recall sharply what was at once the incident that cheered a struggling nation, when most it needed hope, and gave an excuse for a Christmas celebration that set the nation wild with joy. It is the neighborhood where Washington on Christmas Night, 1776, crossed the Delaware, fell upon the Hessians feasting in Trenton, and put them to route. This victory came at a time when many of the most ardent American supporters had about given up hope, and it was only the iron will of the illustrious Commander-in-chief keeping up the battle, though he had no headquarters, no staff, no adequate forces, no supplies, that prevented the failure of the way for freedom.

The states of Pennsylvania and New Jersey are making plans now for a shrine that will be second only to Mount Vernon, Valley Forge and Bunker Hill in the interest it will have for students of the Revolutionary period.

A commission has been appointed by the Governor of New Jersey to arrange for what will in the future be known as the nation's shrine of Christmas Day patriotism.

All the land that saw the movement of the Continental troops is being set aside for the purpose of a park and being in a section that has seen but little invasion of business, it is still in much the same condition as on the night when Washington and his men battled with the ice and made the transit that was to result in such a notable exploit.

One reason that the scene has been unchanged in the years that have passed is that it is difficult to reach. Only one railroad goes there, and trains are infrequent. The trip by trolley is a slow one. Nevertheless one monument has been erected. This stands on a road midway between the little railroad station and the house where Washington made his headquarters during the battle. The inscription reads "This tablet was erected by the Society of Cincinnati in the State of New Jersey to commemorate the crossing of the Delaware by George Washington and the Continental Army on Christmas night, 1776."

A little further along is the frame house from which

Washington directed the battle when the Americans fell upon the surprised Hessians, and curiously enough there has never been placed upon it any mark to identify it. He who would know which structure it was that gave hospice to the great commander on that memorable night, must ask questions of the passer by for no printed word is there to aid him. But this neglect is now to be remedied, and all the points of interest in the vicinity are to be properly marked.

It is now the work of the commission to find as closely as possible the exact spot where the Commander and his men crossed.

It is the neighborhood tradition that it was close to the spot where the bridge of the Philadelphia and Reading railroad spans the Delaware.

But it is not on hearsay evidence alone that the commission is to do its work. It has unearthed all the ancient records of the battle. It has plans of the encampment from which the march to the river started. It has data as to distances, and when it finally makes its decision it will come about as close as can human knowledge to the place where the shivering Continentals took their chance in a raging snow storm, braved the elements on the bitterest kind of a night, dodging the cakes of ice that might have sunk their none too staunch craft, and finally fell upon the astonished Hessians at the moment when the latter were deep in the liquor that formed a part of their Christmas carouse.

Visiting the pretty country, with its rolling slopes, its picturesque woods, and its peaceful river, it is difficult to summon to the mind that picture of Christmas Day, 1776, when the ragged Continentals, their bare feet tracking blood marks in the snow, got orders to march on the enemy.

There were some twenty-four hundred men in the patriot forces, and the start was made at three o'clock in the afternoon, every man carrying three day's rations and forty rounds of ammunition. With them were eighteen field pieces. It was twilight when the men reached the crossing of the Delaware River met by Glover's men from the Marblehead, prepared to take them over. Rowing across the river and dodging the cakes of ice the men formed on the other side, and their condition may readily be imagined when it is told how a messenger who followed them, could trace their path by the blood marks left in the snow by the bruised feet of the men.

The hardest job of that Christmas festivity was getting the artillery across, but finally this was accomplished, and the force was ready to wage battle. One American general found out that his powder had been wet so badly in the transit of the tossing waters that his men had no ammunition. "Then" replied Washington, "your men will have to fight with their bayonets for tonight we take this city at any cost."

Huddled in a hut and suffering from the snow and sleet the Hessian pickets made but small opposition, and when the patriot bugles finally aroused the sleeping soldiers in Trenton, it was too late for them to make any stand. The surprise had been complete and decisive, and wherever the Hessians turned they found themselves confronted by the victorious troops of the Continentals. Only two Americans were wounded, while the British had two score killed and lost a thousand prisoners, moreover the Americans gained some much needed supplies.

This Christmas victory gave the nation a thrill of hope and joy, for it showed that the despised Continentals were more than a match for the German mercenaries.

Among the places that are to be preserved is the McKonkey House, where Washington and his officers made their last stop for a meal before going into the conflict.

The McKonkeys kept the ferry, and they are given the credit of extending valuable aid to the patriot forces. The old house has been remodeled once or twice and repaired on numerous occasions, but in the essentials it looks much as it did in the period when it took its place in the history of the country. Washington's crossing has long been the name of the railroad station, the postoffice and the little settlement at the New Jersey end of the trip made by the American forces on that eventful night. The Simpson family are descendants of William McKonkey "the owner of the estate in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, on the Delaware River upon which was situated 'McKonkey's Ferry' and McKonkey aided in crossing and helped secure boats, and went with the troops as a volunteer. Washington made McKonkey's house his headquarters both before and after the battle, and the sick and wounded were cared for there for some time. The women of the family used their bedding and clothing for bandages. William Simpson born in Bucks County, April, 9, 1789, married Lydia McKonkey, the daughter of William McKonkey; she was born Oct. 1, 1786; this William Simpson was son of John and Mary (Schenck) Simpson. John Simpson ran away from home when a boy and joined Captain John Thompson's Company of Infantry. On account of youth his father secured his release and made him return home, he then joined Capt. Abraham Duboi's Infantry of the Penn. Line in August, 1777, and afterwards Captain Zebulon Pike's Company of the 4th Penn. Light Dragoons. He participated in the battles of Brandywine and other engagements in the Revolutionary war.

Mary Schenck Simpson, the widow of John Simpson, received a pension for his services until she died."

"Rochester Democrat and Chronicle," Sunday, Dec. 19, 1909.

SCHENCK FAMILY

The Schenck family, one of the most noble families of Holland. Martin Schenck the famous "free booter" a description of whom may be found in Motley's "History of The Netherlands" is said to have been of this family. After the settlement of New Amsterdam three families of Schenck came to America under the auspices of the Dutch East India Company; one family settled on Manhattan Island, one in the vicinity of Newburgh, New York, and one in Monmouth Co., N. J., near New Brunswick and Bound Creek. From the latter family is descended William Schenck, whose daughter, Mary Schenck, b. about 1764, married John Simpson, b. Jan. 10, 1755; d. March 2, 1800. (The record elsewhere states that John Simpson married Mary Schenck of New Brunswick, New Jersey.)

McKONKEY FAMILY

The McKonkey family were from Scotland, they went over to Ireland with the emigrants of the Seventeenth Century and probably came to America with the Simpsons, and settled in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, and later moved to Trenton, Monmouth Co., New Jersey. William McKonkey had a brother Samuel who is supposed to have died unmarried. William McKonkey married Hannah Baker and they had a large family: i. Mary, ii. John, iii. Sallie, iv. William, v. Lydia, vi. James, and vii. Jacob. Mary, John, Lydia, James and Jacob were born in Pennsylvania. While living in New Jersey he bought a farm of 900 acres where Taylorville, Bucks Co. now stands. About 1790 a lawyer from Philadelphia persuaded him to sell this property for $10,000 Continental money, he then went to New York and cleared a farm where Charlestown is now located and later built his house and barns and moved his family from Bucks to this place; he died at the age of 84 years and his wife, who was ten years younger than her husband, died about 1830, being 84 years old at the time of her death.

Descendant of John Simpson, Private in the 4th Pennsylvania Light Dragoons of Penn. Line.

John Simpson enlisted as a boy in the Pennsylvania Infantry under Captain John Thompson and served successively under Captain Abraham Dubois in the Pennsylvania Line (Infantry), and Captain Zebulon Pike in the 4th Pennsylvania Light Dragoons. He participated in such battles and engagements as his companions took part, chief of which was the battle of Brandywine. The widow of John Simpson received a pension for his services until she died. See Records—O. W. & N. Division, Dept. of The Interior Bureau of Pensions, Washington, D. C. Jerome W. Simpson also had Supplemental Credentials through the service of William McKonkey, of Pennsylvania, and of Nathaniel Mead of New York.

William McKonkey (Patriot) was the owner of an estate in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, on the Delaware River upon which was situated "McKonkey's Ferry." The Americans under General Washington crossed at this ferry on Christmas night, 1776, and surprised the Hessians at Trenton, returning the same way. McKonkey aided in the crossing and helped secure boats; went with the troops as a volunteer. Washington made his house his headquarters both before and after the battle, and the sick and wounded were cared for there for some time. Mrs. Elizabeth (Patton) Simpson was murdered by the Indians in September, 1742, an alarm had been given of the presence of hostile Indians, and the women and children had been gathered into the "Block House," which stood on the great square west of the James H. We, reposing special trust and confidence in your fidelity, and good conduct, do by these presents constitute and appoint you, the said John Simpson, second lieutenant of Captain Simon Marston's company in the battalion of troops raised within said state for the defense of the states of New England and New York, commanded by Colonel Stephen Peabody.

You are therefore to carefully and diligently to discharge the duty of second lieutenant, in leading, ordering and exercising said company in arms, both inferior officers and soldiers, and keep in good order and discipline; hereby commanding them to obey you as their second lieutenant, and yourself to observe and follow such orders and instructions as you shall, from time to time, receive from the council and house of representatives of said state for the time being, and in their recess from their committee of safety, or any of your superior officers for the service of said states according to the military rules and discipline, pursuant to the trust reposed in you.

In testimony whereof we have caused the seal of said state to be hereunto affixed.

Witness: M. Weare, Esq., President of our said council, at Exeter, the 13th day of March Anno Domini, 1778.

E. I. Thompson, Secretary.

The original commission and the flintlock musket used by John Simpson in the Battle of Bunker Hill, and bearing the number 676, is preserved as a family heirloom and is now (in 1916) in the possession of Mr. Charles L. Simpson, in Kansas City, Mo., grandson of this John Simpson. It is authenticated that he was the first to fire a gun in the Battle of Bunker Hill, and for this act he was placed under arrest on the charge of disobeying orders. He was promptly acquitted, however, and the estimate placed upon him was shown at the time by his being commissioned major.

John Simpson, then a private, shouldered his musket and went to the Parade and enlisted in Capt. Daniel Moore's Company, and, with Maj. Andrew McClary, of Epsom, and Capt. ## SAMUEL NEWELL SIMPSON.

(1272) Samuel Newell Simpson<sup>s</sup>. The subject of this sketch was born in Deerfield, New Hampshire, October 3, 1826. His two brothers Henry M. and William A. Simpson were intimately associated with him, both in business and in his pioneer work in Kansas. The Simpson family is a distinguished one in American History. John Simpson the grandfather of Samuel Newell Simpson, fired the first shot on the American side at the battle of Bunker Hill. He was a gallant soldier throughout the entire Revolutionary War, he was the father of four sons and two daughters. Samuel Simpson<sup>t</sup>, one of these sons, was born in Deerfield, New Hampshire, January 29, 1792, and died in Lawrence, Kansas, January 12, 1827. He was married in Deerfield, New Hampshire, to Hannah Pearson, daughter of Timothy M. and Deborah ( ) Pearson. Samuel<sup>t</sup> and Hannah (Pearson) Simpson were the Parents of the subject of this sketch. Samuel Newell Simpson was well instructed in his New England home, in the day school, the Sunday school, and the church. He remained at home with his parents until the attainment of his majority, when he made a contract with the Manchester & Lawrence Railroad Company to furnish lumber to fence twenty-six miles of their road. When twenty-two years of age, in company with his brother who was younger than himself, he engaged in the wholesale and retail trade. The two brothers soon extended their business so as to embrace an extensive real estate and lumber trade in which they failed, $6,000.00 in debt. This was about 1849. In 1857, Mr. Simpson sent $11,000.00 in gold from Kansas to liquidate the indebtedness, principal and interest. He moved to Kansas in 1854, reached Lawrence, September 29th of that year. On the next day, he surveyed a claim, with the hope of making it the foundation of his fortune. From this time forward, he was actively engaged in promoting his interests and those of his fellow-men. On October 1st, 1854, he organized a Bible class and was elected its teacher. On the 7th of January, 1855, he opened a Sunday school, which in time became the Plymouth Congregational Sunday school. He also organized Sunday schools at Franklin and other places, and it was while he was engaged in his capacity as Sunday school teacher that he discovered the Franklin plots to destroy Lawrence. In the fall of 1854, he assisted in forming the Plymouth Congregational Church at Lawrence. At a meeting held in October of that year to name the town, Mr. Simpson moved that it be called Lawrence, which motion was seconded by Dr. Robinson, and carried, thus the city was named after Amos A. Lawrence, of Massachusetts, one of the staunchest friends of early Kansas. Mr. Simpson was active in securing arms and ammunition from the east to aid in the defense of the Free-State cause, against the border ruffians of those days, as well as to provide provisions for the Free-State men while they were engaged in the defense of their homes. As a result of arrangements made by him with New York capitalists, the Simpson Bank was started, of which he and his two brothers were the proprietors for several years. For eighteen months of John Brown's career in Kansas, Mr. Simpson had charge of his guns and ammunition, and after Quantrell's massacre he had charge of the interment of the bodies of the hapless victims, which work occupied two days and two nights. Mr. Simpson was married January 1st, 1864, at Columbus, Ohio, to Kate Lyon Burnett, daughter of Judge Calvin Burnett, of Morrisville, Vermont. Kate Lyon (Burnett) Simpson was born October 16, 1833, in Morrisville, Vermont, she was a woman of superior mental endowments and culture and a successful teacher. The oldest son of this couple, Charles Lyon Simpson, was born November 23, 1865, Theodore the second son was born February 10, 1868, and died in infancy, Burnett Newell Simpson the third son was born July 13, 1869. Later Mr. Simpson was actively engaged in business pursuits principally in the sale of real estate, laid off a town adjacent to the east line of Kansas, on the banks of the Kansas ("Kaw") River adjoining Kansas City, Missouri calling the town "River View"; Samuel Newell Simpson was one of the first sixty settlers of Lawrence, Kansas, in 1854, through his influence Amos A. Lawrence, of Boston, donated $10,000 which was the foundation of the Kansas University; in 1877 he removed to Wyandotte, now Kansas City, Kansas, where he built a handsome home residing there until after the death of his wife, and from that time he made his home with his sons in Kansas City, Missouri. In the latter years of his life, following the custom of the poet Longfellow, he devoted the hour "between the dark and the daylight" of each day to his two grand-children, Dorothea and Hamilton Gamble Simpson; he was a devoted member of the Westminster Congregational Church. He died Saturday, November 27, 1915, at the residence of his son, Burnett Newell Simpson, and was buried by the side of his wife in Lawrence, Kansas.

 From Early Settlers of Sangamon County, Ill., by John Carroll Power.

It is very probable that the above William Simpson (1333) was a son of (1392) Richard Simpson, of the North Carolina-Kansas City line, this Richard Simpson, moved in 1801 to Kentucky and settled first in Madison County, then in Simpson County, which was named for his family, the records we have do not show that he had a child between James Madison, b. 1807, and Susanna, b. 1812, and as this William was b. in 1808, in Simpson County, Ky., it is probable that he was of this family, besides, he names one of his daughters Henrietta, which was the name of Richard Simpson's wife.

“FAIR LAWN”

The Seat of JOHN SIMPSON, High Sheriff of County, Kent, “Fair Lawn” is situated within a mile of the village of Shipborne on the road from Wrotham to Tunbridge. The principal portion of this mansion has undergone many changes, and is believed to have been built about the latter end of the seventh century. It is a large substantial and convenient edifice, adorned with many extensive shrubberies and pleasure grounds, most excellent gardens and seated in a finely wooded park, the smooth verdure of which, has accounted for its name. In the early part of the reign of Edward I, it was in the possession of Adam de. Barent in whose family it remained until the latter part of the reign of Edward III. It was then transferred to the family of Colepepper and early in the fourteenth century became the property of the Chow family, who sold it to Sir Henry Fane of Hadlow. His son, Sir Henry, resumed the name of his ancestor “Vane” and the property eventually descended to the eccentric Lord Vane, son of Vicount Vane, who married the widow of Lord William Hamilton. He disposed of great property for the payment of his debts and this beautiful seat was eventually let on lease to Henry Lyell, father-in-law of Earl Delewar. By him it was bequeathed to David Papillon, of Lee, who sold it in 1799 to John Simpson.

DESCENDANTS OF RICHARD SIMPSON OF FAIRFAX COUNTY, VIRGINIA

The first of this family came from England to Virginia about 1682, one of the sons is said to have married a French woman, named Varnum.

The Simpsons were farmers and large slave owners.

1388. Richard Simpson<sup>1</sup>, the first of whom we have any authentic knowledge, died in Fairfax County, in 1745; he conveyed to his son Richard Simpson<sup>2</sup>, and wife, Mary, 300 acres of land, they sold this land in 1754 to Edward Emms, the deed is recorded in that county. John Simpson<sup>2</sup>, and two of his brothers Aaron and James removed to Caswell County, North Carolina, before the Revolutionary War. We are unable to learn the names of his two other sons who remained in Virginia until a later date, and possibly died there, but the following is known of their descendants who eventually removed to North Carolina.

One of these sons had a son: Moses Simpson<sup>3</sup>, who settled in Caswell County, North Carolina, in 1808; and he had a son: J. M. Simpson<sup>4</sup>, who lived and died on the old home place in that county.

The other son had a son, George Simpson<sup>3</sup>, b. 1765, in Fairfax County, and he had a son: John Simpson<sup>4</sup>, b. August 17, 1786, in Fairfax County, who married June 23, 1808, Hannah Simpson, his first cousin. They had a son: John Henry Simpson<sup>5</sup>, b. November 24, 1816; d. July 2, 1890; who married three times, his first wife was Martha Robertson, by whom he had no issue; his second was Elizabeth Snipes, they had seven children; his third was Edna Garrison. Of his children, the only one of whom we have record is: J. O. Simpson, b. September 23, 1869, he lives on the original Simpson property in Caswell County, N. C.

COL. RICHARD DUKE SIMPSON,

He was known as "Captain Dick Simpson," settled in Caswell County, North Carolina, before the Rev. War. The land on which he settled is still owned by his descendants, and there remains an old cellar which marks the spot where his dwelling stood. He died about the close of the Revolution, aged about sixty years.

He had a son:

- 1392.* RICHARD Duke Simpson<sup>2</sup>, who married December 23, 1787.

Henrietta Williams, and from them are descended the Simpsons who settled in Jackson County, Missouri, at an early date, the Harris and Hunter families of Westport, and others who are mentioned in the following pages.

Note: The greater part of the above information is from the family records of this family.

John Williams<sup>7</sup>, b. 1745; d. 1799, was one of the eight delegates to the Provincial Congress of North Carolina, at Hillsboro, in 1775. (See Wheeler's History of North Carolina, Vol. 2, page 332.) To this body were presented the Mecklenberg Resolutions Aug. 25, 1775. In the deliberations of this body John Williams bore a conspicuous part. It in turn, honored him by selecting him as Lieutenant Colonel of the Battalion of Minute Men, 9th North Carolina, for the Hillsboro District. He was present with his command at the battle of Guilford Court House and distinguished himself by his bravery and courage. Other facts relative to the life of John Williams may be found in Wheeler's History of North Carolina, Vol. I, pages 70-75-103, and in Vol. II, page 81. Also in Livingston's Biographical Dictionary, Vol. I, page 187.

His great-great-granddaughter Julia Kearney (Mrs. Frank Wornall, of Kansas City, Mo.) is a Daughter of the American Revolution, having entered through the service of the subject of this sketch.

SKETCH OF COL. JOHN WILLIAMS

By Thomas M. Owen

John Williams, one of the six children of Nathaniel Williams, of Hanover County, Virginia, was born about 1743-1746, probably in that county. Little is known of his first years; but early emigrating to North Carolina, he there became by profession an attorney at law. He located for the practice of his profession in the Post-Town of Hillsboro, Orange County, then the center of Hillsboro District. Here he lived, following his profession, attending to his social duties, and living the usual life of the ambitious planter of the times. The mutterings of the storm arising between the Colonies and the mother Country about 1770, could hardly find in him an indifferent spectator. With the movement of events during this stirring period he was well abreast, and when the lines became drawn, and the revolt was to be made, he became a patriot and Whig. In their Councils he was prominent, and he ever remained a firm friend of the cause of liberty. He is found as one of the eight delegates to the Provincial Congress of North Carolina, from the County of Orange, at its meeting, Aug. 21, 1775, at Hillsboro. His colleagues from Orange were Thomas Burke, John Kinchen, Thomas Hart, John Atkinson, Francis Nash, Wm. Armstrong, and Nathaniel Rochester, all strong and earnest men. (Note: See Wheeler's History of North Carolina, vol. ii, p. 332). This meeting of the Congress of the Province of N. C. was the third meeting of a body of like character independent of the Royal authority, but it was in reality the first meeting wherein determined measures were taken for defense. Samuel Johnston, of Chowan County, was President. The rapid progress of events all over the country was resolutely met by this body, and with celerity and wisdom they prepared for the coming conflict. Responding to the call of the Continental Congress, it caused to be raised two regiments of five hundred, with full rosters of officers. For internal defense, companies of minute men were ordered raised, and officers were appointed. A plan of civil government was adopted. The sum of $125,000.00 in bills of credit was ordered. To this body was also presented, Aug. 25, the Mecklenburgh Resolutions. The Congress adjourned Sept 19, 1775, having taken steps in a number of ways to sustain the cause of freedom. It honored him by selecting him as Lieutenant Colonel of the Battalion of Minute Men raised for Hillsboro District.

His service in promoting the success of the cause of his country was active, both in the councils of the leaders and on the field. He was present with his command at the battle of Guilford Court House, and distinguished himself by his bearing and courage. His wife, during this period, left their home, taking with her the family servants and silver and hid in an unfrequented part of the country. During all the long struggle, when at times it seemed as if all was lost, his faith never faltered.

Disputes arising between Virginia and North Carolina concerning their unlocated Western boundary line, the latter State, in 1779, appointed a Commission to extend the line into Powell's Valley, consisting of Col. John Williams, Judge Richard Henderson, Oro-ordates Davis, James Kerr and William Bailey Smith. These men were named owing to their large influence and prominence as Whig leaders. (Note: See for the foregoing statements, Wheeler's History of North Carolina, Vol. i, pp. 70-75, 103.)

In 1777 the County of Caswell was formed from part of the territory included in Orange. Here Col. Williams soon after removed, being the first lawyer to open an office in the new county. On the return of peace he again resumed his profession. During the Sessions of the State Senate for 1793, 1794 and 1795, he was a member, and rendered important services during the formative years of Statehood. (Note: See Wheeler, vol. ii, p. 81; also Livingston's Biographical Magazine, vol. i, p. 187.)

His wife was Elizabeth Williamson whom he married about 1763-66. She was the daughter of an influential family of Orange County. Nathaniel Williams, a brother of Col. John Williams, married Mary Ann Williamson, her sister. He died after 1800, aged about sixty-five years. She died April 16, 1831, aged 87. They are both buried near Ashland, Caswell County, N. C. The names of the children below are taken from the family Bibles. They were:

(1) Duke Williams, b. Feb. 14, 1768; d. Sept. 22, 1834; m. Nov. 4, 1790, to Eda Harris. Hon. John Sharp Williams, of Yazoo City, Miss., a member of Congress from that state, is a great grandson.

(2) Henrietta Williams, b. Aug. 5, 1770; d. April 20, 1842; m. Dec. 23, 1787, to Col. Richard Simpson. Mrs. Bettie MacComas, of Chicago, is a granddaughter. Mr. Robert S. Ford, of Great Falls, Montana, is a great grandson. Mrs. E. L. Scarritt, a great granddaughter; also Mrs. Chas. Shivvers. Dr. W. C. Morris a grandson.

(3) Elizabeth Williams, b. Oct. 5, 1773; d. Aug. 21, 1841; m. June 3, 1790, to Gen. Azariah Graves. Hon. Thomas Settle, of N. C., until recently a member of Congress from that State, is a great grandson.

(1398) Benjamin Franklin Simpson<sup>t</sup>, came to Missouri in 1841, and settled on a farm about one mile north of Independence, but in 1846, he removed to Independence, where he later became one of the principal merchants.
He was tall, had blue eyes and florid complexion, was quiet and undemonstrative, but of determined character, it is said that he never entered into a contest of any nature that was not carried through to the end.

He had a passion for fine horses, and often to the disappointment of his godly wife, he would don the ruffled shirt, stock and his best coat, and leaving her to different meditations, spend the afternoon at a trial of speed between the best horses of the State, he owned at this time the fastest horse in Missouri, he called her "Kate Simpson," in later years however, he disposed of all his racing stock, as he had become convinced that racing was not in accord with the good morals of the community.

At one time he sold a number of horses and delivered them at Westport, and received quite a large sum of money for them, on his way home he had reached the ford of the Blue river, on his horse, when he was stopped by two men who grasped the bridle reins on either side and pointing pistols at his head demanded his money, he raised a heavy cow-hide whip which he carried and striking each of them across the face he put spurs to his horse and although they shot at him several times he escaped without injury.

Of his wife Eliza Odom Tarver, we learn she was a woman above medium height, of commanding appearance, of sweet and loveable disposition, and of deep religious convictions, her ancestors were French Huguenots who fled from France during the Revolution.

CLAIBORNE FAMILY.

"The Ancient family from Which Col. William Claiborne, the famous Colonial Secretary of Virginia, descended, derived its name from the Manor of Cleburne or Cleborne, in Westmoreland, near the river Eden. The Manor is named in Domesday Book, in 1086, and the family was for many generations lords of this place, and of Brampton, Cundale, Kine and others." The first of the line appearing in the Pedigrees is Hervey<sup>1</sup> to whom Henry II granted a moiety of the Manor of Cliborne and who was father of Alanus de Cliborne<sup>2</sup> (A. They had Edmond Claiborne<sup>13</sup>, of Cleburne Hall, married Sept. 1, 1576, Grace (born 1558, died 1594), daughter of Sir Allen Bellingham, of Helsington and Levin. They had; William Claiborne<sup>14</sup>, born about 1587, who came to Virginia in 1621 with Sir

(1402) HENRIETTA SIMPSON HARRIS—1804-1881

Picture a fair-haired woman of medium height, with a well rounded figure, blue eyes, small features, an aristocratic bearing, the soft voice and gentle manners which mark a daughter of the South, and you will have an idea of the appearance of Henrietta Simpson Harris.

"Hennie," as her father always called her, grew to womanhood in her hospitable southern home, a carefree, happy maiden, fond of card playing, dancing and other things engaged in by her young friends. However, as a young married woman she joined the Baptist church, renounced dancing and other frivolities and was forever after very radical on the subject.

At an early age Henrietta Simpson became the wife of John Harris, of Kentucky, and the six older children were born there. The youngest was three months old when Mr. and Mrs. Harris, in 1832, made the wearisome journey in a wagon to Missouri to join Mrs. Harris' brothers who had settled on government land. The two younger Harris children were born in the Harris farm house which stood on the spot now occupied by the Westport High School.

Mr. Harris took charge of the large farm and in addition did all the dental work for his own family and numerous relatives. Mrs. Harris was a capable housekeeper and excellent manager. True to her southern nature she always kept "open house." All who wished to visit the Harris home found a hearty welcome and no one who needed aid of any kind ever went away empty handed.

Even now her grandchildren talk about the "chess cakes Grandma Harris used to make." No one else could ever make quite such delicious ones as she did.

All kinds of work was done in the home, and Mrs. Harris was always at the helm planning and directing. Every member of the family had his individual task, even the children. There was carding, spinning and weaving to be done, the making of all sorts of clothes for both the men and women of the family and servants too, also preserving fruit, preparing smoked meat, raising poultry, making butter and other work connected with the farm. This would seem enough for one woman to superintend, but besides all this far and near Mrs. Harris was called to attend the sick in all kinds of illness. There were few physicians and no nurses and many a mother owed the life of her babe as well as her own to the loving care of Mrs. Harris. She raised twenty-five children, seven daughters and one son of her own; John and James Harris, nephews of her husband, the infant daughter of her brother, five children of her daughter, Henrietta Lipscomb, who passed away at the birth of a baby boy; one other granddaughter and several children belonging to negro servants. The seven Harris girls married and settled near their early home and the sons-in-law were all very devoted to Mrs. Harris.

There were forty grandchildren and the grandmother was present at the birth of all except the last one. At that time she was confined to her bed with her last illness. But the mother instinct was still strong within her. In her semi-conscious moments she went through the motions of rocking a tiny baby to sleep.

When the older children were grown, Uncle Jack and Aunt Hennie, as they were always called, left the farm and opened the Harris House. Mrs. Harris' hospitality and fine table made this hotel very popular. Prominent men of the time stopped there and it was headquarters for the Santa Fe Traders. Shortly after the hotel was built, it burned to the ground. Mr. Harris was not in a financial condition to rebuild immediately and his friends wished to do it for him. He would not accept the money as a gift, but took it as a loan with interest, and was able to pay the debt at the end of one year.

Several of the married daughters were living at the Harris House during the Civil war, and the family passed many an anxious hour. Mr. and Mrs. Harris were, of course, pronounced Southerners, and their lives were considered in danger many times. The Union soldiers would march into the hotel and demand that Mrs. Harris have meals prepared for them, and make all sorts of threats to intimidate her, but she always stood her ground. Evidently they recognized and respected her brave spirit for they never harmed her.

In the early days on the farm the unfriendly Indians gave much trouble. It was said if the Indians ever came through a certain gate on the Harris farm, it would mean the massacre of the family. One day an Indian was seen creeping through this gate. Mrs. Harris had little time to prepare, but she went to greet him with a red hot stove shovel. This frightened the Indian so much that he ran away and did not return. During one of the skirmishes of the Mormon war, a woman suggested to her husband that he stay in the rear for safety. Mrs. Harris hearing this, said: "Mr. Harris, go to the front. I would rather be the widow of a brave man than the wife of a coward."

Mrs. Harris was a very loyal church member and did all in her power for the good of the cause. Preachers and evangelists always found comfort and entertainment in her home. The original Westport Baptist church, which still stands at the corner of Westport and Baltimore was built on ground donated by Mr. Harris.

Preparatory to giving up the hotel business, Mr. and Mrs. Harris were building the house at the southwest corner of Westport Avenue and Main Street, when the Civil war interfered.

This unfinished building served as quarters for the Union soldiers. After the war was over the house was completed and there Mr. Harris passed his last days. Eight years later Mrs. Harris died at the same place. Always industrious, she kept busy knitting when she was able to do nothing else. She left unfinished on her knitting needles a pair of socks, that she was making for a servant.

Truly the wise man's description of the virtuous woman may be appropriately quoted in relating the life and activities of Henrietta Simpson Harris.

"She stretcheth out her hand to the poor; yea, she reacheth forth her hands to the needy.

She openeth her mouth with wisdom; and in her tongue is the law of kindness.

Her children rise up, and call her blessed."

(Proverbs 31: 20, 26, 28.)

NATHAN SCARRITT

Nathan Scarritt<sup>1</sup>, b. 1788, in Connecticut, was a farmer; d. 1847; m. at Lyman New Hampshire, 1812; Latty Allds. He was of Scotch-Irish descent. In 1820 they emigrated by wagon from New Hampshire to Illinois, locating first at Edwardsville, and then on a farm near Alton—their latter location becoming known as Scarritt's Prairie, now the seat of Monticello Seminary. Latty Allds b. 1793, in New Hampshire, d. in 1875. Nathan Scarritt<sup>2</sup>, b. April 14, 1821, at Edwardsville, Illinois; d. May 22, 1890, in Kansas City, Missouri; married in Kansas City, Missouri, April 29, 1850; Martha M. Chick, daughter of William Chick, one of the founders of Kansas City. Martha M. (Chick) Scarritt died July 29, 1873, leaving nine children, of whom six are living (1908); Annie Scarritt married Bishop E. R. Hendrix (q. v.), of Kansas City; Edward L. Scarritt, Nathan Scarritt, Jr., William Scarritt, Charles W. Scarritt, a clergyman of the Methodist Episcopal Church, south, and Martha M. Scarritt, who m. Elliott H. Jones, of Kansas City, Missouri. Dr. Nathan Scarritt<sup>3</sup>, m. the second time Ruth E. Barker, daughter of Rev. Cyrus Barker, a missionary in India, where she was born. Nathan Scarritt worked on his father's farm until he was sixteen years of age, when he entered McKendree College, at Lebanon, Illinois, beginning at the preparatory department. His studies were interrupted by the illness of his father and he returned home to manage the farm, when his father had recovered he returned to the college at the urgent solicitation of the faculty, who offered him board and tuition on credit. In 1842 he was graduated from McKendree College as valedictorian, receiving the degree of B. A. He soon afterwards engaged in teaching at Waterloo, Illinois, and out of his savings of two years paid his indebtedness to his college. In April, 1845, he removed to Fayette, Missouri, where he joined his brother-in-law, William T. Lucky, in the establishment of a high school, and out of Howard High school grew Central College for men, and Howard Female College. Later Dr. Scarritt acted as provisional president of Central College for one year, during which time he established the institution on a firm basis. From 1848 until 1851 he taught the Indian Manual Labor School in Shawnee county, Indian Territory; during the ensuing year served as principal of the high school at Westport, having been the leading spirit in the building of that institution; and from 1864 taught school in Kansas City, Missouri. From boyhood Dr. Scarritt had been impressed with the conviction that he was destined for the ministry, and in 1846 he was licensed to preach and later in that year received on trial into the Missouri conference, and appointed to the Howard High School where he was then teaching, meanwhile also ministering to neighborhoods in the vicinity. Upon the division of the Methodist church he affiliated with the Methodist Episcopal church south. While teaching among the Indians (1848-51) he frequently assisted the missionaries, and, being appointed missionary to the Shawnees, Delawares and Wyandottes in 1851, he preached to each one of these tribes through interpreters. Meanwhile he also performed ministerial duty at Lexington, filling a vacancy. In the latter part of 1852 he was appointed to Westport and Kansas City, and the following year located in the latter place, becoming pastor of the Fifth Street church. In January, 1855, he was appointed presiding elder of the Kickapoo district of the Kansas Mission conference, which body he represented in the general conference of 1858; in 1858-9 served in the Shawnee Reserve, and during the ensuing two years was presiding elder of the Lecompton district. In 1861, Dr. Scarritt's ministerial labors were suspended on account of the unsettled conditions incident to the Civil war. After peace was restored however, he engaged in itinerant service for one year and was superannuated on account of physical disability but declined the aid due him from the Conference fund. In 1876 he was located in Kansas City, where his labors were conspicuously useful in the pastorate in turn, of the old Fifth Street, the Walnut Street, the Lydia avenue, the Campbell Street and the Melrose churches. Dr. Scarritt's residence in Kansas City led to his accumulation of a large fortune and afforded him opportunity to aid materially in the development of the city, and to formulate and execute various philanthropic designs. In 1862, he bought forty acres of land near the city and subsequent purchases increased his holdings to two hundred and twenty acres situated on Scarritt's Point, his first home there being a log cabin of his own building. To mention his numerous benefactions would be to write a history of Kansas City. His desire to establish a Bible and Training School was on the eve of accomplishment when his death occurred, but his children faithfully carried out his wishes regarding the project, by a gift of the site and twenty-five thousand dollars. In theology Dr. Scarritt proclaimed himself an Arminian of the Wesleyan type. In politics he was originally a whig and afterwards a conservative Democrat. He was opposed to slavery, and while he sympathized with the southern people regarded secession as a grave error. While in Kansas City he took no part in the border troubles, never attending a political meeting or casting a partisan vote. By deep study and close observation he stored his mind with ample material for every emergency. His services as a Clergyman and educator were of inestimable value. His son, Judge Edward Lucky Scarritt was b. Aug. 30, 1853, in Kansas City, Missouri; married in 1880, Margaret Morris, a daughter of Dr. Joel Morris and Margaret Jane (Simpson) Morris, Margaret Jane Simpson is number 1414, of this genealogy. Judge Edward L. Scarritt and Margaret (Morris) Scarritt have a daughter Bernice Scarritt, who married W. E. Royster, commercial agent for the Mobile and Ohio Railroad.

Judge Edward Lucky Scarritt is an able lawyer, a successful business man and a noted philanthropist. For a year he was a student in the law school of Harvard University and further continued his preparation for the bar with Judge Warwick Hough, later supreme Judge of Missouri, as his preceptor. Mr. Scarritt began the practice of his chosen profession at Glasgow, Missouri, in 1875, as junior partner in the firm of Caples and Scarritt but, seeking a wider field for his labors, in January, 1877, he located for practice in Kansas City, where he afterward formed a partnership with W. A. Alderson. At a later date he joined a former fellow student, J. R. Riggs, as senior partner of the firm of Scarritt and Riggs, which relationship was maintained until 1882, when he began practice with his brother, William C. Scarritt. Subsequently his brother-in-law, Elliott H. Jones, and Colonel J. K. Griffith, were admitted to the firm under the name of Scarritt, Griffith and Jones. In all the walks of life where intelligence, honor and manliness are regarded at their real worth Edward L. Scarritt has by the practice of these virtues attained an honorable position and won the respect of all who know him.

GEORGE ELLIOTT SIMPSON

(1431) "George Elliott Simpson<sup>5</sup>, attended the schools of Independence, and at the age of fourteen entered Chapel Hill College taking the full course; he then took up the study of the higher branches of mathematics and languages with Nathan Scarritt, at Shawnee, and then a course in Jones Commercial College in St. Louis, he received the second diploma issued by that institution.

At the age of twenty he engaged in the mercantile business at Sibley, Mo., but not liking this, he, in 1854, went to California by the overland route, he returned to Independence two years later and entered the banking house of Turner and Thornton.

Shortly after his marriage, in 1858, he moved to Kansas City, and became assistant cashier of the Union Bank, of which Hiram M. Northrup was then president, in 1861, while he was alone in the bank, the "Red Legs" a band of desperadoes attempted to rob the bank but were frightened away by the approach of United States troops, two years later Rev. Thomas Johnson, who had succeeded Mr. Northrup as president of the Union Bank, was murdered on his farm near Kansas City, by this same band of "Kansas Red Legs."

1862 he removed to New York and entered the banking house of Northrup and Chick, and remained with them until 1871, when the banking house of Donnell Lawson and Co., was organized at Number 4 Wall Street, New York, he was connected with this house until 1892, when he retired from business in New York, and returned to Kansas City.

While in business in New York he lived at East Orange, N. J. He was a member of the M. E. Church, and helped to build the church at East Orange of which he was a trustee for twenty years, he was a member of the Masonic fraternity, and of many of the Clubs of New York, among them the Manhattan, the Down Town, the Southern Society, the Essex County Country Club, the Essex County Toboggan Club, the New England Society, he was also a member of the Chamber of Commerce, and a director in the National Bank of the Republic, he was offered the presidency of this bank, but did not accept it.

In 1893, he was Vice-president of the Kansas City Water Co., and on March 23d., of that year he and Charles A. Jones, Supt. of the Company were returning from the Quidaro pumping station, in a buggy, a storm came up and on raising the top of the buggy the horse became frightened and ran away throwing them both out, Mr. Simpson sustained a fracture of the skull from which he died three weeks later.

His friends said of him "He had a judicial mind of such breadth and foresight as to make him the safest of counsellors, while his unswerving loyalty to the truth made him esteemed of all men."

"His business ability was remarkable, but greatest of all he has left to his children the richest and most princely of legacies, a good name, and a stainless life full of good deeds. His charity was so broad as to include all men and so drew all men to love, honor and respect him.

(1431) George Elliott Simpson, prominent in financial circles in New York City and in Kansas City, was identified with the early development of the latter and in later years, through financial interests, largely promoted its growth and progress. His last days were passed here where he was honored and respected by all who knew him, his death was the occasion of deep and wide-spread regret. He was a native of Gallatin, Tennessee, born February 22, 1833, and was of Scotch lineage on the paternal side and of French descent in the maternal line. His grandfather, Colonel Richard Simpson, was one of the most noted of the "Round Heads" of North Carolina and represented Caswell county in the House of Commons. His father, Benamin F. Simpson, removed from Gallatin, Tennessee, to Missouri, in 1841, and located about a mile north of Independence, removing to that city, in 1846 to give his children better educational advantages. Following his graduation from the local schools George E. Simpson entered Chapel Hill College in Lafayette county, where he pursued the regular course and afterward studied higher mathematics and language under the late Rev. Nathan Scarritt, at Shawnee Mission near Westport. This was the pioneer epoch in the history of Western Missouri, when the west lay an unsettled, uncultivated prairie, while the immediate district was also largely unclaimed and unimproved. Mr. Simpson was the promoter of many of the early business and public interests in Kansas City. He was associated with the firm of Alexander and Majors, who had a government contract for transportation along the old Santa Fe trail. In 1853, he engaged in merchandising at Sibley on the Missouri river in Jackson county, but in 1854 went to California by the overland route, remaining there for two years. In 1856, he returned to Independence and entered the banking house of Turner and Thornton, becoming thus an active factor in financial circles of the county. He was married, in 1858, to Miss Ellen Young whose family was a prominent and influential one in Jackson county, having come here from Vicksburg, Mississippi, in 1844. Following his marriage, Mr. Simpson came to Kansas City as assistant cashier of the Old Union Bank, of which Mr. Northrup was president. This bank was robbed by "Red Legs" from Kansas in 1861. The robbery was committed in the day time and the Rev. Thomas Johnson, who had succeeded H. M. Northrup in the presidency, was afterwards killed. Such were some of the tragical events which occurred incident to the troublesome times of the Civil War. Mr. Simpson was in the bank at the time of the robbery. He continued in Kansas City until 1862, when he removed to New York City. In the meantime he had not only been closely associated with business interests but had also co-operated largely in measures of vital importance to the community. He was closely identified with the Southern Methodist church in Kansas City. Mr. Simpson went to New York City, joining H. M. Northrup and J. S. Chick, who had been driven out of business here by the exigencies of war, and who had organized the bank of Northrup and Chick in New York. He remained with the firm until January, 1871, when the bank of Donnell, Lawson & Simpson was established at No. 4 Wall street, New York. It became one of the noted financial organizations of that time and was largely associated with the railway system of Ohio, Florida, North Carolina, Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska. The railway between New York and Philadelphia, known as the "Bond route," owed its existence to this house. While in New York, Mr. Simpson became a valued and prominent member of several of the leading metropolitan clubs—The Manhattan, the Down Town, the Southern Society, the Adirondack Preserve Association, the Essex Country Club, the Orange Athletic Club, the Essex County Toboggan Club, and the New England Society. He was also a member of the New York Chamber of Commerce and a director in the National Bank of the Republic. The family residence was maintained at East Orange, New Jersey, until 1892, with the exception of one winter spent in New York for educational advantages. In the latter year, Mr. Simpson withdrew from business in the East and returned to Kansas City, where he became vice president of the National Water Works Company. In the meantime through his financial operations in the East, Mr. Simpson contributed in a large measure to the development of this city, the company with which he was connected being for a considerable period fiscal agents for Kansas and Arkansas. His death resulted from an accident. While returning from the Quindaro pumping station in a buggy in company with Charles A. Jones, the horse became frightened and the vehicle was overturned. The injuries which Mr. Simpson sustained terminated his life April 11, 1893.

Mrs. Simpson survives her husband and is now living at No. 3625 Walnut Street. She was born in Gallatin, Mississippi, in 1841. Their family number eleven children. Frank, who was a member of the firm of Simpson and Groves, controlling the largest real-estate, loan and insurance business in Kansas City; Dr. James Young Simpson, a practicing physician, of Kansas City; Ellen Lee, Eliza Bell and Mary Louise, all at home; George Elliott, professor of theoretical music at Baylor College, Belton, Texas; and Mastin Simpson, secretary and treasurer of the the H. P. Wright Instrument Company. The others were: George Sanders, Laura and Maud, who died in childhood; and Lawrence Raymond, who died in Kansas City, in 1892, at the age of four years. Mr. Simpson was devoted to his home and family and regarded no personal sacrifice or effort on his part too great if it would promote the happiness and enhance the welfare of his wife and children. He ever held to high ideals in Citizenship and had a firm faith in Kansas City and its future, which faith he manifested in the active cooperation which he gave to various interests and movements in which the city was a direct beneficiary. The principles which governed his life were those which developed upright, honorable manhood. He was the associate and warm personal friend of many distinguished citizens of New York as well as in Kansas City and left his family a most honored name."

FRANK SIMPSON.

(1473) Frank Simpson.

"In the business and social life of Kansas City, few men were better known or enjoyed a higher degree of personal popularity than Frank Simpson. Mr. Simpson belonged to the younger generation of men who have been active in making Kansas City the beautiful and prosperous metropolis it is today, and his death in the very prime of life is a loss to the community at large, and a sad blow to his large circle of friends and associates.

Born in Independence, Mo., fifty years ago, he went East with his parents when a very young child. He received his early training there and afterwards graduated at Princeton University, after which much of his youthful career was spent in New York and London. He was for some time in business in the American Exchange, in London, England, and in his father's New York office. He came to this city in the prime of his young manhood and entered into partnership with Frank Groves, in 1883. This realty firm prospered, and Mr. Simpson soon became identified with all the progressive interests of the city. He was an active member of several prominent clubs, the Kansas City Club, the Midday Club, the Sons of the Revolution and the Country Club, of which he was an early member, and in which he always took an enthusiastic interest. He had wide acquaintance and many friends, and aside from his interest in social life, was intensely fond of music, pictures and books.

Mr. Simpson's delightful personality and his cultivated and matured mind made him a favorite companion, and his business integrity brought him a fine reputation in the commercial world. Few men in this city made more enduring friendships and few have passed out of the city's life more loved and respected. He was a rare example of the well-balanced business man, who finds time amid the duties and cares of office-work to cultivate the qualities of heart and character that mould the ideal citizen."

William P. Bernard, born December 8, 1823, in Augusta County, Va., he came to Missouri with his parents, in 1839, settled in Calloway County, studied geological surveying, served as assistant in a United States geological surveying party for some time. Settled in Westport, Mo., in 1847, where he engaged in the mercantile business with Albert G. Boon, their sales being mostly to the Indian traders of the border and Rocky mountains and Mexico. In the Spring of 1848, they received the first consignment of goods for Meservey and Webb, of Santa Fe, New Mexico; it required sixty-three wagons each drawn by six yoke of cattle, and taking six months to make the round trip. In 1853, upon the retiring of Mr. Boone from the firm, Colonel Charles E. Kearney took his place. In 1856, Colonel Kearney was succeeded in the business by Mr. Bernard's brother J. Bernard. During the Civil war and up to 1873 they engaged in the transportation, overland, of army, camp and Indian supplies for the Government to Fort Union, in New Mexico, Forts Doragi, Sill and Larimie. Then for about six years engaged in mining in Colorado, making his home all this time in Westport on property which he had cleared in 1850. In 1856, he organized the private Bank of Bernard and Mastin, of Kansas City, Missouri, this afterwards became the Mastin Bank. The books of his trading Companies showed a sales record amounting to as high as $250,000 yearly and the number of "Prairie Schooners" outfitted reached over 20,000, this was an immense business for those days. His first wife was Margaret Buckner of Callaway County, Missouri; they were married in 1850; she died in 1851. In 1853, he married Susan Harris, daughter of John and Henrietta (Simpson) Harris. William P. and Susan (Harris) Bernard had two daughters; Nettie Bernard, b. May 15, 1861; married Frank Henderson, and they had one son, Frank Henderson, Jr., the other daughter Annie E. Bernard was born June 7, 1864; died unmarried.

1509. v. THOMAS H. Mastin, Jr.<sup>o</sup>.

Thomas H. Mastin, Sr. "Was attending Princeton University at the time of the outbreak of the Civil War. He then returned home and joined the Confederate army as a private in a Tennessee regiment. Soon afterward he was advanced to the rank of lieutenant and before the end of the first year was commissioned captain. In 1862, he was captured, and while being transferred with a train load of other military prisoners he sprang from a car window when passing through Indiana and made his escape. He exchanged clothes with a wood chopper and after tramping through the forests for several days he at length reached a small village, where he obtained a position as school teacher. Three months later he went to Boston, where he became a mule driver on a street car. In that way he worked long enough to pay his passage on a vessel, which was about to run the federal blockade. The vessel sailed for the Bermuda Islands, where Mr. Mastin hoped to secure passage on an English vessel that would take him to the south. At Bermuda, however, he became ill with yellow fever, which almost terminated fatally, and did not recover for some months. At length, however, he secured passage on an English ship and in course of time again reached his regiment. He was especially distinguished in the battles of Shiloh and Chickamauga and at the close of the war was serving on President Davis' staff with the rank of lieutenant colonel. When hostilities ceased, Mr. Mastin returned to his old home, and in 1866 came to Kansas City, where his brother, John J. Mastin, was engaged in the banking business with W. R. Bernard, under the firm name of Mastin & Bernard. That year the junior partner withdrew and was succeeded by Thomas H. Mastin, under the firm name of J. J. Mastin and Company, with Thomas H. Mastin as cashier. The Mastin brothers were upon the bond of the State treasurer and a rumor to the effect that the treasurer was short in his accounts, caused an unexpected run on the bank, which resulted in the failure of the institution, its doors being closed on the 3d of August, 1878.

Thomas H. Mastin then engaged in the real-estate business and in mining, in which he was interested until the time of his death, and in that connection recuperated his losses and became recognized as one of the strong and forceful factors in business circles in Kansas City.

He was devoted to the welfare of his wife and children, was loyal in friendship and progressive in citizenship, and at his demise a uniform feeling of sorrow and regret spread over the city."

THE WARD FAMILY.

"This family is one of the old Virginia stock. Seth Ward was granted 350 acres of land in Henrico County, in 1634, (probably the nucleus of the 'Sheffield' estate in what was subsequently Chesterfield), and the name Seth was handed down for five generations as the name of the first-born son in the eldest branch of the family.

Tradition tells us that the English ancestor was Seth Ward, a Bishop in the English Church, perhaps Seth Ward, F. R. S., Bishop of Salisbury and Exeter, Savilian professor of Astronomy and president of Trinity College in the University of Oxford, born in Hertfordshire, in 1617.

Col. Seth Ward, grandson of the first of the name in America, would appear to have had at least three children, viz.:—Seth Ward of Sheffield, who married Mary Goode; Benjamin Ward, of "Wintopoke," Chesterfield County, whose daughter, Mary Ward, was affianced to John Randolph, of Roanoke, who afterward m. Peyton Randolph, and Mary Ward, born, 1749; d. 1787, who m. (1st.) William Boardnax, and 2nd., Richard Gregory; Martha Ward Gregory, dau. of Richard Gregory, m. Gen. ## SETH EDMUND WARD.

(1522) Seth Edmund Ward, of Westport, Missouri.

"Son of Seth and Ann (Hendrix) Ward, was born in Campbell County, Virginia, March 4, 1820, the same county in which his father was born in 1786, who traces his ancestry to the Wards of England, being deprived of educational advantages by the death of his father he went to Indiana, at the age of fourteen he was placed by his grandfather with a Mr. Jacob Hass, for the express purpose of having him trained for labor. After a short trial Seth returned to the home of his widowed mother from whom he received the sum of twenty-five dollars, and started out to make his way in the world. For nearly three years he wandered through Kentucky, Missouri and Illinois without settling himself in any specific business. In 1837, being then in his 18th year, he determined to seek his fortune in the West, and traveled as far as Lexington, Missouri, when, his money being expended, a stranger divided his purse of eighteen dollars with him, and he continued his journey to Independence. Four dollars and a half were paid for his stage fare, the other four and a half dollars for his first week's board in Independence, and he was again without money. Mr. Wilson Roberts, a stranger whom he met in the city kindly interested himself in the young man, becoming surety for his board until he could find employment. In a few days he secured a subordinate position in the employ of Captain Lancaster P. Lupton, a fur trader, formerly of the United States army, and arranged to leave Independence July 12, 1838, with a wagon train for the far west, the second night of the trip was spent in camp a few miles from where the luxurious Kansas City home of the Ward's is now located.

Shortly after the arrival of the train at Fort Lancaster, on the south fork of the Platte, near where Denver now stands Mr. Ward took service with the fur company of Thompson and Craig, and with them crossed the Rocky Mountains on a trading expedition, among his first associates on this trip, was Kit Carson, the "Nestor of the Rocky Mountains," and a type of the simon pure trapper—before the extinction of the great fur companies. Without attempting to follow in detail so eventful and checkered a career as this, affording material not for a page, but a volume, sufficeth to say that Mr. Ward lost no opportunity of becoming acquainted with the Indian races on both sides of the Rockies, and that he found able and willing teachers among those hardy pioneers who saw in his frank countenance those manly qualities which commanded their confidence, and opened the pages of their wonderful experiences for his benefit. In the spring of 1839, he went with a trapping expedition into the Navajo and Digger Indian country as camp keeper. Passing over an interval of seven years during which Mr. Ward became able to execute his cherished purpose of engaging in business for himself, we find him in 1845 with the savings of a well earned salary amounting to a thousand dollars, ready for his first adventure upon his own account. In 1847 he made a trip into the Indian country purchasing his goods from Boone and Hamilton, of Westport, which were loaded in one large wagon drawn by five yoke of cattle, and were all sold along the Arkansas river to good advantage.

Returning to Westport in 1848, he formed a partnership with William Le Guerrie in the Indian trade, each of them having about $1,500.00 in cash. From purchases made of Boone and Hamilton on ten months' credit, they loaded five large wagons and made a very successful expedition, securing 6,000 buffalo robes with which they returned to Westport in 1849. From this point the robes were shipped to New York, Mr. Ward going east to attend to the sales. He remained in the Indian trade until 1855, doing a successful and profitable business.

In 1845, on account of the Gratton massacre by Sioux Indians six miles below Fort Laramie, he was ordered with his train into the Fort, and in 1856 was appointed sutler there, which profitable post he retained until 1871. In 1873 Mr. Ward was elected president of the Mastin Bank in Kansas City, Missouri. February 9, 1860, he was married to Mrs. Mary F. McCarty, dau. of John Harris of Westport, Mo.

For thirty years Mr. Ward affiliated with the Odd Fellow and Masonic orders, and was a practical Christian, and a communicant of the Baptist church. He died December 10, 1903.

(1524) "Hugh Campbell Ward was an attorney of pronounced ability in the department of corporation law, was born at Westport, Missouri, March 10, 1863, his parents being Seth E. Ward and Mary Frances (Harris) Ward, widow of Charles McCarty and daughter of John and Henrietta (Simpson) Harris. Reared on his father's farm his early education acquired in a private school in Westport, was supplemented by study in William Jewell College at Liberty, Missouri, and in Harvard University, where he completed his more distinctive literary education by graduation in the class of 1886, the degree of Bachelor of Arts being then conferred upon him. To prepare for the legal profession he entered the St. Louis Law School and was graduated in 1889, locating the following year at Kansas City, where he was admitted to the bar and began practice. His success came soon because his equipment was unusually good. With the realization of the fact that the profession is open to talent, and that eminence and success cannot be obtained except by indomitable energy, perseverance, fairness and strong mentality, Mr. Ward brought these qualities into active play in his professional career and was recognized as one of the ablest practitioners of corporation law in Kansas City. In 1894 he was appointed receiver for John J. Mastin & Company on the dissolution of that partnership and later was appointed one of the trustees of the Metropolitan National Bank. He was local attorney for the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railway and general attorney for the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient Railway, and also attorney for the National Bank of Commerce, Commerce Trust Company and the Kansas City Home Telephone Company. He was selected for the chairmanship of the judiciary committee of the Kansas City court of appeals and was senior member of the firm of Ward and Hadley, in which connection he was legal representative for many of the leading corporations of Kansas City. Aside from his profession Mr. Ward was known in business circles as a director of the National Bank of Commerce, Commerce Trust Company, of the Kansas City Railway & Light Company, and of the Kansas City Home Telephone Company. He exercised a wide-felt influence in democratic circles, and in 1892 was elected to the state legislature where he did much important work in connection with constructive measures. He was vice chairman of the judiciary committee, vice chairman on the committee on municipal corporations, and a member of the committee on constitutional amendments—three of the most important committees of the house. In 1898 he was appointed police commissioner by Governor Stephens, and he was not without some military experience for under the organization of the Missouri National Guards he was placed on the staff of Governor Stephens as commissary general. On the 26th of October, 1898, Mr. Ward was married to Miss Vassie James, a graduate of Vassar College, and the daughter of J. Crawford James, a well known business man of Kansas City. Mr. Ward was identified with various fraternal and social organizations. He belonged to the Elks lodge, to the Kansas City Country Club and the Harvard Club of the Southwest. He was also connected with the Society of Colonial Wars deriving his eligibility through lineal descent from Seth Ward, one time member of the Virginia house of burgesses. In professional lines he was connected with the American Bar Association and the Missouri State Bar Association. He was also a member of the Commercial Club and president of the Mid-day Club of Kansas City." His law partner and close personal friend was Herbert S. Hadley, Ex-Governor of Missouri.

HARRIS HOUSE HOTEL,
BUILT BY JOHN HARRIS, 1852.

"THE HARRIS HOUSE"

"The principal hotel of Westport, Missouri (now Kansas City), was called the Harris House hotel, and was kept by Mr. Harris. This hotel which is still standing (1916), was the center of the town. It stood on the corner of Main street and Main Cross street now Westport avenue and Penn street. It was famed far and wide for its generous hospitality and southern cooking; every traveler of note, who was not privately entertained, stayed at the Harris House hotel, as well as the outfitters, the wagon masters, government sutlers, and factors; General Fremont, Senator Benton, Washington Irving and Horace Greeley, are known to have stayed there; Senator Benton spoke of a drive through the Western part of the country, in which he said his horses hoofs were stained red with the juices of the wild strawberry, and he further spoke of the richness and beauty of the surrounding country. General Fremont left his wife at the Harris House hotel for months at a time while he made his expeditions in the far west. There were no dances given at this hotel, as Mrs. Harris did not approve. She brought up her large family of daughters and taught them to hem and embroider fine cambric, and to be discrete and modest after the fashion of gentlewomen. A family of slaves were the servants of the hotel. Aunt Minerva and her husband Mark were the cooks. Mark would 'roach' up his hair, put on a white apron and soft slippers and fly into the dining room, where he turned into head waiter.

He presided over the meal table and carved venison, wild turkey, three year old home-cured ham, or a whole roast pig, with a flourish and distinction that made him famous.

Among the old families identified with Westport we find those of John Harris, Duke Simpson and others."

“OLD WESTPORT”

The descendants of Richard Simpson of Fairfax County, Virginia, have been so intimately and so closely associated with the early settlement and growth of Westport which later became absorbed in Kansas City, Missouri, that it is thought best to insert here a short history of “Old Westport” for the benefit of their posterity.

“When the pioneers came to what is now Jackson County in the early part of the nineteenth century, they reasoned that somewhere near the junction of the Missouri and Kaw rivers, at the gateway of the West, was the place for a city. They had a definite idea, but were not certain of the exact location. Independence was founded in 1827, and until 1840 it appeared that this was to be the great city of the West. The preponderance of trade at about this latter date centered at Westport, which had been established in 1833, and for many years it seemed that it was to become the city of destiny. Kansas City was founded in 1839, and was soon in competition with Westport and Independence for supremacy. The historic town of Westport was consolidated with Kansas City in 1899, and is now a part of the Fourth Ward. Daniel Morgan Boone, the third son of Daniel Boone, the Kentucky pioneer, was the first white man, according to a well founded tradition, to visit the site of Independence. He crossed the wilderness alone from Kentucky to St. Louis in 1787, when he was eighteen years old; for twelve years he spent the time trapping beaver on the Little Blue River and other streams in the vicinity of Westport and Independence. Boone said that Jackson County was the best county for beaver in those days that he had discovered. This pioneer was the commander of a company in the war of 1812. Afterwards he was appointed farmer of the Kaw Indians and was stationed for four years near Lecompton, Kansas, on the Kaw River. Boone finally settled on a farm near Westport, where he died in 1832, from Asiatic cholera. Jackson County was organized by an act of the Missouri Legislature, Dec. 15, 1826. David Ward and Julius Emmons, of Lafayette County, and John Batleson, of Clay County, were appointed to select a site for the county seat. The commissioners selected the site on which Independence now stands as the location. Long ago in 1824 and 1825, two counties separated by the Missouri River, and flanked by the western border line, sought at the same time their incorporation by the Legislature. On the north the inhabitants, mostly emigrants from Kentucky and advocating that gentleman to the presidency, calling their county Clay, and its seat of justice Liberty. On the south, as if in rivalry, emigrants from Virginia, Carolina and Tennessee selected the name of Jackson for their county and Independence for their county seat. The county court of Jackson County held its first meeting in Independence, July 2, 1827. The Judges were Henry Burriss, presiding, and Abraham McClellan and Richard Fristoe. L. W. Boggs, afterwards governor of Missouri, was clerk of the court. Colonel Henry Ellsworth commissioner of Indian affairs, and a party of travelers, among whom was Washington Irving, the father of American Literature, passed through Independence and Westport in 1832 on a tour, through the Indian Country. He said in a letter: "Yesterday I was on a deer-hunt in this vicinity which led me through scenery that only wanted a castle or a gentleman's seat here and there interspersed to have equaled some of the most celebrated scenery of England." Independence in those early years was selected as a place of arrival and departure for pack-trains, and as an outfitting place for trappers of the mountains and western plains. It was well worth while to witness the arrival of some of these pack-trains. The mountain trade at length gave way to Mexican trade. This being on a much larger scale, pack-mules and donkeys were discarded and wagons drawn by ox and mule teams were substituted in their place.

A Baptist missionary, the Rev. Isaac McCoy, entered a tract of Government land in 1813, four miles south of the Missouri River, on a road that led from Independence west to the plains. The next year his son, John McCoy, established a store on the land. The business prospered and in 1833, John McCoy decided to become a town builder; he divided the land adjacent to the store into lots and sold them and called the settlement "WESTPORT." It is said McCoy chose this name because it was a port of entry into the great western country. McCoy became a surveyor for the Government in 1836. He sold his store to William M. Chick. On the land purchased from the Government by Isaac McCoy was the site of the village of Sauk or "Saukee" Indians, the last tribal habitation in the vicinity of Westport. The Indian settlement was situated on a ridge one mile south of Brush Creek. The Santa Fe traders adopted the custom, about 1837, of stopping at Westport to await the arrival of their goods at Blue Mills Landing or Wayne City on the Missouri River. The prairie lands adjacent to Westport with its many springs offered excellent grazing and camping grounds. From Westport it was only four miles north to the Missouri River, while it was eighteen miles to the Blue Mills Landing of Wayne City. Pierre Roi, a Frenchman, built a road from Westport directly north to the Missouri River; the traders, taking advantage of this shorter distance and good roads, soon began having their goods shipped to the new "Westport Landing," rather than Blue Mills Landing or Wayne City.

The superior advantage of Westport as a business center attracted various classes of merchants, tradespeople, and mechanics. The Indians living in the county west of town received large annuities from the Government and they spent their money freely. The county adjacent to Westport in all directions was being settled. The freighters on the Santa Fe Trail attracted numerous large outfitting stores, blacksmiths, wagon makers, &c. The demand for furniture other than the home-made kind of the pioneers brought cabinet-makers to Westport. The business houses of Westport were first situated, for the most part, on a little stream that flowed through town in a southeasterly direction crossing the present Westport avenue near Mill street. Along the banks of the stream, inside of the town limits and without, were excellent springs that were convenient to the towns people.

Westport's first tavern was owned by Daniel Yocham situated near the junction of Westport Ave. and Mill Street. The hostelry was a gathering place for trappers, hunters, traders, Indians and soldiers. The second tavern was established by A. B. H. McGee, at Westport Avenue and Penn Street. In 1847 Mr. McGee sold out to John (Jack) Harris, who conducted the Harris House there until 1864. James H. Hunter was the first saddler and afterwards a successful merchant. Robert Johnson operated the tannery and was the owner of the first brick house west of Independence. Mrs. James Holloway was a tailoress and made wedding garments for young men. The leading physicians were: Dr. H. F. Herford, Dr. Joel B. Morris, Dr. J. P. Stone, Dr. David Waldo, Dr. Parker, and Dr. A. B. Earle, also postmaster. Park Lee was an early attorney. The bread making business was also profitable in Westport. A. M. Eisele's bakery, near the present northeast corner of Westport Avenue and Mill Street, made him a small fortune and he built one of the best two-story residences in town. Among the large landholders from the Government of that period were George Harper, Capt. David Waldo (of the Mexican War), Boon Hays (grandson of Daniel Boone, pioneer on the Oregon Trail, on which he lies buried), Jesse Thomas, Dave Self, Sam Poteet, and James Yeager. The Government established a post-office near the site of Westport in 1832, giving it the name of Shawnee. The name in two years was changed to Westport. The first postmaster was Dr. Johnston Lykins, and the second was John C. McCoy. Mail was carried from Independence to Westport once a week on horseback. A road was built across the State from St. Louis to Westport in 1839 and mail was brought by stage twice a week.

The principal tread-mill was situated on Brush Creek near crossing of Wornall road, another one was situated on Indian Creek near the State line. James McGee owned a corn-cracker mill near where Westport Avenue crosses Mill street, a large waterpower mill owned by Johnson and Robert Hull was situated near by. One of the first large shipments of goods sent to Westport was for the firm of Meservey & Webb in Santa Fe. Boon and Bernard of Westport acting as agents, received the goods at Westport landing and engaged wagons and teams for the overland transportation. The caravan required to haul this one consignment of goods consisted of sixty-three wagons, each carrying 6,000 pounds and drawn by six yoke of oxen. Westport had an extensive trade with Santa Fe in 1849, when the California immigration began greatly increasing the business. It is estimated that 40,000 immigrants bought outfits in Westport in 1849 and 1850. Companies of persons from all parts of the country came to Westport to organize caravans for journeys across the plains. Almost every type of man in the West could be seen on the streets of Westport. Westport was a market for cattle, mules, horses, harness, tents, saddles, and all the equipment needed for travel. In the town's early days Westport Avenue was lined with various outfitting establishments from a point east of Broadway to Mill Street. Similar stores and shops were situated on Penn Street from Fortieth to Forty-third street. Gold and silver bullion could be seen piled on the streets of Westport, being re-consigned and re-shipped at this point. The outfitting business was conducted on a cash basis and money was plentiful. When the immigrant trade was at its height the prairies around Westport were dotted with tents and wagons and had the appearance of a great army. These are the names of some of the successful business men and firms of Westport: Kearney & Bernard; A. G. Boone; J. M. J. Hunter; Baker and Street; William Dillon; S. P. and W. H. Keller; S. C. Roby; J. G. Hamilton; F. Gallup; Frederick Esslinger; Edward Price; Henry Sager; Francis Booth; P. D. Elkins; F. G. Ewing; W. M. Chick; Colvin Smith and Alfred Warfield.

Between 1855 and 1860 Westport reached the zenith of its prosperity. Westport was incorporated February 12, 1857. Its first mayor was Thomas J. Goforth.

Shawnee Mission, in Kansas, three miles south of Westport, was closely identified with the early history of the town. The Rev. Thomas Johnson, founder of the mission, was intimately associated with Isaac McCoy, Dr. Lykins, and other residents of Westport. Thomas Johnson established the first mission school for Shawnee Indians in 1829, in the town of Shawnee, in Johnson County, Kansas. The school had twenty-seven pupils in 1835, and the church had a membership of seventy-four Shawnee Indians. The mission was removed to the location three miles from Westport in 1839, where the Government had given a grant of 2,240 acres. Large buildings were erected on the new site and a manual training school established, that continued in operation until 1862. Francis Parkman, the historian, came to Jackson County in May, 1846, and to Westport to equip an outfit for the Western journey. He gave a description of Westport in his book "The Oregon Trail."

When Westport was established the principal steamboat landing in Jackson County was at Blue Mills and Wayne City, six miles below Independence.

The Westport merchants found this landing inconvenient, as the trip could not be made down and back in one day; so they had their freight brought ashore farther up the river. About this time John C. McCoy had the stock of goods for his store brought ashore above Chouteau's warehouse, in 1832, from the steamboat "John Hancock," and a regular landing was established at the river bank where Grand Avenue reaches the river. This was the beginning of "Westport Landing" that afterward developed into Kansas City.

From a pamphlet called "Westport 1812-1912" issued by "The Westport Improvement Association."

"Kansas City has a short but interesting history. While it does not reach back to French and Spanish possession and to memories of the Revolution as does that of St. Louis; yet the site of Kansas City was mentioned by the early French writers, was approached as near as the present Bonner Springs by Coronado, and in 1804 Lewis and Clark, while standing on the bluff and gazing at the confluence of the Kansas and Missouri rivers, recognized this place as a natural trading post, and mentioned it in their diary, which was afterwards published by order of President Jefferson. While the French and Spanish flags never waved over the town of Kansas, there were many French and Spanish inhabitants. Some of the French Families were: Major Dripps, who drove a two-wheel cart; the Prudhommes, whose estate became the town site; the Philaberts; the Etues; the Guinottes from Belgium; the Chouteaus, a proud old French family that came direct from France to St. Louis and whose sons established the first trading post near the present city. Chouteau's landing antedated Kaw's Mouth, or Kansas, or "Westport Landing." Others were LaLiberte and Louis Bartholet, "Grand Louis," as he was called in distinction from "Little Louis," another famous character, and "Old Pino" who lived to be 110 years old. Mr. John McCoy was intimately associated with the earliest history of Westport and Kansas City. He might easily be called the city father if not the founder of Kansas City. Among the old families identified with Westport were those of John Harris, Joab and William Bernard, Duke Simpson, J. M. Hunter, John Wornall, Rev. Thomas Johnson, Edward Price and others. Among the picturesque characters of national fame frequently to be met in Westport were Kit Carson, Jim Bridger, and F. X. Aubrey."

So much for "Westport" and Kansas City in the early days. "The sun of Kansas City's prosperity is just on the horizon; we have scarcely seen the first rays of its full splendor. It is simply the logic of destiny that Kansas City is to be the greatest metropolis on the American Continent. By virtue of her geographic position she must hold, com-mercially, the balance of power between the East and the West."

"The words of the prophets of fifty years ago have come true, and the prophecies made today shall be fulfilled."

SIMPSON FAMILY OF SOUTH CAROLINA

The records of this family have been compiled from a family chart, the property of Miss M. Louise Simpson, the daughter of Richard Wright and Maria Louise (Garlington) Simpson and from the Genealogy of Chappell, Dickie and Kindred Families, by Phil E. Chappell of Kansas City, Mo. On the lower left hand corner of the chart appears the following:

As the above mentioned chart is written with a pen and is not unlike a spider's web, and the writing, while very distinct, is of necessity extremely fine, we trust there are no inaccuracies in our compilation which must conform to the requirements of a printed record. M. H. M.

WILLIAM DUNLAP SIMPSON.

(1550) "William Dunlap Simpson, Jurist and forty-ninth governor of South Carolina (1878-80), was born at Belfast, Laurens district, S. C., Oct. 27, 1823, son of John Wells Simpson. He was graduated at South Carolina College with honor in 1844, being the youngest member of his class, and then entered the Harvard Law School, but finding the climate too rigorous, he returned to his native state and began the study of law at Laurens Courthouse. He was admitted to the bar in 1845, began practice in partnership with Col. Henry C. Young, acquired a reputation as a forceful speaker as well as an able lawyer, was several times a member of the general assembly, and once represented Laurens district in the state senate. When in 1861, Carolina passed an ordinance of secession he entered the army, was present at the siege of Fort Sumter, and then going to Virginia as aid to Gen. Bonham, participated in the first battle of Manassas, where he displayed great courage. In July, 1861, he was elected Major of the 14th regiment, South Carolina Volunteers, one of the five called by the state. In the spring of 1862, he was promoted to lieutenant-colonel, and after serving on the coast of South Carolina, was with the regiment attached to Grigg's brigade in Virginia, taking part with conspicuous gallantry in the Peninsular and the Maryland campaigns. Later, Gen. Bonham, who then represented the Laurens district in the Confederate congress, was elected governor, and Col. Simpson was chosen to succeed him (1863). He was re-elected to that body and remained a member until the war closed, when he returned to his home and his practice. In 1868 he was a delegate to the Democratic national convention, held in New York city, which nominated Seymour and Blair, and in the same year he was nominated for congress by the Democrats of the 4th district, defeating his Republican competitor, A. S. Wallace, by 4,800 plurality. Though duly commissioned by Gov. Scott, the house of representatives refused him a seat, on the ground that he was disqualified by the fourteenth constitutional amendment, and admitted Wallace. In 1876, Col. Simpson without his own knowledge was nominated for the office of lieutenant-governor on the ticket with Wade Hampton and accompanied the latter on an extended campaign, every county being visited. By virtue of this office he was president of the state senate, and acted in that capacity during the troublous times when Gov. Chamberlain attempted to hold the executive chair over into Hampton's term. Col. Simpson was re-elected lieutenant-governor, in 1878, though it was understood that he was to be governor, it having been decided that Gov. Hampton was to be sent to the United States senate. Accordingly on Hampton's election to the latter body, Col. Simpson became governor, having previously acted as such during the period of Gov. Hampton's disability from illness. His controlling motive while governor was the advancement of the interests of the people. The passage of a Stock Law act, and the reopening of South Carolina College were advised by him, both measures being opposed at the time, but eventually adopted. He was the mover in the scheme by which the College, in 1887, was developed into a University. On December 18, 1879, he was elected chief justice of the supreme court of the state. He did not take his seat however, until August, 1880, and being subsequently elected for a second term, served as chief justice until his death. He was married at Laurens, S. C., in 1846, to Jane E., daughter of Henry Young, his law partner. She survived him with three daughters, and four sons; Henry Young Simpson, of the Laurens bar; William D. Simpson, Jr.; Earnest A. Simpson, of the Columbia bar, and Prof. John W. Simpson, of South Carolina. Col. Judge Simpson died at Columbia, S. C., Dec. 26, 1890."

DICKIE FAMILY.

It is a well authenticated tradition that John and Ailsie Dickie, who were the first ancestors of the American Family as far as is known, came from Scotland to America in the first half of the eighteenth century. That they were Scotch, there is no question, but that they were immigrants seems doubtful; for at the time we first find record of them in Halifax County, Virginia, in 1745, there were two other Dickies living there—Michael and James, probably brothers to John—a fact which would indicate that they were not of the first generation. The family is not now, nor has it ever been, a numerous one in this country. As shown by the Land Books in Richmond, John, James and Michael Dickie patented lands, in 1745, in that part of the Lunenburg County which, in 1752, was cut off and organized into Halifax. The tract patented by John was located on Moorefield Creek. It is also said that the identical tract of land on which South Boston in Halifax County is situated, once belonged to one of these Dickies. The grand old Scotch name "Dickie," in which all who are descended from it feel a just pride, however, has long since become extinct in this section of the Old Dominion, and there is not now one bearing the name in all that portion of the state. Only on a broken tombstone, in an old abandoned cemetery, is the name of "Dickie" now to be found, and these silent monitors bear the only evidence of their former habitation in that country. John Dickie, Sr., was born about 1720, and his wife, Ailsie, in 1726. But little is known of Ailsie, the wife of John Dickie, Sr. She was doubtless a most excellent wife and mother. She died within a year of her husband; he died, 1785.

Their children were:

1622. i. SUSANNAH Dickie; b. 1755; d. 1795; m. 1774; Edwin Conway Garlington, son of Christopher, and Elizabeth (Conway) Garlington, m. 1724; grandson of Christopher and Sarah Garlington who came from England, in 1660.

1623. ii. SARAH Dickie; b. 1760; d. 1788, in Halifax County; m. Mch. 15, 1781; John Chappell<sup>a</sup>.
1624. iii. ELIZABETH Dickie; b. Nov. 27, 1765, in Halifax Co., Va.; m. 1st. Nov. 6, 1783; William Chappell, who was a younger brother of John Chappell, who m. her sister Sarah; and 2nd., Thomas Hull Crawley.
1625. iv. WILLIAM Dickie; of whom nothing further is known.
1626. v. JAMES Dickie.
1627. vi. JOHN Dickie; b. in Halifax Co., Va., about 1750; m. 1st., Martha Watkins; m. 2nd., April 3, 1788, Patsy Vaughn. Between 1800 and 1810, he removed from Halifax County, Virginia, to South Carolina, and located in Spartanburg district, now county. With him went a colony of friends and relatives, as was usual in these migrations, among whom were his brother-in-law, Edwin C. Garlington, and all his family, all of his children by his second marriage, some of whom had married in Virginia, and James the youngest son by the first marriage. The other three children by the first marriage remained in Virginia.

EDWIN CONWAY GARLINGTON.

1628. EDWIN Conway Garlington was born in Lancaster, Virginia, March 5, 1746, and died in Laurens district, South Carolina, in 1823. When a young man he removed to Halifax County, Virginia, and there on November 13, 1774, married Susannah, the eldest daughter of John and Ailsie Dickie. It is a well-authenticated tradition that John and Ailsie Dickie, who were the emigrant ancestors of the family, as far as is known, came from Scotland to America in the first half of the eighteenth century. John Dickie died in June, 1785. In the records of the old family Bible, it is stated she died within a year of her husband, and that she was then aged fifty-nine. So she must have been born in 1726. Between 1800 and 1810, Edwin Garlington removed with his brother-in-law, John Dickie, to South Carolina, where he bought land and improved a plantation on the Saluda River, in Laurens district here he lived out his days, a widower, and died in 1823, at the age of seventy-seven. He was a large slave-holder, and took with him to South Carolina about fifty negroes, among whom were several who had been brought from Africa. Among the papers which belonged to him, the following old tax receipt on a "riding chair," may be worth copying especially as it bears on it the signature of "E. Garlington," in his own handwriting:

"This is to certify that Edwin Garlington in the District of Laurens, 6th collection district of South Carolina, has paid the duty of four dollars for the term of one year, commencing January 1, 1817, upon a wheeled Carriage for the conveyance of persons, called a riding chair owned by Edwin Garlington; "John Buchanan, Collector 6th District, S. C."

The bravery of the Garlingtons, and their loyalty to their native state is attested by the blood spilt on the battle-fields of northern Virginia. When the tocsin of war was sounded, every man of military age volunteered, and it is said that of the members of Company A., 3d. South Carolina Infantry, one-half were related to or descended from Edwin and Susannah (Dickie) Garlington. There were born to Edwin and Susannah (Dickie) Garlington eleven children—ten sons and one daughter—all of whom lived to maturity.

Page 19—No. 31. In August, 1843, Francis Delmar Kinnear began his law studies under Thomas S. Espy, and a few months later entered the office of Howe and Myers, he was admitted to practice August 27th, 1845, and continued in the active duties of his profession throughout the balance of his life.

He was connected with the early banking interests of Franklin as president of the Venango Bank.

Possessing a shrewd well balanced mind, and being an indefatigable worker his peculiar strength lay in his thorough preparation of all cases entrusted to his charge, he was a man of singular ingenuity in the profession, a diligent student, and while confining his attention to no particular phase of the law, he succeeded best in litigations growing out of land titles, real estate and other business in which technical points were conspicuous features.

He died in Franklin, Pa., July 4, 1886.

Page 22—No. 60. Senator James Wilson Lee was named for James Wilson, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, also one of the Associate Justices of the United States. Senator Lee served two years in the Pennsylvania Senate; was elected in 1880.

A List of Marriages for the Year 1751.

May 28, William Douglas, Esq., was married to the heiress of the house of Kinnear, Scotland.

From The Gentleman's Magazine: For June, 1755; page 284.

The following sketch was sent in after this book had gone to press.

Hon. Henry P. Kinnear.

Page 204—No. 396. In a visit to Youngsville, Penna., on June 5, 1916, on the occasion of the ceremonies of acceptance of the gift to this village of a High School Building and Auditorium, I visited the grave of Matthew Young, the Scotch pioneer founder of Youngsville, and found that the rough unhewn boulder that I referred to in my tribute to Hon. Henry P. Kinnear elsewhere printed in this volume as marking the resting place of Mr. Young had been removed from the cemetery. Some trustee of Youngsville, who succeeded Mr. Kinnear, did not share the latter's sentiment and judgment as to the appropriateness of such a monument to this sterling, quaint and rugged Scotch character and so he had the stone blasted into pieces and hauled off the grounds. So that all there is to mark the grave now is the small marble head stone with the name Matthew Young, which had been placed by some one at his grave before his remains were moved from the old to the new cemetery, and hung upon this old marker is the copper inscription plate taken from the old boulder before it was removed from the cemetery.

I discovered an earnest feeling among some of the citizens to bring another and a larger rough rock to take the place of the other, and one has been selected and will likely soon be put in place and the copper plate be placed thereon.

And right here perhaps it may be proper, because of there being so much of Youngsville in this book, for the writer to add a little bit of local history somewhat related to Matthew Young (see sketch of Matthew Young, page 75), as he was the first school teacher in Youngsville, and quite a large owner of land there and in that vicinity. I made my beginning, my first thousand dollars, from timber on land I bought from the Matthew Young tract in Brokenstraw Township, being the Eastern 210 acres patented to him by the State, and being less than two miles from the new High School and Auditorium built in the village bearing his name. And may I here preserve in history an expression of the earnest appreciation of myself and family for the grand reception and entertainment, and wonderful ceremonies of acceptance of the Memorial Hall and School Auditorium by the entire citizenship of Youngsville. Our thanks are due to the business men who closed their doors during a portion of the day; and to their families and to the children and teachers of the schools, who marched to the cemetery, led by the Youngsville band and the Boy Scouts, to decorate the graves of Mr. Joshua Currie, who left money to found the Industrial Department, and of my son, Dr. J. F. White, in whose memory I built the school and Memorial Hall building; and for the grand entertainment given by the children from the stage of the Memorial Hall; and for that most elegant banquet given in the rooms of the Domestic Science Department; also for the beautiful loving cup presented to Mrs. White and myself by the teachers and pupils of Youngsville; and I should mention one other presented me on completion and dedication of the main school building a few years ago; all of which gives us a feeling of high admiration and esteem for the grand spirit made manifest on this occasion.

I also want to express thanks to the President and Board of Directors and to the Principal of the school, and to the gentlemen and ladies of Youngsville, so many of whom took such an active interest in making this demonstration of appreciation such a wonderful success.

We shall always bear in loving remembrance these good friends, the kind warm-hearted people of Youngsville, who can always be depended upon to show their sympathy and love in any worthy cause, by their good works.

With best wishes and thanks to all. J. B. WHITE.

June 10, 1916.
